Penn State Dean Reports Opportunities For Graduating Students

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The dean of Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences, Robert Steele, told industry leaders Thursday that all of the 346 students who will graduate in a few weeks can have a job if they want it.

Speaking to members at the regular meeting of the Penn State Agricultural Council, Steele said many students are deciding among two or three job offers which one they will accept.

"This is a very bright situation," Steele said. "We know the opportunities. But the college of agricultural sciences is a discovery college. Most of our students don't discover the college until well into their college years. We need to make the students in our state aware that there is career in agriculture for them. To have a career you have to have a job. And there is a job for them."

Steele credited the ag in the classroom program as filling this need. He said in the future, more effort will be made to focus on telling the story of the impact of what is done at the college.

"You will see more marketing,"

Poultry Federation (Council) Holds Fundraiser

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Poultry Federation held its annual fund-raising banquet Wednesday night at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center.

The event is the organization's main fund-raising activity that allows it to serve the industry as a watchdog and advocacy agency.

It is the last such event under the banner of the "Federation" as the group has merged with the larger, more encompassing PennAg Industries Association Inc., to become represented as the Pennsylvania Poultry Council.

John Hoffman, executive director, opened the evening event thanking everyone for their support for the event, with the proceeds normally directed to promote and defend the industry.

"The proceeds from this banquet will be used to maintain a

Hill Named National Guernsey Youth

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — Based on experience in dairy husbandry, breed activities and leadership, the 1998 National Outstanding Guernsey Youth competition highlighted five young Guernsey enthusiasts from across the country on Saturday, March 28, in Louisville, Kentucky, at the Youth Banquet held during the National Guernsey Convention.

Troy Hill of Sandy Lake, Pennsylvania, received the title of the 1998 National Outstanding Guernsey Youth. Troy is the son of Harold and Marilyn Hill and is a student at Pennsylvania State

Troy Hill, Sandy Lake, receives the $500 national Guernsey scholarship from Patty McMurray, national youth committee. Troy is also the 1998 National Guernsey Association outstanding youth.

The third generation of their family to dairy farm on this northern Lebanon County land along the Swatara Creek, Gary and Barbara Lentz operate Dream-On Holsteins. This year's state distinguished young breeder award recipients and their children are Gary, son Dustin, Katie, and Barbara, holding baby Colin. See story page A24.

CATTLE: Compared to Tuesday, a large offering of slaughter steers sold steady to .50 higher. Sales started out mostly steady, then picked up steam after several high Choice and Prime packages stretched the market and boosted prices for all classes. Slaughter heifers were not well tested. Slaughter cows sold .50-1.50 lower and a good supply of slaughter bulls sold fully steady. This week's auction was made up of around 57 percent slaughter steers and 31 percent slaughter cows.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1095-1460 lbs 63.50-66.75, individual 1395 lbs 67.75. Choice 2-3 1040-1500 lbs 61.75-65.10, several high dressing 64.50-66.25; few 1488-1760 lbs 57.75-60.25. Select and low Choice 2- 3 1135-1550 lbs 57.00-63.10. Few Select 1-3 1045-1463 lbs 54.00-61.75.

CALVES: Compared to Monday's auction, vealer and slaughter calves sold mostly steady. Trade for calves returning to feed remains active and Holstein bulls and heifers sold 20.00 higher than Monday's rather light test. Around 85 percent of supply returned to the farm.

VEALERS: Good and Choice 75-105 lbs 20.00-28.00, few to 30.00. Standard and low Good 65-95 lbs 15.00-20.00, few down to 11.00.

SLAUGHTER CALVES: Few Good and Choice 300-350 lbs 90.00-105.00. Few Utility and Good 300-350 lbs 75.00-90.00.

RETURNED TO FARM: Holstein bulls 90-125 lbs 100.00-139.00, few to 145.00. Plainer calves 80-110 lbs 45.00-92.00, weaker calves 65-90 lbs 30.00-40.00. Few Holstein heifers 85-115 lbs 125.00-158.00. Plainer calves 75-115 lbs 60.00-105.00.

SHEEP: Compared to Monday's auction, wooled slaughter lambs were not well tested and a limited supply of spring lambs sold mostly steady. Slaughter ewe prices were fully steady. Receipts have fallen off sharply as most producers who were looking to sell sheep and goats in the local area, did so over the last three weeks.

SLAUGHTER LAMBS: Not well tested.

NEW CROP LAMBS: Choice 2-3 few 20-80 lbs 95.00-120.00; 80-110 lbs 80.00-95.00.

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE:

Prices were unchanged to higher on the lighter weights in the Northeast, Southeast and Midwest except brown mediums in New England were lower, and the balance of prices were unchanged. The market tone for white eggs was steady for the large sizes, fully steady for mediums, and brown eggs in New England were barely steady. Demand was light to instances fairly good, mostly moderate, and best where featured. Food service demand remained mostly moderate. White egg supplies of the large sizes were usually at least adequate while lighter weights supplies were adequate to instances barely adequate. Brown egg supplies were fully adequate and available. Breaking stock supplies were adequate for the light demand. Light type hen supplies continued fully adequate to ample.

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds remained light and typical of midweek activity. Offerings were fully sufficient to handle current inquiry. Live supplies were moderate; weights were mostly desirable to heavy. Processing schedules were moderately heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 56 to 70 cents. Trade sentiment continued mostly steady. In the parts complex, wings were in good balance. Other items were in a range of adequate to ample for a generally lacklustre buying interest.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, MO
Wed, Apr 22, 1998

USDA-MO Dept. Ag Market News

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Grain and soybean bids were moderately to sharply lower, today, as good weather forecasts and some profit taking on the Boards pressured markets. Wheat 1 to 5 cents lower. Corn 3 to 6 cents lower. Sorghum 8 cents lower. Soybeans 10 to 14 cents lower. Wheat bids dropped moderately lower despite good overnight export sales. Favorable growing weather in winter wheat areas and spurts of fund selling weighed on bids. Additional weakness was due to large stocks figures for World and US wheat. Sharp declines in corn and soybean bids are seen as traders made corrections after yesterday's sharp increases and profit taking was noted on the board. A pick up in spring planting and weather forecasts for continued nice conditions were also pressure factors. Small ex- port purchase by Korea, limited declines in corn bids. Soybeans exports however, continue nil for the week.

Get An Egg Up On Production With Southern States Pullet & Layer Feeds.

You don't get ahead by standing still. To boost egg production and profits, it pays to depend on the "egge-traordinary" advanced feeds and services of Southern States.

A leader in poultry nutrition and research, Southern States improves hen productivity with advanced pullet and layer feed formulas. These formulas stimulate early feed consumption and a smooth transition from pullet feeds to layer rations. They also help control excess moisture and reduce phosphorous in manure for a cleaner, healthier environment.

Southern States stands behind its feeds with superior service. Modern, efficient mills in Hagerstown, Md. and Gettysburg, Pa. assure your access to consistent quality, freshness and competitive pricing. Southern States also offers financial and management services, including flock record keeping and service, egg and spent fowl marketing, forward planning, market forecasting, flexible credit terms, and more.

Depend on the knowledge, service and solutions of Southern States. Call Mike Royal, Manager of Commercial Feed Accounts, today at (804) 281-1261 for more details on the pullet and layer feeds, as well as services, that will give you an egg up on production...and profits.

USDA-OK Dept Ag Market News

Oklahoma National Stockyards - Weekly Cattle Summary

Compared to last week: Feeder steers 1.00-2.00 lower. Feeder heifers steady, except 6 weights 2.00 lower. Demand moderate. Stocker cattle and calves firm with very good demand. Bulk receipts feeder cattle off wheat and rye pastures and these in medium to mostly moderate flesh conditon, end fleshy. Weigh-ups ran complete range of gaunt to full with bulk sales in average fill condition. Genetic quality of supply average, though flesh a limiting price factor to buyers. This week marks the beginning of the May wheat run. Slaughter cows lost last weeks advance and were 2.00-3.00 lower. Slaughter bulls 2.00 lower. Packer demand light to moderate. Total of 325 cows and bulls sold on regular cow turn with 65 percent going to packers. 300 head of pairs and few bred cows from one ranch sold in special sale format. These cows were average to low in quality but with high confidence for soundness as they had been handled on one ranch for year or more. Prices 100-200 dollars per pair over their lower confidence daily sale barn counterparts. Receipts this week 14,935; last week 7,919; last year 13,876. Supply consisted of 82 percent yearlings over 600 lbs; 14 percent calves under 600 lbs; total of 4 percent cows and bulls of which 1.5 percent were packer cows the balance back to country. Prices follow with weighted average weight and price in parenthesis.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

APR. 27-MAY 3, 1998

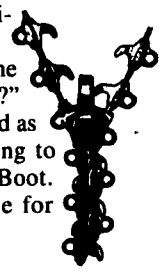
BEFORE THE ZIPPER

April 29, 1913, marked one of several patents on what became the modern-day zipper. It didn't find its name until 1921, when the Goodrich company started trying to advertise its "Mystik Boot with the patented Hookless Fastener. Opens with a pull. Closes with a pull." Bertram G. Work, company president, wanted to give salesmen a better tag, "something to dramatize the way the thing zips. Why not call it the Zipper?" So, in 1923, Zippers were first advertised as being made only by Goodrich, referring to the galoshes, or trademarked Zipper Boot. Zipper later became the generic name for device itself.



Advertisements contain the only truths to be relied on in a newspaper. – Thomas Jefferson

TIP OF THE WEEK

EGGS WITH AVOCADO

1 ripe avocado, peeled and pitted
2 tablespoons butter
4 eggs, beaten
1 tablespoon milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
freshly ground black pepper, to taste

Dice the avocado and sauté it in the butter until barely brown. Combine all the other ingredients, blend well, and pour mixture over the avocado in the skillet. Cook as for an omelet, lifting up and over with a spatula until the eggs are cooked, 3 to 5 minutes.

Makes 2 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

May makes or mars the wheat.

Betwixt April and May if there be rain, 'tis worth more than oxen and wain.

Plant corn now, or lose a bushel a day past the middle of May.

When the mulberry tree grows green, the last of winter's frosts you've seen.

OPINION

Another View Of Farmland Preservation

On 2/2/98 I wrote that there is a better way to preserve farmers and farmland than the current method.

Twenty-three states of the USA now have preservation programs, many based on the perpetual easement concept. However, this is the most expensive method short of fee-simple purchase, and is absolutely unsustainable, besides putting all future generations under the thumb of "preservation boards."

In Pennsylvania, a $100 million bond issue 10 years ago has grown into a $220 million expenditure but has only preserved 1 percent of the farmland!!! That is one-tenth percent per year, which will take ONE THOUSAND YEARS to complete!!!!! Can there be a more foolish program than this?

Instead, shorten the term from "perpetual" so that each generation pays its own way, instead of the current generation paying for all future generations' interest in these insignificant parcels, that only tend to attract development to their borders anyway, because some people want to live next to a "preserved" farm!! Some "clever" but not too ethical landowners have figured out how to put part of their property into a permanent easement, then sell lots on their adjoining property!!

The Lancaster County (PA, USA) Farm Bureau has had a policy opposing the current program for over eight years, and came up with a plan as follows:

Design an annually rolling five-year program that would provide a tax credit for those who agree to not develop their enrolled land for five years, and each year when property taxes come due, the owner would decide whether to renew one more year in order to get the tax credit, or drop out, paying the full tax for five consecutive years. This kind of planning window would provide the community with an excellent guide to where landowners intend to keep their land in farming for the next five years, providing plenty of time to adjust to changes that may be coming. The value of the tax credit would be set by the taxing authority at a level to reach their goals of the percentage of land they want enrolled. There would be no fear of crisis of lost farmland, because plenty of notice would be given for any enrolled property, allowing neighbors to buy the property, or in any other legitimate way, prepare for a change in use of the property. Eighty percent of farmland could be enrolled annually for the same cost as 8 farms per 1,000 in the current program!!

In Pennsylvania, 40,000 farms could participate for the same cost as 40 farms in perpetual easements per year across the whole state, the current rate.

Planning commissions would have an excellent tool based on each landowner's personal decision on how they plan to use their property for the next five years, instead of attempting to impose the iron fist of government and steal the rights with ever more stringent zoning, which always backfires.

Could you have a more democratic form of government than this plan would provide? The Pennsylvania Landowners' Association endorses this concept fully, as well.

To Control Herbicide Drift

The increased use of post applied herbicides has brought the issue of herbicide drift to the top of the list of concerns related to the use of pesticides, according to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent.

Due to the nature of applying sprays, it will be impossible to completely eliminate the problem of drift. However, applicators may reduce the risk by using appropriate equipment and basic knowledge.

It is normally considered that droplets less than 200 microns in size pose a risk to drift. Based on research done by Dr. Robert Hartzler, he found nozzle type and pressures had a significant influence on drift potential. His research showed that the drift guard and turbo teejet nozzles produced less drift than the flat fan nozzle. Increasing spray pressures increases the number of small drift able droplets.

Pesticide applicators should take steps to ensure that spray equipment is set up properly to minimize drift by selecting the best nozzle, spray pressure and boom height. Also, weather conditions must be considered and avoid spraying on windy days.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "If you do not discipline yourself, someone else will do it for you."

To Check Electric Fencers

Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent, reminds us to make sure your electric fencer is charging your fence and not your barn. The electric fence chargers we are using today are much more powerful than the ones we have used in the past.

To get the electricity to the fence and to keep it from straying into the barn, the fencers need to be well grounded and the hot wire needs to be properly insulated. Refer to your operator's manual for proper installation, grounding and operating procedures.

To Prevent Stray Voltage From Fencers

Improperly installed and maintained electric fencers could cause stray voltage on your farm, reminds Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent. Some good precautions to prevent this are: Keep the grounding rods well away from the barn, the diesel shed and water pipes.

Use 3 to 5 deep grounding rods rather than one rod. One way to do this would be to run two wires to the fence, the hot wire and the ground wire on insulators. Keep them well separated.

Drive a series of ground rods adjacent to the fence posts where they will be out of the way. and Keep the hot wire away from other objects that can pick up voltages and convey it to unwanted areas like pipes, cooper tubes, wires, equipment, ground rods, etc.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

FREE INDEED!
April 26, 1998

Background Scripture:
John 8:12-59
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 51:1-9

There's a story about a little boy who passed his neighbor on the sidewalk. "I'm running away from home!" the little boy announced as he sped off. Minutes later the neighbor saw the little boy coming up the sidewalk from the opposite direction. As he passed the neighbor he said again, "I'm running away from home!" Soon the boy was seen to be approaching again and this time the neighbor stopped him to ask, "If you're running away from home, why do you continue to run around the block?" Looking at the neighbor in disbelief, the boy explained, "Cause I'm not allowed to cross the street!"

I like that story because it illustrates something I've learned over the years; no freedom is absolute and when we have reached what we think is freedom, we may have simply attained a state of bondage on a less obvious level. We are a lot like that little boy, forever running away from home, but getting nowhere because we aren't allowed to cross the street.

In John 8 we find the critics of Jesus confidently discussing "truth" and "freedom" without really knowing what it is like to personally know either of them. Like the old farmer once explained, "You can't describe a place you ain't never been." So often, that is what is happening when we talk confidently about "truth" and "freedom."

WALKING IN DARKNESS

It all begins in John 8 when Jesus proclaims, "I am the light of the world; he who follows me will not walk in darkness, but will have the light of life" (8:12). Immediately the Pharisees pounce on him, "You are bearing witness to your self; your testimony is not true." They contest what Jesus is saying because they reject him, but Jesus tells them that what he says it true because it comes, not from him but God. Surely, if they knew God, they would recognize what Jesus is saying as true.

Of course, that's the hand part, isn't it? How can we be sure we know God? Jesus replies to us as well as them: "if you knew me, you would know my Father also" (8:19). This is what Jesus meant when he said that he is the light of the world. He illuminates the darkness that surrounds the nature of God. When we know what Jesus is about, we also know what God is like. All that I think that I know about God is what I have seen in the life and words of Jesus. There are lots of things I do not know about Jesus and his Son, but what I do perceive is enough life for me to live hopefully and faithfully.

This light that Jesus shines on God the Father gives me the only possible capacity for true freedom. As Jesus tells his followers: "If you continue in my word, you are truly my disciples, and you will know the truth, and the truth will make you free" (8:21,22). Their reply is indignant: "We are descendants of Abraham and have never been in bondage to anyone. How is it that you say, 'You will be made free?'" (8:33).

WHO ME, IN BONDAGE?

I can hear us saying something similar. "I'm a descendant of John Wesley, how can you say I'm in bondage?" "I'm a disciple of John Calvin, what do you mean I'm not free?" "I'm a Roman Catholic, how can you make me more free?" Actually, Jesus is telling them, "truth" and "freedom" are not so much in what they say they believe, but in what they do about it. "If you were Abraham's children, you would do what Abraham did, but now you seek to kill me, a man who has told you the turth which I heard from God" (8:39,40). If the life doesn't match the words, the words are a lie.

As I write these words the whole world waits to see whether we will once again go to war with Saddam Hussein. The other day my wife, Valere, told an audience that as Christians we ought to pray for Saddam and the people were shocked. Pray for such a man as he? But isn't that what Christ has taught us to do with our enemies? If we, are true disciples of Jesus Christ, how can we curse those who are our enemies? Is it because we believe that God is incapable of changing the heart of this tyrant?

"So if the Son makes you free, you will be free indeed." Only in Jesus Christ can we know real freedom — from hate and prejudice, from judging when we ought to be blessing, from despair when God offers us hope. Only when Christ has freed us from that kind of bondage can we be free indeed!

Farmland Industries Announces $49 Million Special Distribution

WICHITA, Kan. — The nation's largest farmer-owned cooperative will return an additional $49 million in a special equity redemption to members this week, its chief executive announced during the Kansas Governor's Conference on Agriculture.

Farmland Industries president and chief executive officer H.D. "Harry" Cleberg reported that the cooperative's board of directors has approved distributing $49 million to nearly 1,000 local farmer-owned cooperatives and more than 8000 independent livestock producers in 39 states. The special redemption is in addition to $57.5 million paid to members in cash patronage and equity redemptions in December 1997, after Farmland's fiscal year closed. It brings total disbursements to Farmland members to more than $300 million over the past five years.

"This is the first time in our 70-year history that we've made a cash distribution in addition to the regular fiscal year distribution," reported Cleberg. "In just three months, we have returned more than $100 million to our members."

Cleberg said the special redemption was a decision made by Farmland's board of directors to help maintain proportionality in its base capital plan which is designed to assure that Farmland's member-ownership is proportional to their business volume. A significant number of overfunded members will receive checks in varying amounts consistent with this principle.

Farmland's membership, consisting of 1,400 local farmer-owned cooperatives and 13,000 independent livestock producers, earns equity in Farmland, not by purchasing shares but by doing business through Farmland, either by buying agricultural inputs or by selling livestock and grain. Farmland allocates its profits back to these owners in the form of patronage refunds, paid partly in cash and partly in equity. The announcement reflects a payout of a significant amount of overfunded equity.

"This is a sign of Farmland's strength and commitment to its members," said Cleberg. "Let there be no question: Farmland truly is 'proud to be farmer-owned'."

Farmland Industries, Inc. Kansas City, Mo., is the largest farmer-owned cooperative in North America and one of the top 200 Fortune 500-listed companies. In 1997, company sales of $9.1 billion encompassed all 50 states and 80 countries. When including third-party sales of Farmland's venture businesses and the gross sales of its international grain marketing subsidiary, total sales exceeded $11.7 billion.

DON'T LET $6 STAND BETWEEN YOUR ROUNDUP READY SOYBEANS AND MAXIMUM WEED CONTROL.

A tankmix of PURSUIT® herbicide and 1 pint of Roundup Ultra * herbicide is simply the best total post weed control combination for your Roundup Ready soybeans, and American Cyanamid is making it better by knocking $6.00† per acre†† off the cost. Not only can you get a great deal, you can get early-season and residual control of weeds that rob yield potential from your soybeans. And that can add up to a yield advantage of 3.2 bushels per acre‡ with early application timing. See your Cyanamid AgriCenter™ dealer for full details. Now there's no reason not to get weed control, higher yields and savings with a tankmix of PURSUIT and 1 pint of Roundup Ultra.

OPEN RESIDUAL CONTROL™ Pursuit® herbicide

Visit our Web site, The GROWER CENTER™ at www.cyanamid.com. Or call 1-800-942-0500.

American Cyanamid will pay for 1 pint of Roundup Ultra * herbicide per acre to participating growers of Roundup Ready soybeans. The amount paid by Cyanamid will vary according to the Cyanamid products purchased and the prices charged by the dealer for Roundup Ultra. ‡Acre calculation is based on 1.33 ounces of PURSUIT DG herbicide tank mixed with 1 pint of Roundup Ultra. Based on 200 side by side trials weed-free from the start. Trials included Cyanamid IMI® residual programs such as SQUADRON® PURSUIT® PLUS, STEEL® or PURSUIT. Always read and follow label directions. Trademarks: American Cyanamid Company. 1998. *Roundup Ultra and Roundup Ready are trademarks of Monsanto Company.

Apply compost and organic mulch to any row crop automatically

The versatile Millcreek Row Mulcher makes different sized mulch beds as you need, from 18" to 48" wide, from 1/2" to 10" deep A mulching program can help you produce a healthier crop while reducing pesticide requirements

From tree fruit to vegetable beds, from bramble crops to vineyards, organic mulch and compost can reduce chemical input for weed suppression, retain soil moisture, and improve soil fertility by adding organic matter to sandy and clay soils

Now Millcreek eliminates the costly labor needed for organic mulch and compost application The remarkable new Millcreek Row Mulcher works with all types of organic material, and even lets you adjust the depth and width of the mulch rows

Starting under $5000, no other machine compares when it comes to capabilities, versatility, and cost effectiveness Rugged construction Five sizes, from 3 4 to 13 cubic yard capacity Custom designs Call today for a free color brochure, or to discuss your specific needs

Maryland Brown Swiss Breeders Meet To Review Year

CYNTHIA L. WARNER
President, MD/Brown Swiss Association

WOODSBORO, Md. — A large crowd of 105 Brown Swiss breeders, friends, and dairy personnel, recently gathered for the Annual Meeting of the Maryland Brown Swiss Association, held in Woodsboro, Maryland to review and congratulate members and youth on the past year's accomplishments. This well attended meeting continues to show the great interest, enthusiasm, and progress of Brown Swiss in Maryland.

Besides posting another successful year throughout state and National activities, Dr. Lee Majeskie, Extension Dairy Specialist with University of Maryland, presented an exciting DHI summary which ranked Brown Swiss at the top of the list for ECM (Energy Corrected Milk) among all breeds in the 1997 totals. Brown Swiss had a +2500 lb. ECM increase for 1997 which gave them a total of 21,220 ECM. This was 540 pounds more than their next competitor which was Holstein, who only saw a +1110 lb. ECM increase for their breed in 1997. Energy Corrected Milk formula takes into account the protein and fat when adjusting the milk for components which identifies cows that produce high volumes of milk solids, proving that Brown Swiss remain very competitive in the milk marketplace when compared to other breeds.

Highlighting this part of the program was the Herd Management Award Winner going to Scott and Judy Hood, Middletown, Md. Dr. Majeskie commented this award goes to someone that "is doing a lot of things right." The Hoods have 23 cows with 23,846 ECM 81.7 percent Low SCC which gave them the high amount of points to win this prestigious award. Milk Production Award for high herd for 10 cows or more went to Eric Green, Fir-Thorne-B, wiht a 24,779 ECM on 36 cows. Winning the high herd for nine cows or less was Brian Galbreath, Green Castle Swiss, with 20,050 ECM. And repeat winners for Low Somatic Cell Count Award went to Joy and Tom Crothers, Oxford.

Jr. 2-year-old: Dublin Hills Star Susie, Aimee Smith

Sr. 2-year-old: Hoosier Knoll Ballet, Aimee Smith

4-year-old: Tahill Jade Eve: Shannon Harrison

5-year-old: Arnola Samie: GS Associates

6-year and older: Hawthorne Jades Robin : Dwayne Bell

Another highlight of the meeting was an update on the Brown Swiss and Ayrshire "Co-Convention being planned for 1999. Maryland is excited about hosting this important event, and received a great editorial comment in the February 10, 1998 Hoard's Dairyman — whereas it said "Bravo to the Brown Swiss and Ayrshire Associations for planning joint annual meetings in Maryland. Why haven't some of the other breeds held meetings together for which they could consolidate the awkward begging for sponsorships, put together more high-powered educational sessions, and exchange ideas as dairy producers and members of breed association staffs? (This is just a paragraph of the article entitled "Dairy Groups Can't Afford Luxury of Not Working Together.") It's a great article to read, supporting the 1999 Co-Convention being planned in Maryland!

An exciting Convention logo was introduced by Brown Swiss co-chairman Bill Warner, and Ayrshire co-chairman, Becky Chaney to the group which was well received. The logo has the Brown Swiss and Ayrshire head shots within an oval, highlighted by black-eyed susans on each end, and the word MARYLAND at the top, and a slogan at the bottom saying "A Shared Vision-'99." Several promotional items were displayed with this logo — which really reproduces well in full color on all kinds of shirts, canvas bags, etc.

The convention will be held July 14-17, 1999 at the Turf Valley Conference Center, Ellicott City, which is near Baltimore Maryland. This facility is very accommodating to handle separate breed association meetings and activities, and is well equipped to handle a large combined welcome reception for both breeds. Just 20 minutes from Baltimore's Harborplace and 50 minutes from Washington, D.C., close to major airports, and also just minutes from the Howard County Fairgrounds where both breeds will have their National Sales, Ayrshire Sale on Friday night, and Brown Swiss on Saturday. Convention meetings and committees are beginning to formulate between both breeds to plan, coordinate, and execute an outstanding convention for everyone.

John Meyer, executive secretary for the National Brown Swiss Association sent his congratulations and greetings to the Maryland Annual meeting. He commended Maryland on their leadership in the Brown Swiss breed, and encouraged the youth to keep up the good work. Meyer assured the breeders that the financial picture continues to improve, whereas they have reduced expenses dramatically, and the board of directors have a plan to carry out which will surely put the Association back in the "black ink" by 1998! The Brown Swiss Advantage Program is really catching on, and is a great bargain in gaining services from Brown Swiss. Meyer also reported that there is still a lot of work to do, but the market continues to be strong in the U.S. and also in the international marketplace. Evans Wright, national district director also sent an optimistic message to the group. He foresees the dairy compact legislation actions as a positive force which should indicate more stable and profitable prices for 1998. As a board member, he commends Meyer for developing a well

THE CORN HERBICIDE NAMED FOR HOW IT WORKS.

FulTime™
HERBICIDE

Farmers who use it say FulTime™ herbicide is the most effective premix for grass and broadleaf weed control. Even in heavy residue no-till and reduced-till fields. It only requires 1/4" of moisture for activation. And FulTime can be applied weeks before planting. The encapsulated acetochlor gives full-season, timed-release control of grasses as well as small-seeded broadleaf weeds, including resistant lambsquarters, waterhemp and pigweed. The atrazine provides burndown and added performance on large-seeded broadleaf weeds. Ask your full-service crop protection dealer/applicator for FulTime. Or call our Information Hotline at 1-800-759-2500.

Land O'Lakes CEO Outlines Vision For The Future

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — In a speech focusing on Land O'Lakes vision for the future, the national food and agricultural cooperative's President and Chief Executive Officer Jack Gherty not only outlined the organization's key strategies for ongoing success, but announced a new feed joint venture and unification talks with a major West Coast dairy cooperative.

Gherty opened his remarks to the nearly 3,000 delegates and visitors at Land O'Lakes annual meeting by citing four 1997 achievements which helped position Land O'Lakes for future success: the growth of Land O'Lakes aligned pork production system; the merger with Atlantic Dairy Cooperative; record volumes and continued market share growth in the Agronomy area; and the acquisition of Alpine Lace, a leading deli cheese company.

Land O'Lakes is absolutely committed to the development of a world-class aligned pork production system, "offering independent producers a viable alternative to the growing force of large, vertical integrators," Gherty told the Minneapolis Convention Center audience, adding that this goal will be accomplished by delivering genetically superior and consistent feeder pigs to independent producers through local cooperatives.

Land O'Lakes fast-growing pork production system will not only protect the interests of independent producers, but also the cooperative system's feed assets, Gherty said.

Discussing the 1997 merger with Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, Gherty said it not only doubled Land O'Lakes milk production and improved access to key East Coast markets, but also "represented important progress in the establishment of a truly national dairy sourcing and production system — which is absolutely essential to our ability to leverage our national marketing system into increased returns for members."

Continued growth in Agronomy (plant food and crop protection products) market share is vital in an industry where market share, critical mass and economies of scale are essential to effectively and economically meeting customer needs, Gherty said.

Moving on to the Alpine Lace acquisition, Gherty said it increased Land O'Lakes number-one market share in the deli cheese category from 13 percent to 17 percent, adding that, "As industry after industry consolidates, it is becoming even more important to solidify our position in value-added, branded categories."

Gherty continued his focus on the future, outlining six major trends he said will shape the new era in which agriculture and agribusiness must operate. Those trends included:'

- the continued restructuring of agriculture;
- the withdrawal of government from the marketplace;
- ongoing economic globalization and consolidation;
- the increased importance of value-added products in world agricultural markets;
- the explosive advance of technology; and
- the growing importance of knowledge workers.

Land O'Lakes has strategies in place for continued success in a marketplace shaped by those trends, Gherty said.

"In Agronomy, we will continue our passion for growth," he said, adding that key strategies include: facilitating local cooperative retail acquisitins; expanding direct partnering with local cooperatives; exploring ways to work with other regional cooperatives; and expanding the cooperative system's plant food production capacity.

"In Feed, we will remain committed to system focus," Gherty said, "and to working with local cooperatives to be the best feed company in the world."

Land O'Lakes Feed strategies include restructuring its Upper Midwest feed system; expanded partnering with local cooperatives; and working with other regional cooperatives to become a truly national feed organization.

Land O'Lakes also is committed to continuing its growth and momentum in the development of an aligned pork production system, Gherty said, adding that the cooperative will "explore ways to leverage our pork production strength and food industry knowledge into a strong position in the pork marketing arena."

In Seed, Gherty said Land O'Lakes is committed to remaining a world leader in alfalfa research and production, as well as to "delivering the best ideas in seed genetics to members."

Key to accomplishing those strategies will be leveraging the Seed Division's alignment with Land O'Lakes Feed operations, the Cenex/Land O'Lakes Agronomy Company and the local cooperative distribution system.

In Dairy Foods, Land O'Lakes is committed to aggressive, focused growth.

"We are already a national marketing company," Gherty said. "To add maximum value for our dairy producers, we must build a national sourcing and production system."

In pursuit of that goal, Land O'Lakes is currently involved in unification talks with Dairyman's Cooperative Creamery Association, a major California dairy cooperative, Gherty announced.

Land O'Lakes Dairy Foods' strategies also include aggressive growth in such areas as fluid dairy and next-generation whey fractions.

Gherty concluded by stressing that Land O'Lakes strategies for the future are based on a "passion for performance and a commitment to serving customer and shareholder needs."

Land O'Lakes, Inc. is a national food and agricultural cooperative. It is a leading marketer of dairy products across the U.S.; serves international customers with a variety of food and animal feed products; and is owned by and provides family farmers and member cooperatives in the U.S. with an extensive line of feeds, seed, plant food and crop protection products.

Maryland Brown Swiss Breeders Review Year

thought out business plan for the association, and sees a lot of exciting things happening for Brown Swiss in the future.

Also on the program was an update on the upcoming Mid Atlantic Brown Swiss Calf Sale to be held on Saturday, April 25, at the Frederick Fairgrounds, 10:30 a.m. Dennis Smith from the sale committee reported this is the best line-up of calves we've had for the sale. Many are sisters to All-Americans, National Bell Ringers, show winners, and production winners. "There's a great selection of September, December, and June calves, as well as several March calves consigned to the sale," said Smith. For more information, contact Cindy Warner at 301-371-5206.

Norma Fleming and Becky Chaney recognized and gave awards to the Maryland Brown Swiss Juniors. Show results were announced and Maryland Junior Bellringers were awarded. Also, the record book winners were: Junior-Catherine Purdue; Intermediate-Amanda Stowers; and the Senior-Amanda Valentine. The Sweepstakes winner went to Chris Keilholtz. The Scholarship for this year was given to Shanna Smith, who is attending Frederick Community College. Also recognized for their top fund-raiser of selling Wolfgang candy was Jason Fleming for being the top seller, and Chad Stocks was the second highest.

Each year the Junior Association makes a special award to people that have helped them through the year, been committed to the Juniors, and always supportive when needed. This year's special honor went to Harold and Peggy Long, and to Robert and Madeline Valentine.

The Maryland Junior officers are: president-Robert Sigler; vice president-Shanna Smith; secretary-Amanda Valentine; treasurer-Norma Fleming; reporters-Laura Sigler and Amanda Stowers; historians-Smith and Kolb families.

Concluding the program was the election of officers. They are as follows: president-Cindy Warner; vice president-Dennis Smith; secretary-Julie Mayer; treasurer-Daphne Sigler; directors-Mike Birch, Allen Bassler, Brad Garst, Jennifer Keilholtz.

Gary, Barbara Lentz Dream-On Holsteins

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HAMLIN (Lebanon Co.) — In February at the 1998 Pennsylvania Holstein Association convention, Gary and Barbara Lentz of the Hamlin area were named the recipients of its Distinguished Young Breeder Award.

That means that the Lentz family is to represent the state Holstein breeders' organization at the national convention, late June in Louisville, Kentucky, where they are to compete for the national title.

The competition is stiff, but not intense, from the Lentzes' point of view.

Gary and Barbara are strong promoters of their animals, and being named as the national Holstein distinguished young breeders would bring additional recognition to their farm.

That is important, because they merchandise their registered stock.

They know that across the nation's dairy producing communities, there are other young adults exposed to the same management and farming ideas founded upon university and industry research.

The Lentzes have used that information to design their current farming operation.

They also know that they didn't invent the concept of a family farm, or community involvement.

The bottom line is, winning a national title isn't tantamount to their happiness, they said.

They may be somewhat disappointed if they don't win, but not upset or angry.

Their happiness, they said, comes from their religious faith, and from the life they have been allowed to build with their family and their community, through farming and volunteering.

As a couple, they said the most important thing that national recognition could bring to their family is a heightened sense of accomplishment, and a confidence-boost to the feeling that they are doing things that best ensure a future for their children, the family, and the farm.

The contest application the Lentz family completed is not some essay of fluff, but a description of the registered Holstein dairy farm operation they have built and the things they consider in managing the farm.

"It was worth it just to fill out the application," Barbara said. "It made us sit down and see where we would like to be."

The application requests specific farm information that ideally is used to gauge operational success and management achievements.

For example, their Breed Age Average (BAA) is 106.8; their goal is a BAA of 109.

Their first calvings have been averaging 26 months, the first calf heifers have averaged 1,300 pounds when giving birth. The goal is to calve at 24 months on average, at the same weight.

Their records show they have been culling 41 percent for dairy, low production and reproduction problems. The goal is to make that a 35 percent cull rate.

Their merchandising income represents 8 percent of the farm income. The goal is to boost the merchandising income to 15 percent.

They've been spending about .3-percent of their farm income on promotion. The goal is to increase that to 1-percent of farm income.

Characteristic of the Lentzes outlook is the name of their farm: Dream-On Holsteins.

That's not Count-On Holsteins, or Bank-Roll Holsteins.

Gary got started farming on his own in June 1980, entering into a joint-venture with a Jonestown man who had a farm for rent. Gary supplied labor and cows, and the landowner supplied the barn and feed.

Gary and Barbara married Sept. 27, 1980, starting the name, "Dream-On Holsteins," inspired by a then-popular country song by the Oak Ridge Brothers.

On the cover of a homemade farm brochure they created several years ago, when they served as host to the county Holstein club's annual field night activities, there is an illustration of a man sitting on a milking stool next to a loose-boned, old looking Holstein bossy.

The man has a hand to his face and there is a dream cloud above his head, inside of which is an illustration of an ideal Holstein cow.

That is the core dream — to be able to breed a better Holstein.

That is the dream supporting the other dreams. It is the dream of a way to earn a decent living doing something enjoyable that benefits community and family and self.

It is the dream of discovering a way to find the best fit for all involved — one in which the community gets a good neighbor, who is not a burden, who provides a reliable, wholesome product, and who provides a good example for children (own and others); while the good neighbor gets to enjoy community support and respect, a decent living, other supportive relationships, and a decent family life in an atmosphere of health and nurturing, and an educational, wholesome and healthy living experience for themselves and children.

"We had big dreams then, when we started," Gary said.

But getting to this part of their dream took effort, luck of good timing, as well as a healthy dose of conservative business discipline to better ensure that the couple would be ready for opportunities.

They were ready when the family farm came up for sale.

The family farm, where today the couple resides, was rented out until 1988, when Gary and Barbara were able to purchase it.

Although it took him some time to come back home, Gary grew up on the farm that his family originally purchased through his grandparents, Elmer and Verda Gibbel.

The Gibbels started farming the Swatara Creek bank land with 10 milking cows, and cash crops, growing up to 6,000 bushels of potatoes one year, as well as doing some custom work.

In 1935, Gary's grandparents purchased an adjoining small farm bringing the total to 145 acres. Gary's parents, Ray and Minerva Lentz purchased the farm in 1959, and they dairy farmed with a loose housing setup and a double-6 milking parlor.

From 1970 to 1978, Gary's brother Robert operated the farm. After finishing high school, Gary went to work for his brother.

Later, he worked a year for the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd

In the milkhouse, Barbara Lentz holds baby Colin and says that the sounds of the pulsators seem to sooth infants, at least as well as other sounds used by mothers to lull babies to rest.

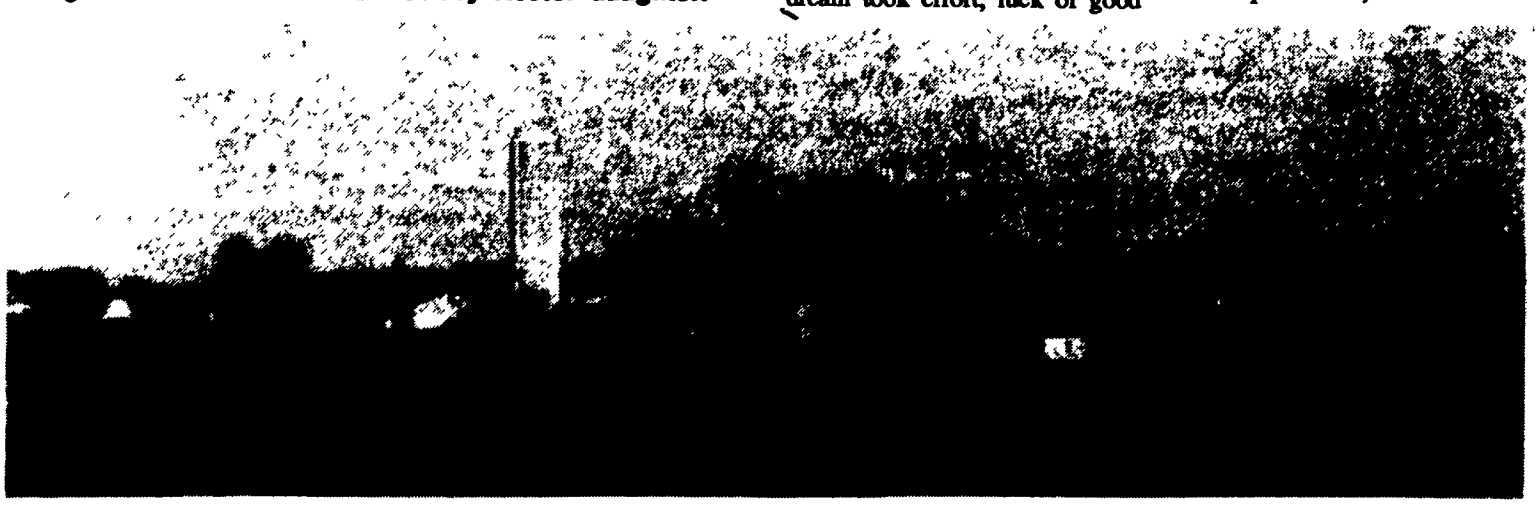
This 85-point registered Holstein, Humor, is one of the upcoming stars at Dream-On Holsteins. She is an Elton daughter out of a Dream-On Cubby Hector daughter.



Looking south across some of their crop fields, Dream-On Holsteins is laid out fairly well and simply. From the left is the milking cow tie-stall barn (manure pit on the far side of milking barn), including milking house, feed room and silo. Equipment storage hides calf and younger heifer facilities. Also shown is an outbuilding and the main family house.

Improvement Association (Pa.DHIA) as a milk tester.

"I wouldn't give up that experience," Gary said, explaining how working as a milk tester provided him with an inside look at a number of dairy operations, allowing him to consider some of the methods, techniques and systems that were being used and what might work for him on his farm.

He said he gained a lot of respect for the work of milk testers, now called technicians, because of being on-call, working all-hours and long hours, and travelling fairly great distances during any given week.

Then he worked for his cousin Dennis Wampler for a year.

After Robert left the family farm in 1978, the home farm was used as a tenant farm until 1988, when Gary and Barbara purchased the home farm.

Barbara grew up on a nearby dairy farm. Her maiden name was Sattazahn, fairly well known locally as a family involved in dairying and community activities.

Currently used to house dry cows and older heifers, this barn and manure lagoon facility is the site of the original Lentz family farm along the Swatara Creek in Lebanon County.

The Lentzes' children are Katie, 13, who has served as a county Lil' dairy miss to help promote milk; Dustin, 9, who helps feed calves and likes to play basketball (there's a net on a wall near the feed room); and baby Colin, 9 months, who has already been acclimated to the cows, barn and milkhouse (the sounds of the milkhouse seem to work well for soothing infants).

For the farming operation, they own 135 acres and rent about 40 acres for additional corn and alfalfa. Planting is done through a custom operator. Gary and Barbara do everything else themselves.

Up until September, for eight years they had a full-time hired man to help operate the farm. Gary said they decided not to replace him, but instead depend upon family labor. That would take their milk production per man to their goal of 1.5 million gallons per person.

They milk the herd twice-per-day, and ship to Wengert's Dairy, recently purchased by the national Dean Foods Inc., though it is to retain local processing, management and identity.

In September 1988, after buying the original family farmstead land, the Lentzes built their current 70-head tie-stall barn with gravity gutters and manure storage. In January of 1989 they moved the cows into the new barn.

The cows had to be moved from the rented farm into their new barn in order to warm the new barn enough to turn on the water, so the pipes wouldn't freeze.

They said they were fortunate that the cows took readily to their new facilities.

The new barn is a 1988-modern, low-ceilinged tie-stall facility with an extra wide alley and raised beds.

The milking cows are almost always confined, and the mattresses and sawdust bedding keep them comfortable, clean and healthy.

Though they built the barn just prior to the promotion of tunnel ventilation for dairy barns. Gary said that it seems as though whenever anyone makes a commitment to build something that is cutting edge technology, within a short time there is something new that is supposed to do a better job.

In 1995 the Lentzes were able to retrofit the barn with fans to achieve good air flow.

The original farm's cow barn actually sat on the bank of the Swatara Creek. It is now rebuilt and used for a dry cow and heifer facility, after a 1991 fire destroyed it and 10 heifers.

When his grandparents farmed, like most other small farms in Pennsylvania, the barnyard connected to the creek and the manure from the small herd went into the creek.

The dry cow and heifer barn now has its own cement manure lagoon, as does the main barn, which is located farther away from the heifer barn, as well as being uphill, and across the road from the stream and floodplain.

Their farm was included in past county conservation tours, because of the effectiveness of the manure storage facilities, and because it is an example of cost-sharing project possibilities through the Chesapeake Bay program.

In June 1992, the Lentzes also built a new open front young heifer barn, as well as a calf weaning barn and a feed room.

They feed a totally mixed ration, which is almost a given these days with good herds.

They have a good herd.

The rolling herd average is in the high 20,000-pound range and they have won the state Holstein progressive genetics herd award for seven years, and the progressive breeders registry award for four years.

They also did well breeding index cows and selling bulls into artificial insemination.

Dream-On Holsteins

The Hazel cow family genetics at the farm continue. The Hazel family started with San-Bo Tradition Harriett, a gold medal dam and a dam of merit.

She was purchased as a calf from Gary's brother Robert.

The queen of the family is Dream-On Mark Hazel, a 2E-90 percent dam of merit. There were 14 bulls sold from this family into artificial insemination service.

Dream-On Herod was her Leadman son released for service in 1995 by Sire Power that was the first proven. According to their contest application, "(Sire Power has) sold semen (from Herod) all across the world and have brought many, many visitors from around the world through our barn to inspect the family.

They also had Dream-On Melvin Angel a 2E-93 cow with a record over 41,000 pounds milk.

"This has been gratifying to us. Registered Holsteins will definitely have a future on our farm."

Thus far, all the bulls sold were out of cows bred by the Lentzes.

Gary said that while this practice carries with it fluctuations in interest in the herd, as some of the outstanding cows come and go, breeding his own cattle for merchandising is less risky than purchasing high-indexing cows in the hope that they can be used for merchandising.

"Our philosophy is that the milk check should pay the bills and make a living," he said.

The many visitors to the farm have been something of a treat for the Lentzes, on top of the merchandising interest.

Since they started farming, the couple has not traveled far or often. Instead the world has come to them.

The trip to Louisville is to be a first for them.

Instead of traveling, Gary and Barbara have been heavily involved in the community and industry organizations.

Gary's a state delegate to the national convention and has served in the past (1993-1995) as a delegate. He is also a 17-year member of the county Holstein club, having served as its president and treasurer. He has chaired the county Holstein sale for several years.

He is also a member of the county DHIA board of directors, Penn State Extension board of directors, and has served as a 4-H leader with the Norlebco Dairy Club. Additionally, he has served as a basketball coach for a youth league, in which his son plays.

Barbara has been involved with the county dairy princess promotion committee, was an initiator and chairperson to get the county milkshake barn up and running to fund the promotion activities, and served as a third-grade Sunday School teacher.

She has also served as treasurer of the parent-teacher organization at the children's elementary school, as well as chairing an annual book fair.

With three children now, and more work at home to replace the hired man, Barbara said she is dropping out of so much community service — she's taking a year off.

But that won't change the fact that they are firm believers in dairy promotion and have opened their farm to numerous tours, especially school children and for the county Farm-City program activities.

They are also firm believers in registered Holsteins, and state so in their contest applications.

"Over the years, we have sold 25 bulls into artificial insemination and a few embryoes overseas. Several females have been exported as well.

"We have bred 11 bulls with proofs in the November sire summary. Out of these, two are in the top 100 TPI list, and are being marketed by their respective artificial insemination (organizations).

"We have always taken an interest in breeding a better cow. If it were not for our registered Holsteins, we never would have sold bulls into A.I.

"Our breeding in the past has provided us with a solid herd, one that we are quite pleased with. But

Liquid Opportunities With AerWay

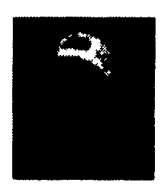
AerWay makes manure nutrient incorporation faster, easier, and more effective

AerWay — Patented AerWay shattertines make it possible



DOUG FILSINGER
Farrow to Finish Hog Operation - Bluevale, Ontario Corn/Bean Rotation

I chose the AerWay because it puts me in control of my liquid manure management system. This is particularly important as my farm is located next to a large Water Resource Shed. Prior to using the AerWay I had problems with soil compaction, manure run-off, ponding and loss of valuable nutrients. We spread between 3000 - 3500 U.S. Gal. per acre. The AerWay helped with the above problems, as well as reducing my tillage, fuel and labour expenses.
With less time spent in the field I am able to spend more time with my Hog Operation. The AerWay blends perfectly with my Conservation and Environmental Farm Plan.

York County Announces Envirothon

YORK (York Co.) — The York County Conservation District has announced its annual countywide Envirothon is to be held at the "Home of the York County Envirothon," the Izaak Walton League grounds outside Dallastown.

The dates for the events are: senior high - April 28; fifth grade - May 5; middle school - May 6; and elementary - May 12. All events begin at 9 a.m. and end by 1:30 p.m.

The Envirothon is an environmental learning competition for third to 12th grade students. Students compete in teams of six and are tested in five areas of the environment: soils, wildlife, aquatics, forestry and current issues.

The winning team of the senior high competition will have the opportunity to compete in state and national competitions held during late spring and summer. Each student receives a tree seedling, ribbon, certificate, lunch, snack and T-shirt. Winners receive trophies, plaques and ribbons.

There are many local businesses and agencies that donate funds or resources which make the Envirothons possible. These sponsors include: Izaak Walton League, Chapter #67, York Water Company, York County Parks and Recreation, Indian Spring Enterprises, P.H. Glatfelter Company, PA Fish and Boat Commission, PA Game Commission, U.S.D.A. - Natural Resource Conservation Service, York County Commissioners, First Capital Engineering, York County Schools, Buchart-Horn Inc., T&J Giftland Trophies, Rutter's Dairy Inc., C.S. Dream-On Holsteins we are finding, as we manage the entire herd, at the top level it is hard to have the deviations necessary for the higher indexes."

Gary said that while they intend to depend upon home breeding decisions to improve the herd, and to continue breeding with top TPI bulls, the deviations necessary for index will probably require them to purchase a few elite females to bring into the herd to use for marketing.

Since starting together in 1980 with the 20 head of registered Holsteins the two acquired through their own 4-H and FFA projects, as well as another 20 cows purchased through a loan from Farm Credit, they were able to pay off their debt and to keep it reasonable.

"Starting out as we did, in the joint venture agreement as we did, and then gradually building up our herd and line of equipment, enabled us to have a manageable debt," Gary stated in the application. "Surprisingly, we had the opportunity to buy my home farm. We were glad we had built up our herd and equipment line and had become debt-free."

Poultry Federation (Council) Holds Fundraiser

united poultry voice. However, we have recently merged with another agricultural association in Pennsylvania which will significantly enhance our ability to protect and support our industry.

"As a Poultry Council in PennAg Industries Association, we will maintain the current federation organizational structure, but as a part of a larger and more influential group," he said.

"Your continuous patronage made this all possible, and we thank you," he said.

The event is normally an evening of fellowship and entertainment, with issues discussed informally.

A large turnout was expected and realized. Following the meal (featuring chicken breast with herbed goat cheese and roasted red peppers, as well as a salad with hard boiled eggs, and an egg-based dessert), the group adjourned to the large ballroom for entertainment.

The entertainment was provided by a singing group that performed songs made popular by the 1960s group, "The Mamas and the Pappas," and also provided by comedian, Dick Hardwick.

Jim Adams, with Wenger Feed Mill, president of the federation and chairman of its board of directors, said, "As most of you are aware, the poultry industry endured another trying year in its efforts to combat the effects of avian influenza. We would like to recognize and thank (state Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr.'s staff and USDA employees for their exceptional help this past year."

Adams also thanked those at the University of Pennsylvania and the Pennsylvania State University laboratory systems who help round out the state laboratory and diagnostics system to create a force to combat animal diseases (and potential human diseases).

"I'd also like to thank some of the unsung heros," Adams said. "Often, when samples are needed for monitoring or research, disinfecting units need to be moved, or difficult producers contacts need to be made, we call on service technicians to do the dirty work.

"When it's 30 degrees outside and a truck need to be disinfected, truck drivers and others are there protecting our industry."

Adams also breifly talked about the merger. "We hope to create a more diverse agricultural organization. We plan to build on that diversity to establish a more united voice for agriculture. As a poultry council, we will continue to work on specific poultry issues while enjoying the expertise and name recognition that the PennAg organization has to offer."

From the left, Pa. Poultry Federation board chairman Jim Adams presents an appreciation award to John Martin for his long-time work as chairman of its Poultry Health Committee.

State Secretary of Agriuclture Samuel Hayes Jr. also briefly addressed the group, announcing the passage of the state budget, calling it, "The best agricultural budget I've seen in my lifetime."

Hayes served from 1970 to 1992 in the state House of Representatives and was Republic leader in the House and instrumental in helping with the early 1980s avian influenza outbreak.

He came out of political retirement at the request of Gov. Tom Ridge to lead the state agricultural department in becoming more responsive to needs of the industry and to help bolster and encourage further growth in agriculture. Overall, the effort is key to the economic vitality of the state.

Hayes thanked legislators for the budget and singled out state Rep. Art Hershey of Chester County and others who were present, and helpful in crafting and passing the budget.

Hayes also talked about the avian influenza outbreak in Pennsylvania over the past year or more and praised the entire community — from industry, to veterinarians, to haulers, local, state and federal governments — for their willingness to work together, openly and honestly to combat the disease.

Hayes also urged the group not to let up on pressure to the federal government to allow Pennsylvania and the rest of the nation to be able to use avian influenza vaccines.

While the USDA has developed vaccine against the strain of avian influenza that has been cropping up in Lancaster County most recently, it is not to be used unless certain thresholds occur whereby the situation would otherwise be complete devastation without it.

"I stand with you shoulder to shoulder," Hayes said, "to bring (the national) health protocol to bring the vaccine. It is a failed poublic policy," he said, that prevents the use of the vaccine.

He reminded the audience that he has petitioned the USDA to allow the vaccine to be used. He urged the audience and industry to do the same.

He also mentioned the trip to Asia and Pacific Rim nations to help boost recognition and demand for Pennsylvania's agricultural products.

He said that when he was in Japan, he was very proud to be representing the Pennsylvania poultry industry, especially the egg industry which has voluntarily adopted a quality assurance program (Egg Quality Assurance Program).

He said he was even more proud when just recently a delegation from Japan came to Pennsylvania to visit and see for themselves how the quality assurance program works in reality.

Hayes also presented Adams with a proclamation from Gov. Tom Ridge officially making May Egg Month, in advance. He read from the proclamation, citing Pennsylvania's world leadership in egg production with about 5.6 billion eggs produced annually valued at hundreds of millions of dollars.

Adams then presented plaques of appreciation to John Martin of Longeneckers Hatchery and to Dr. Dave Cradle for their long-time and continued help, dedication and service to the industry.

Longenecker, who for many years served as chairman of the Poultry Federation's Poultry Health Committee, was recognized for his "unselfish devotion to the matters of poultry health in Pennsylvania." It stated that his "exemplary leadership directly contributed to the effective control and management of transmissible poultry diseases.

Cradle, a long-time poultry researcher, who, Adams joked, has been trying to retire, currently serves as a consultant to the Poultry Council.

He was recognized, "In gratitude for ... service as scientific director of the Pennsylvania Egg Quality Assurance Program. Your advice, counsel, and steady leadership were responsible for the development of the most elaborate food safety program at the producer level, in the United States."

He was also cited by the board of directors for his many efforts to assist with numerous other issues, unrelated to the PEQAP.

National Dairy Shrine Memberships Given

COLUMBUS, Ohio – (March 13, 1998)...The Animal Nutrition and Health Division of Roche Vitamins Inc., Parsippany, N.J. once again has provided lifetime memberships in National Dairy Shrine to all participants in the National Inter-collegiate and National Post-Secondary Dairy Cattle Judging contests.

The contests were held in October in conjunction with World Dairy Expo in Madison, WI. A total of 114 memberships were provided, representing an investment of $5,700.

"National Dairy Shrine is our link to the future of the dairy industry.: explains Eugene Rodberg, Marketing Manager of Roche Vitamins Inc. "Without future dairy producers it's hard for us to have a market for our products. We need to give something back to the industry that has been so kind to us."

"National Dairy Shrine is deeply indebted to the long term commitment Roche Vitamins Inc. has made to our future.; Julie Larson, National Dairy Shrine President, said "Sponsorship of more than 100 lifetime memberships each year sets a solid foundation for membership recruitment annually and also enables the organization to continue to expand services to its members."

National Dairy Shrine, the "Hall of Fame" of the diary industry, has over 15,000 lifetime members located in all to states and many other countries. Its goals are to record dairy history and to honor past, present and future dairy leaders. Several scholarships are provided each year to college students and a museum and visitors' center is maintained at Fort Atkinson,WI.

Penn State Dean Reports Opportunities For Graduating Students

he said. "Fifteen years ago we had no strong communication program for agriculture in the sense of going out and telling the world what we are doing with the resources we get. Now it is important to do this to protect the source base both at the state and the federal levels."

Steele said production agriculture continues to be the major focus of what is done at the college of agricultural sciences. "Our ability to produce food and fiber to sustain our population is front and center of our priorities, he said.

Paul Backman, associate dean of research and graduate education, and Theodore Alter, director of cooperative extension, also gave reports in the college update.

Mel Eckhaus, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau; Jim Shirk, Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry; and Tom Leidy, Eastern Meat Packers Association; gave council member presentations.

Carol Ann Gregg, president of the American Agri-Women and cordinator of the Ag Awareness Foundation, reported on the classroom programs that raise awareness of the food and fiber system. While everyone wants a safe food supply, Gregg said her challenge is to educate people that zero tolerance is not reality.

"Part of our job is to help educate the citizens of Pennsylvania of the importance of agriculture," Gregg said. "Agriculture impacts people individually as well as the economy of the state. When we destroy one producer we have destroyed a whole line of economic activity."

Lisa Holden, assistant professor of the department of dairy and animal science, gave the faculty presentation on the Dairy MAP program. She said this dairy farm management education program has reached 1,200 farmers from 700 farms. The program has helped these dairy farmers focus on business mission statements and goal setting. In recent sessions, the group has visited farms of previous graduates of Dairy MAP to see how lessons learned have been implemented into the farming operations.

In the business meeting, Jim Shirk gave the report for the publicity and promotion committee; Pat Heuser gave the report for the program committee; and Boyd Wolff gave the membership committee report.

President Jack Dreibelbis commended the board of directors and the committee members for their excellent work and reported the formation of a new legislative committee that Dean Girton will chair.

Because the Penn State Library has given top priority to put on microfilm all the volumns of Lancaster Farming, Everett Newswanger, managing editor and council member, lent to the library the first two volumns begining with November 4, 1955 that were missing from the Penn State collection, and presented a check for $2,000 to Dean Steele, earmarked for the microfilming project.

Boyd Wolff presented the college topic presentation on "The International Experience", and small group feedback sessions concluded the all-day program.

Grazing Management Sessions Begin

WILLIAMSPORT (Lycoming Co.) — As local pastures start the growing season, Penn State Cooperative Extension will be initiating its grazing and pasture management series for the season. The sessions will be held on farms throughout the area to give dairy and livestock producers some fresh outlooks on how others are best managing their pastures as a feed resource.

This apporach to animal production often lowers the overall yearly feed bill while maintaining quality animals. Each farm will feature an innovative technique along with a speaker to discuss related issues.

The kickoff meeteing for the sessions will be held on Friday, May 1 at Yoder's Restaurant on Rt. 45 west of Mifflinburg in Union Co. The guest speaker is Craig Williams from Penn State Cooperative Extension in Tioga County. He will be discussing the grazing research he has been conducting the past several years along with its application on several farms he's involved with.

Following the presentations will be a question session and an opportunity to help plan the locations and topics to be covered this year. Reservations are not necessary for the meeting and all are welcome to stay for lunch at Yoder's following the session.

For more information on the series or on grazing and pasture management, contact Tom Murphy at the Penn State Extension Office, (717) 327-2350.

Association Plans Bus Tour

MEDINA, N.Y. – The New York State Farmers' Direct Marketing Association (NYSFDMA) is planning it's 3rd annual summer bus tour on June 30. This year the tour will begin at 9 A.M. at Smith's Family Farm Market in Medina, N.Y. The NYSFDMA will be touring seven farm markets through Orleans and Monroe counties. The stops are designed to showcase an assortment of farm market features. The tour group will see on-premises bakeries, cider presses, ice cream counters, retail greenhouses, and even a petting zoo with a very unique goat run.

For more information about the tour, contact Jeff Smith, NYSFDMA president at (716) 798-3831.

Pennsylvania Jersey Club Holds Convention

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford County
Correspondent

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Emily Norman, of Liberty, Tioga County, was crowned the 1998 Pennsylvania Jersey Queen at the 1998 Pennsylvania Jersey Convention held here April 18.

Jessica Chyle, of Pleasant Mount, Wayne County will serve as the first alternate and Rebecca Cornman, of Boiling Springs, Cumberland County was selected to be the second alternate.

The queen contest was just one of the events held at the annual convention. Members also distributed production awards, a Distinguished Service Award, and hosted the annual convention sale and Pot-of-Gold Sale.

Norman, the daughter of David and Aggie Norman, is a 16-year-old student at Liberty High School. To top the competition, she had to deliver a speech about her experiences with Jerseys and answer an impromptu question.

Norman is no stranger to the Jersey breed. She is a fourth generation Jersey enthusiast on Normandell Farm, where she helps feed the calves, make and feed hay and bed the cows.

When she's not busy on the farm, Norman is active in 4-H, school activities, church activities and is a junior volunteer at Soldiers and Sailors Memorial Hospital in Wellsboro.

"All the responsibilities I've had on the farm have made me the person I am today and have helped me be more dedicated to all of my other activities," said Norman.

Norman, as well as the other five contestants, also were required to answer the impromptu question, "With the year 2000 approaching, what can we do to sell more milk?"

Norman answered, "We have to get out there and promote it. With the dairy princess program, we need to promote the milk and what is in it as far as the nutrients and don't let people focus on the fat."

As the queen, Norman will travel to promote Jerseys at the district shows and at the North American Livestock Exposition in Louisville, Ky., where she will represent Pennsylvania in the National Jersey Queen Contest.

Norman takes over the royal title from 1997 Jersey Queen, Jennifer Harris, Germansville, Lehigh County.

Also competing in the queen contest were Crystal Joy Rassau, of Sarver, Julie Sollenberger, of Spring City, and Melissa Wertz, of Dowingtown.

The Distinguished Service Award was presented to Lester and Ruth Martin of Pleasant Valley Jerseys, Chambersburg. Currently the Martins milk 300 Jerseys and have dedicated their lives to dairying.

The Norman Genetic Award was presented to Ralaine Jerseys, owned by Ray, Elaine, Lori and Leon Sollenberger, of Everett, Pa.. They currently have a herd of 70 milking Jerseys.

Tom Arrowsmith, of Peach Bottom, was named the outstanding young dairyman. He and his family operate Hillacres Farm, where they milk 60 Jerseys.

Junior Achievement Awards were also presented at the convention.

Garnering both the junior scrapbook award and the junior achievement award was Amy Kaucher. Named the senior scrapbook contest winner and the senior achievement winner was Melissa Wertz, of Dowingtown.

Rookie Jersey award winner was Ryan LaTourette.

Production awards were also noted at the convention.

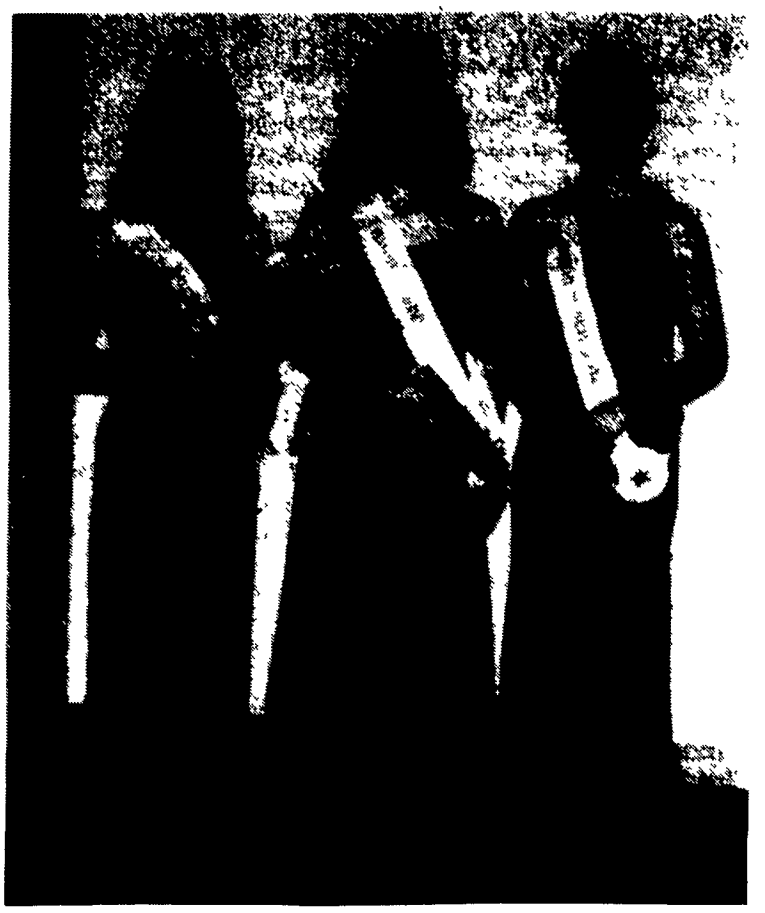
Taking top honors in the youth production contest was Marc Waltemyer, of Lancaster, with Hackline Cliff Dandy, who at 1 year 10 months completed an actual 305-day record of 17,018 pounds of milk, 730 pounds of fat, and 587 pounds of protein.

Second place honors in the youth production contest went to Mark Norman, of Liberty. His cow, Normandell Skyline Wanda, completed her actual 305-day record of 18,019 pounds of milk, 934 pounds of fat, and 712 pounds of protein at 4 years, 2 months of age.

Third place in the production contest went to Melissa Wertz with Damview Brook L. Rachelle, who at three years, two months completed an actual record of 17,641 pounds of milk, 757 pounds of fat and 687 pounds of protein.

High lactation averages by age and cheese yield dollar were also recognized.

The over all high protein cow was Lyon Berretta Bee, owned by Delmar and Rita Wenger of Breezy View Farm in Leola. Her 5-year-old lactation record was 25,462 pounds of milk, 1,022 pounds of fat, and 973 pounds of protein with a cheese yield dollar value of $3,749.



The 1998 Pennsylvania Jersey Queen is Emily Norman, center, who is joined on the left by Jessica Chyle, the first alternate, and on the right by Rebecca Cornman, the second alternate.

The final activity of the weekend was the Pennsylvania Convention Sale and Pot-of-Gold Sale, held at Reich-Dale Farm, Chambersburg.

Pot-of-Gold animals can only be purchased by youth and 25 percent of the gross from the sale is placed in a special fund and is distributed to the youth whose animal made the top production record in her first lactation.

Marc Waltemyer's top production contest entry, Hackline Cliff Dandy, was also a Pot-of-Gold calf which earned him $467.

The second place entry in the Pot-of-Gold competition was Emi-

Lancaster Farmland Trust Matures, Takes Next Steps

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster Farmland Trust, a privately-funded, non-profit land trust, will dramatically increase its farmland preservation pace and outreach efforts during 1998. This decision comes in light of the county's recent designation as one of the world's 100 most endangered sites by the World Monuments Fund (WMF) and the Trust's 10th anniversary. Lancaster Farmland Trust will preserve at least 18 farms and 1,300 acres by year-end, bringing to 100 and 6,500, respectively, the number of farms and acres it has preserved from non-agricultural development. The Turst will also become more active in educating legislators about the need for multi-generational farm tax initiatives and in sponsoring farm estate planning workshops.

"Lancaster County already has preserved more acres of farmland than any other county in the United States, except Carroll County, Maryland, and we plan to double — to 52,000 — the number of acres preserved during this decade," said Tom Stouffer, executive director of Lancaster Farmland Trust. "But given the current demographics and development pressure, we must also take the next logial farmland preservation step — which is saving the farmer as well as the farm."

With 60 percent of Lancaster County's soil rated among the world's most productive, and the county's close proximity to 35 percent and 60 percent of the respective populations of the United States and Canada, Lancaster County is a strategic national food source. Yet, Lancaster County loses more than 1,000 acres of farmland each year to development. And too much of that development can only be characterized by one word: Sprawl.

Lancaster County, township, and borough planning and zoning officials have actively addressed the sprawl issue by designing Urban Growth Boundaries (UGB) throughout the county where housing development can safely occur. Lancaster Farmland Trust supports the UGB concept and believes that it will play an important proactive role in preventing sprawl. Yet, since land can be rezoned, UGBs may themselves sprawl outward over time. Preserved farms, however, can never be developed for non-agricultural purposes. Thus, if Lancaster Farmland Trust can preserve the farms that border UGBs today, it can effectively ensure that Lancaster County's farms are still here for our grandchildren and great-grandchildren to enjoy.

Unfortunately, the pace of farmland loss and resultant suburban and rural sprawl could rise dramatically in coming years because of three factors: 1) Increasing population growth (Lancaster County's population increased by 31,241 between 1990 and 1997); 2) the high quality of life and relatively low cost of living in Lancaster County; and 3) the resultant pressures from surrounding urban areas. Couple these factors with open farmland that has all the qualities builders look for — often to include all too available water and sewer lines — and you have a recipe for land use disaster.

Lancaster Farmland Trust works daily with county farmers to assist them in preserving their lands and way of life. Part of that effort involves building relationships within the agricultural community and working with private citizens and legislators to develop farmer-friendly legislative initiatives. Act 319 (Clean and Green) is a step in the right direction. "We want to ensure that farmers are only taxed on the agricultural value of their land — not on what the land would be worth to a developer," Stouffer explained. "For instance, farmland sells for less than housing lots. Plus, an 80-acre development. So, farmers' tax rates should reflect those facts — with additional benefits when their farms have been preserved."

By donating their easements to Lancaster Farmland Trust, most farmers can qualify for significant income tax benefits, and a possible estate tax benefit. These benefits are often critical in determining a farm's future when an owner passes or the farm must be sold. Today though, most preservation-related tax benefits only help the current generation of farmers. Lancaster Farmland Trust believes that some of those benefits should be multi-generational — since farmland preservation is perpetual.

Lancaster Farmland Trust is also hosting estate planning workshops that benefit farmers — all while continuing its farmland preservation work. "All of these activities reflect the Trust's 10 years of experience, its level of maturity, and the current needs of the Lancaster County community," Stouffer said.

With 1,500 members, Lancaster Farmland Trust has traditionally been a grass-roots organization, relying primarily on one-to-one relationships and small donations to reach its preservation goals. In fact, nearly 75 percent of all donations to its 1997 funding campaign were $100 or less. Only 15 donors and a few foundations gave $5,000 or more. Lancaster Farmland Trust will now, however, try using mass media to educate, and active outreach to both double its membership base and encourage more corporate and foundation support.

"Long-term, personal relationships are valued highly and will remain the central focus of everything we do," Stouffer said. "Yet we also recognize that too many really good Lancaster County farms are growing homes and parking lots — and that trend will, in all probability, continue if we don't get more aggressive in preserving farms.

"In the final analysis, we can avoid sprawl only because most of ly Norman's Topaz Glenwood Ellie whose record of 16,933 pounds of milk, 883 pounds of fat, and 547 pounds of protein, 2X ME, earned her $280.

The third place entry was submitted by Cristopher Wood, who received $187 for Lawtons Glenwood Camellia's record of 14,307 pounds of milk, 652 pounds of fat, and 495 pounds of protein.

In the 1998 sale, five Pot of Gold calves were sold bringing an average price of $805.

Topping the list was Dam-View Khan Lee Ann, sold by Melissa Wertz, and purchased by Nathaniel Rassau, of Sarver.

A fast-paced convention sale commanded an $1,832 average on 42 lots.

Topping the sale was Piedmont Justin Java ET, consigned by Piedmont Jerseys, Inc., of Caoticook. She was purchased by Rock Ella Farm of Hornby, Ontario, for $5,500.

The second high seller was consigned by New Directions Jerseys, of Elizabethtown, and purchased by Vaughn Moose and Jeff Reasner. New Direction Berretta Inka -ET sold for $4,050.

Bo Joy Jude Lulu-ET was the third highest seller at $3,675. She was consigned by Steven Wagner, of Quarryville, and purchased by Garrett Stonerook, of Martinsburg.

Holstein Association™

NEWS

Red Book Plus now available for download off the Internet

BRATTLEBORO, Vt - Red Book Plus is one of the newest sire selection PC-based software programs available from the Holstein Association And with the February genetic release, the program can be downloaded from the Holstein Association's website, www holsteinusa com

Red Book Plus allows users to choose from more than 180 traits to select from over 1,200 AI sires currently available in the U S Users can determine the best mating for a cow by simply choosing the top three traits needing improvement, then the program will select the best bull to use For each sire, there is a complete overview with screens showing all genetic values, changes in values from the last sire summary, linear traits, a 3-generation lineage pedigree, daughter averages and much more Many color graphs make the information easy to understand

Red Book Plus is a subscription program that is updated quarterly after each genetic update The initial subscription fee is $75, with a software update (February/August) for $75 An updated bull file is available in May and November, by mail or via FTP from the website A sire dictionary, with more than 4,000 bulls no longer available in the U S , is available, either on diskette or the Internet

Demos of the program are also available for download from the Internet or by calling the Holstein Association at 800-952-5200

Registered Holsteins bring value to Pennsylvania breeders

BRATTLEBORO, Vt - Registered cattle are worth more, not only financially, but in the knowledge of their pedigree, their score, and their background, say Registered Holstein breeders

"I like to know what my cows are, and identified cattle are more desirable," according to Dave Horning of Honey Brook, Pa Horning's herd of 60 milking cows is located in Southeast Pennsylvania

Horning admitted he doesn't purchase many cows, but when he does, he looks for registered cows "It's worth paying more for Registered cows I like to know who their families are and where they came from "

Classification is important to Horning as well - not only does he admit a personal interest in improving his animals, but he likes to see scores on pedigrees "When I look at a pedigree, I like to see a score I want to know if there's a solid cow family, or did it just happen by chance?"

Classification scores also help in his culling decisions, and in his mating program "The scores help me as I'm trying to breed for bigger, framier front ends on cattle "

Horning said he doesn't normally purchase replacement animals, but when he does, he tries to buy registered cows "But if it's a good grade and I know her sire, I'll get her registered From that point on I'll be able to build on her pedigree It's definitely worth the money I spend registering her " He purchased a Precisionist daughter who scored 86 points as a two-year-old and recently freshened for the second time, with 115 pounds on her first two tests

His Rolling Herd Average is currently at 19,800 pounds and has been climbing steadily since he switched to 3x milking in January He began using the Holstein Tag ID system last year, using two tags The Tag ID system helps him stay caught up with his registrations, he said

Ed Breckbill, of Breck-A-De Holsteins in Oxford, Pa , is another Holstein breeder who believes there is value in Registered Holsteins

"I like to build a cow family through identification, and find a balance of productivity and longevity," he said "I like to be able to look back at her pedigree and see what's there " He milks 66 Holsteins in his all-Registered herd

Breckbill said while he does not merchandise his cattle heavily, he does try to sell some animals "I'm always trying to build something so I can cash in a little bit," he said "Spending the $6 to register calves is worth it The return on investment is definitely worth the money you spend up front "

He said he started milking cows after high school and started with a 50% grade, 50% registered herd When they classified for the first time, the BAA was 99 8, with 9 Very Good animals He started concentrating on his Registered Holsteins and culling the grades His most recent classification, in March 1998, resulted in a BAA of 108 1, with 11 cows scoring Excellent, 33 scoring Very Good, 25 Good Plus, and none lower

He uses the Red Book to help in his mating decisions, breeding for sound functional cows with adequate production He does not sacrifice milk for type "I'd rather have an average-looking, sound, solid cow with a deep pedigree than one with a fancy udder and a fancy pedigree," he said

Breckbill said that if someone came to him today and asked whether they should start with Registered Holsteins or grades, he would recommend the registered cows "I would tell them to start with registered cows if they were in a financial state where they could do it," he said "I think it's the way to go, because in the long run it's worth paying the extra dollars for the registered cow "

Deadline approaching for Holstein Association special pricing

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. - Special registry prices at the Holstein Association will end on June 30, 1998. Producers who want to take advantage of these special prices should act quickly. Lower registry fees and the Recovery Program, combined with Start-Up, can mean substantial savings when registering Holsteins with the Holstein Association. Also, offspring of cows whose registrations have been reinstated can be registered for lower fees until June 30.

Special Registry Pricing

From January 1, 1998 through June 30, 1998, Special Registry Pricing will be in effect to encourage breeders to stay caught up on regular registry activity The State & National and National member rates are much lower than current fees for older animals During this six-month period fees will be as follows

Age	State & National	National	Non-Member
Under 3 mos	$ 6	$ 12	$ 18
3-5 mos	$ 10	$ 15	$ 20
6-8 mos	$ 15	$ 20	$ 25
9-11 mos	$ 15	$ 20	$ 30
12-14 mos	$ 15	$ 20	$ 35
15-17 mos	$ 15	$ 20	$ 40
18-20 mos	$ 15	$ 20	$ 45
21-23 mos	$ 15	$ 20	$ 50
24 + mos	$ 15	$ 20	$ 100 Females $ 200 Males

Males over 23 months - blood-typing expenses to verify parentage
Dead Females over 23 months = $10 (regardless of membership status)

Recovery Program

The Herd Catch-Up program expired on December 31, 1997 Effective January 1, 1998 through June 30, 1998, a new Recovery Program will be in effect for breeders to recover animals that they have not registered on a timely basis Unlike the previous Catch-Up Program, breeders do not have to register all animals to qualify for these special prices The fees for the new Recovery Program, which are very favorable, are as follows

Age	State & National Member	National Member
Under 3 mos	$ 6	$ 12
3-5 mos	$ 10	$ 15
6-8 mos	$ 15	$ 20
9 + mos	$ 15	$ 20

This program provides incentives to catch up on registry activity The discounts from historical fees are significant There is a $50 cap when registering an animal and its maternal ancestors However, the Recovery Program and the $50 cap are only available from January 1, 1998 through June 30, 1998

Reinstatement program brings special prices

Under the new reinstatement program, registrations of animals canceled prior to January 1, 1998 may be reinstated State and national members can reinstate a canceled cow for $15, national members for $20, and non-members for $30 Offspring of cows whose registration was canceled prior to January 1, 1998 and has been reinstated can be registered based on Recovery Program prices through June 30, 1998 After that date, the fees will revert to the higher regular registry fees

Start-Up Program

Fees for starting new animals in the redesigned herdbook are very favorable To receive these fees, you must be a National Member The Start-Up fees are $6 per animal, regardless of age The Association will do a computer search to find ancestors for an additional $1 per animal being applied for This can increase the % RHA of the animal being applied for If the search uncovers Registered or Qualified animals in the lineage, then Recovery fees apply However, from January 1, 1998 through December 31, 1998 a cap of $50 will be placed on registering an animal and its maternal ancestors as part of the Start-Up Program

Pa. State Grange To Celebrate Grange Week In Harrisburg

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania State Grange has scheduled its annual Grange Week activities to be celebrated Monday in Harrisburg.

The national Grange Week is officially April 19-25 this year, though the Pennsylvania Grange set April 27 as its official celebration, to coincide with its legislative day activities, day-long workshops and legislative banquet at the Sheraton Inn-East in Harrisburg.

According to Grange spokesman James C. Mentzer, about 300 members from across the state are expected to attend the event, which includes visits with respective legislative representatives in their Harrisburg Capitol Building offices, as well as a series of workshops and the banquet at the Sheraton Inn.

While the state budget is no longer an issue, the Grange announced that it was pleased with Gov. Tom Ridge's proposal for agriculture, which is effectively what the governor signed into law Wednesday.

According to Grange legislative director Brenda Shambaugh, "The Department of Agriculture did fairly well, getting increases in their general operating budget and in agriculture promotion and research," Shambaugh said.

"The legislative reception and banquet is grass-roots at work as our members meet with the legislators to affirm Grange policy and express their concerns about agriucltural and rural issues," she said. "It also gives our members an opportunity to discuss, one-on-one, the problems facing them."

The workshops are to begin at 1 p.m. at the Sheraton with scheduled speakers, state Attorney General Michael Fisher who is to talk about his office's activities and legal issues.

The rest of the workshops are concurrent. One set, called Track I workshops, focuses on political issues, the other set deals with service and motivation.

Under the Track 1 schedule, from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m., David Hess, deputy secretary of the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) is to discuss the U.S. Environmental Protection Agencies initiatives and mandates under the Clean Water Act, such as its adoption of the term, "Concentrated Animal Feeding Operations" (CAFOS), as opposed to Pennsylvania's use of Concentrated Animal Operations as defined in the state Nutrient Management Act.

From 3 p.m. to 4 p.m., George Wolff, a private consultant, and John Shirvinsky, with the Civil Justice Coalition, are to discuss the Lawsuit Abuse Reform Act, and its implications.

From 4 p.m. to 5 p.m., Barbara Knisely, with the National Grange, and the state Grange's Brenda Shambaugh are to discuss issues of concern.

For Track 2, from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m., Deb Campbell, state Grange junior director, and Martha Ebersole, state youth director are to give a presentation on building energy and momentum into youth programs.

From 3 p.m. to 4 p.m., Joan Keith with the Lincoln Grange is to give a presentation on community service through the Grange.

From 4 p.m. to 5 p.m., Grange Service Corporation representatives are to discuss programs and services available through the Grange.

Some of the other issues of concern to Grange, to be discussed are an alternative to a long-proposed, but always defeated, mandatory deposit on returned beverage bottles, to curtail the amount of roadside disposal going into farmers fields causing large losses through animal injury and death, and equipment damage.

The alternative proposal is to create a compensation program to pay for some of the damages incurred to livestock and equipment.

The state Clean and Green program is being proposed for change. Some of those proposals are to be discussed.

Other topics expected to receive attention include dairy issues, such as the Northeast Dairy Compact; property rights to provide better compensation and more difficult processes for state condemnations; a plan to fix the diesel fuel tax refund; continuing the Ag Loan Forgiveness Program; and amend the Right To Farm Act to add protection for new technologies.

The state Grange represents 30,000 members in 66 counties across the state.

Beekeeper Inspection Program Under Way

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The annual bee inspection program will get under way on May 18 throughout the commonwealth to check hives for brood diseases and parasitic mites, according to Agriculture Secretray Samuel E. Hayes Jr.

"Bees are a very valuable resource for Pennsylvania agriculture, and the inspection program is designed to protect honeybees. There has been a dramatic decline in the number of bees and beekeepers in the past 10 years, and that has serious implications for pollination of crops," Hayes said.

The 1994 amendments to the Bee Law require beekeepers to register with the Agriculture Department. The registration program helps the department maintain an accurate listing of beekeepers and has greatly improved the efficiency of the inspection program.

Hayes noted that all registered beekeepers are inspected at least once during the two-year registration period.

A fee of $10 must be submitted with a registration form, and covers all apiaries owned by the beekeeper.

Benefits of the apiary registration program include an ability to notify beekeepers of potential dangers and benefits to their apiaries, and the observation of trends in the distribution of bees.

Hayes noted that with fewer beekeepers and a corresponding increase in honey prices, it may be a good time to consider beekeeping.

Because successful beekeeping requires knowledge of good management practices, department personnel can direct inquiries to the proper specialists.

For more information on registration or brood diseases and mites, contact Jim Steinhauer, 2301 N. Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408.

Summer Grazing Field Meeting Kickoff

BLOOMSBURG (Columbia Co.) — Penn State Extension in the Central Susquehanna Valley area is planning a kickoff meeting for the 1998 summer grazing field meetings.

The kickoff meeting will be held on Friday, May 1 at 10 a.m. at Yoder's Restaurant on Route 45 west of Mifflinburg.

The guest speaker will be Craig Williams, an extension agent in Tioga County. Williams will speak on extension and on-farm research work he has done in grazing and pasture management. He will also profile his home farm in Dauphin County where management intensive grazing has been utilized for the herd of Jerseys for many years.

No reservations are necessary for the meeting. For more information, call David Hartman at the Columbia County Extension office at 717-784-6660 or 1-800-254-6470.

Penn State encourages persons with disabilities to participate in its programs and activities. If you anticipate needing any type of accommodation or have questions about the physical access provided, please contact David Hartman at 771-784-6660 in advance of your participation or visit.

Kessler Named 1998 Master Breeder At National Guernsey Convention

REYNOLDSBURG, OHIO — W Arnold Kessler of Galt, California, was chosen to receive the 1998 American Guernsey Association's Master Breeder Award at the National Guernsey Convention in Louisville, Kentucky, during the annual meeting on Monday, March 30, 1998

Kessler, a Gossau, Switzerland, native, began his Guernsey career working for Walter Zeigler in Santa Clara, California In 1952, Arnold married Betty, his late wife and together they purchased animals from the Bay Meadow dispersal and went into partnership with Arnold's uncle, John Schmid, of Bay Meadow Farms They had three children Walt Kessler, Galt, California, John Kessler, Atwater, California, and Laura Kessler, San Rafael, California

Arnold's ability as a master breeder is proven by some of these statistics bred more than 150 excellent cows, bred 40-50 Gold Star Dams, bred more than 500 - 100,000 pound cows and made 15 class leader records As if these credentials don't speak for themselves, Arnold and Bay Meadow Farms have also been named the Premier Breeder at the California State Fair at least 30 times, the Premier Exhibitor at the California State Fair at least 25 times, as well as the Premier Breeder and Exhibitor at the Western National Guernsey show twice

California Guernsey breeder, Bill Askew said, "I have known Arnold since I was four years old My first Guernsey came from Mr Walter Zeigler's herd where Arnold was employed He knew quality Guernseys then, has bred quality Guernseys since and continues breeding quality Guernseys"

9th World Guernsey Conference Held In The United States

REYNOLDSBURG, OHIO — Guernsey breeders from around the United States welcomed the 9th World Guernsey Cattle Federation Conference to Louisville, Kentucky, from Thursday, March 26 through Monday March 30 1998 This conference was held in conjunction with the annual American Guernsey Association Convention

Starting out in Washington D C for a week long pre conference tour, approximately 30 international guests toured through the states of Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Ohio seeing Guernsey herds and special sights before making their way to Louisville, Kentucky, for the World Guernsey Conference

On Thursday, March 26, Guernsey representatives from the host state of Kentucky welcomed 65 international guests representing the countries of New Zealand, Canada, Brazil, Isle of Guernsey, England, United Kingdom Republic of South Africa, Kenya and Australia to the conference

During the week, ideas echoed around on how to keep the Guernsey breed prospering around the world and moving forward for future generations Together, Guernsey breeders from around the world attended seminars on topics such as product development and marketing objectives, youth extension programs, breeding strategies within small populations, environmental policies, farming objectives and Guernsey global breeding plans Like the audience the speakers too came from around the world representing the countries of England, Sweden, Isle of Guernsey, United States and Canada

A highlight of the conference was the Kentucky National/World Guernsey Conference Sale which averaged $2,360 The high-seller was purchased by Pleasant View Farm Dairy of St Thomas, Pennsylvania for $10,400

U S breeders are particularly proud of association members representing them on the World Guernsey Federation Executive Committee and Board Of Directors' Neil Jensen of Reynoldsburg, Ohio, will serve as chairman of the executive committee John Morrow of Tyrone, Pennsylvania, and Dr John Mozier of Stanley, Kansas, will be serving on the board of directors

As the 9th World Guernsey Conference came to a close on Monday, March 30, the Republic of South Africa contingents invited everyone to attend the 10th World Guernsey Conference in South Africa in the year 2001 A closing banquet was also held as new and old friends parted with renewed enthusiasm and commitment to the Guernsey breed

Approximately 30 international guests extended their stay in the states for a week of post-conference tours These tours will take participants through the states of Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina and Florida visiting with Guernsey breeders and seeing the sights Guernsey breeders and enthusiasts from around the world had a great three weeks with much Guernsey fun and fellowship

University majoring in dairy and animal science. Troy believes that the American Guernsey Association has allowed him to fill his life with adventure, education, leadership, friendship, and opportunity. In the future, Troy would like to improve his herd production, market more animals and increase the number of animals that they flush for both genetics and production. Troy received the $500 Lawrence A. Colebank award and $50 for travel expenses to the convention for his achievements.

The first runner-up in the National Outstanding Guernsey Youth Contest was Kristi Orchard of Eagle, Wisconsin. By strongly emphasizing the milk component and economical advantage that Guernseys offer over the other breeds, Kristi believes that Guernsey breeders can make their registered Guernseys worth more. Kristi is a sophomore at the University of Wisconsin-Madison majoring in agriculture education. Her responsibilities on her family's farm, Gurn-2 Meadow, include milking and feeding cows, feeding heifers, keeping records, assisting with herd health, manure management and working in the fields. Kristi is the daughter of William and Kathleen Orchard. She received $50 to assist with her travel to the national convention.

March Milk Production Increases

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Milk production in Pennsylvania during March 1998 totaled 973 million pounds, 3.6 percent above last year's production, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS).

The number of milk cows in the state during the month averaged 636,00 head, down 2,000 head from February and unchanged from March 1997.

Production per cow averaged 1,530 pounds in March, 170 pounds more than February and 60 pounds more than March 1997.

Grain and other concentrates fed to milk cows in the state on April 1 averaged 170 pounds per cow per day, down 1 pound from a year earlier. The value of grain and other concentrates averaged $9.50 per hundredweight, $1 less than a year ago.

Milk production in the 20 states surveyed during March 1998 totaled 11.8 billion pounds, up 1.4 percent from production in these same states in March 1997. The number of milk cows averaged 7.73 million head, 38,000 head less than March 1997 and 1,000 head less than February 1998. Production per cow averaged 1,529 pounds, 29 pounds above March of last year.

Herd Records Program

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. – Bernadine Hilsher of B & T Angus, Elizabethtown, Pa. has recently been enrolled in the Angus Herd Improvement Records program of the American Angus Association, reported Richard L. "Dick" Spader, executive vice-president of the national breed registry organization

Angus Herd Improvement Records (AHIR) is a comprehensive evaluation program used by registered Angus breeders to help them keep records of reproduction, and growth rate on individual animals. Each year hundreds of Angus breeders use AHIR records to produce more profitable, efficient Angus seedstock.

By weighting calves at 205 days of age and again at a year of age, breeders not only identify the cattle that grow the fastest and most efficiently, they also identify cows that regularly produce above average calves, and bulls that sire outstanding calves.

4-H Leaders Make A Difference

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The 4-H program in Pennsylvania simply would not exist without them.

That's the message delivered by Robert Steele, dean of Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, to Alvena Kneasel, Lebanon, 4-H volunteer, and more than 150 other volunteer 4-H leaders at the 1998 Pennsylvania 4-H Leaders' Forum.

The forum was held April 3 and 4 in State College. Mrs. Kneasel was chairperson for the forum and has served as a volunteer leader for the Lebanon 4-H program for the past 25 years.

The event, sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension, featured workshops designed to help adult and teen 4-H leaders from across the state become better teachers and youth counselors.

"Volunteer 4-H program leaders serve as educators, mentors, positive role models and friends to thousands of young people throughout the state," Steele told the participating volunteers.

"On average, you individually give more than 200 hours of your time each year and make an extremely important impact on the lives of young people, at a time when the involvement of a caring adult or peer can play a critical role in a young person's ability to make good choices in some very challenging situations. You set a wonderful example for all of us."

More than 12,000 volunteers are involved in 4-H programs in Pennsylvania, and about 1,600 of those are teen volunteers. Each year, these volunteers work with more than 117,000 rural and urban Pennsylvania youth between the ages of eight and 19.

4-H offers programs in subject areas such as the environment, clothing and textiles, entrepreneurship, photography, rocketry, horsemanship, entomology, plant science, nutrition and global citizenship

Most 4-H clubs and projects include a community service component. Nationwide, 4-H involves 5.4 million youth members and more than 500,000 adult volunteers.

Workshops at the forum featured information on how leaders can involve youth members in 4-H programs such as animal science, the 4-H Youth Voices and Action national advertising campaign, textile science, forest resources and foods.

Other sessions focused on character building, working with youth from different backgrounds, using computers and the World Wide Web in 4-H programs, risk management, and accommodating youth with disabilities.

To learn more about 4-H or to find our how to become a 4-H leader, contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office at 270-4391 or visit Pennsylvania 4-H on the World Wide Web at www.cas.psu.edu/docs/pa4h/pa4hhome.html.

A Crowning Moment At The National Guernsey Convention

REYNOLDSBURG, OHIO — Promoting the American Guernsey Association, the Guernsey cow and her rich, golden product are the responsibilities of the National Guernsey Queen Eight young ladies from across the United States gave presentations, participated in personal interviews and represented their individual states as princesses, all with the dream of being crowned the 1998 National Guernsey Queen during the 1998 National Guernsey Convention in Louisville, Kentucky

On the evening of March 28, 1998, the 1997 National Guernsey Queen, Sara Duerinqer, recapped her reign for the eight young ladies who hoped to follow in Sara's footsteps

The judges selected Amy Poth as the 1998 National Guernsey Queen Amy is the daughter of Ted and Kathy Poth of Pickerington, Ohio She is a sophomore at The Ohio State University majoring in agriculture education Amy believes Guernsey breeders should be proud of the rich heritage that started in the Island of Guernsey over 1,000 years ago She feels that efficiency, production, adaptability and the simple beauty of the Guernsey cow will allow them to remain competitive in today's dairy industry Amy is currently an intern at ABN Radio and TV, as well as the Ohio FFA Association and is an active member in the Ohio Junior Guernsey Breeders' Association Amy also received the top skit honors

Victoria Ansell is the 1998 National Guernsey Princess Miss Ansell, a Scottdale, Pennsylvania, resident is currently pursuing a dairy and animal science degree at Pennsylvania State University and hopes to become a Doctor of Veterinary Medicine in the future The daughter of Larry and Susan Ansell, Victoria believes that balanced cattle are what the dairy industry is looking for, and the Guernsey breed possesses this characteristic As a member of the Pennsylvania Junior Guernsey Breeders' Association, Victoria has been named as the junior herdsman at the NAILE in Louisville, Kentucky, as well as the 1997 National Outstanding Guernsey Youth first runner-up

The American Guernsey Association is the national organization for the registration and promotion of Guernsey cattle and is headquartered in Reynoldsburg, Ohio

National Guernsey Board Takes Actions

REYNOLDSBURG, OHIO — The American Guernsey Association Board of Directors held their annual meeting at the association's national convention in Louisville, Kentucky, March 26 30, 1998 The board, lead by President John B Morrow of Tyrone, Pennsylvania, made many positive actions for the upcoming year

The following movements were taken by the board at this meeting

• A cow will be eligible for a type index if the animal is appraised at least once in any of her first three lactations

• The board adopted a Youth Lease Agreement Program for youth participating in National Junior Guernsey Shows

• The association will endorse collect and slaughter of all young sires sampled through the American Guernsey Association Young Sire Programs

• The American Guernsey Association Young Sire Awards will be renamed the Max Dawdy Young Sire Awards

• The board approved to change the age requirements for freshening age of animals competing in the Golden Guernsey Production Contest to three years rather than two years six months

During the board reorganizational meeting, a new executive committee was elected The president is John Morrow of Tyrone, Pennsylvania first vice president is Dr John O Mozier of Stanley, Kansas, and the second vice president is Peter Coon of Amenia, New York

Sims Honored As Outstanding Young Guernsey Farmer

REYNOLDSBURG, OHIO — Outstanding young Guernsey farmers were honored at the 1998 National Guernsey Convention in Louisville, Kentucky, on Monday, March 30, 1998

Doug Sims of Lush Acres Dairy in Clinton, South Carolina received the Eugene Harding Memorial Watch Award for being named the 1998 National Outstanding Young Guernsey Farmer Sims states ' I suppose the goal of every dairyman is to produce milk of both quality and quantity and a better, typier, more efficient milk cow I believe that the Guernsey cow can become this total package "

Sims grew up hearing about what a great life being a dairy farmer was from his grandfather, F B Poteat After Doug and his wife, Melanie, finished school in Knoxville, Tennessee, Doug obtained a job working for Thornwell Orphanage in Clinton, South Carolina, as the director of the farm and grounds The main purpose of the dairy farm at Thornwell is to provide the home with milk and dairy products, as well as giving the children the experience of working around animals and learning responsibility

Doug states, "Hopefully through my work at Thornwell, I am encouraging a supportive outlook on agriculture, farming and Guernsey cattle " Doug has been rewarded for his hard work by receiving the 1991 South Carolina Dairy Herdsman Award, as well as being recognized for breeding three All-American Nominees

Daniel and Thomas Ripley of Cortland, New York, are the 1998 National Outstanding Young Guernsey Farmer contest's first runners-up Daniel and his wife Shari, as well as Thomas and his wife Crystle and their three children Seth, Kyle and Esther, manage the day-to-day operations at Ripley Farms

In 1985, the Ripley brothers purchased a 60-cow tie stall barn and became equal partners with their father Dan and Tom like to make goals to improve their herd Some of their goals include 16,500M rolling herd average by December 1998, average 10 20 cows on the top 300 CPI list, market milk and ice cream under the Golden Guernsey name and find a market that offers a minimum price of $2 50 more per hundredweight than average Holstein milk

The Ripley brothers feel that the breeding program is one of the most exciting parts of their business They select bulls that are in the top 20 PTI sires They said, "We look at the longevity of a cow family and evaluate whether the daughter of a great cow is as good as her numbers or just riding along on her dam's merits We want to produce offspring that will be truly profitable in any herd and that will be as trouble-free as possible " The final test for the greatness of a cow in the Ripley herd is when she makes a superior record "Then we know she is truly great,' state the Ripley brothers

New Directors Elected At National Guernsey Convention

REYNOLDSBURG, OHIO — The ballots for two seats on the American Guernsey Association's Board of Directors were counted at the association's 1998 national convention in Louisville, Kentucky The following names were announced on Monday, March 30, 1998, during the annual meeting

Peter Coon of Amenia, New York, was re-elected for District One Coon and his brother David are in partnership on Coon Brothers Farm, home of Smithfield Guernseys, which his father and uncle began in 1953 When asked about the greatest strength he could bring to the American Guernsey Association's Board of Directors, Peter replied, "My experience as one of four partners of Coon Bros Farm, and having to work together as a team to make it successful, is the greatest strength I bring to the board for a second term " Peter and his wife Alice have five children Lisa, Teri, Isaac, Laura and Amos Peter believes the future role of the Guernsey breed will be supplying milk to specialized markets He states, "It should be a goal of the American Guernsey Association and every breeder to find or create markets that will pay premiums for our high-quality milk The AGA should continue to present programs and become a facilitator a supplier of information and an avenue of communication between breeders to help achieve this goal "

Clark Vilter of Hartland, Wisconsin, was re-elected by his peers to represent District Four Clark and his wife Joy are the owners of Four Winds Farm Clark has been involved with Guernseys all of his life and has been an active AGA member for over 40 years Four Winds Farm has been named the premier breeder 10 times and the premier exhibitor nine times at a national show Clark and Joy were honored with the A C "Whitie" Thomson Memorial Award for leadership and sportsmanship in 1992 at World Dairy Expo Clark and Joy have had the good fortune of developing "The Great Cow" Westlynn Tom Dee, an Excellent-96 Westlynn Emory Tom daughter who was the grand champion at World Dairy Expo for four consecutive years Clark strongly believes in the Guernsey breed and their outstanding grazing abilities, along with their adaptability to any climate "We need to promote the docile nature and feed efficiency of Guernseys With more promotion, hopefully more people will become involved with Guernsey cattle, thereby increasing activity,' states Clark

Dairylea Cooperative Supports Implementation Of Option 1-A In Pricing Class I Milk

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — At the United States Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Federal Order Reform Listening Session held recently in Syracuse, N.Y., Dairylea Cooperative Director of Planning and Regulatory Policy Edward Gallagher voiced the cooperative's strong support for Option 1-A in pricing Class I milk, explaining that it takes into account the costs associated with transporting fluid milk, regional supply and demand, cost of production and marketing, and the need to attract milk to regions that occasionally face production deficits.

"The size of the Northeast's market, the challenges of maintaining orderly and efficient marketings for the world's largest Class I market, and the presence

The USDA proposed rule for Federal Order Reform presented two alternatives in determining Class I prices when the Federal Orders are merged and consolidated.

Option 1-A, based on solid economic analysis performed by the USDA Price Structure Committee, incorporates the unique dynamics of the Northeast's milk market and does not economically discriminate against one or more milk producing regions to benefit another.

The alternative, Option 1-B, of a robust handler segment create a need to maintain Class I differentials at no lower than their current level and to implement marketwide service payments. Dairylea strongly supports Option 1-A Class I differentials," he said.

would lower farm revenue in the Northeast by $117 million annually, and create economic hardships for rural counties dependent on a strong dairy industry. According to Gallagher, Option 1-B would reduce the Northeast's Class I differential by about $1.07 per hundredweight. This would lower blend prices by about $0.55 per hundredweight throughout the Northeast. Secretary Glickman has publicly stated that he prefers Option 1-B.

"The implementation of Option 1-B would significantly lower Class I and blend prices in the Northeast and harm producers and the economies of many rural counties that depend on a strong and vibrant dairy industry," Gallagher said.

Reports indicate that Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman will be closely monitoring the volume of public response he receives on this matter. For that reason, Dairylea strongly encourages all Northeast dairy farmers to write to their Congressional representatives and Secretary Glickman to urge the implementation of Option 1-A under Federal Reform. Responses must be received by Secretary Glickman before April 30.

In writing the letters, farmers should make note that:

- Option 1-A maintains Class I and blend price levels in the Northeast, as well as other areas of the country;
- Option 1-A takes into account the need to deliver adequate supplies of fresh milk to consumers at reasonable prices;
- the alternative, Option 1-B, would reduce farmers' milk checks by $0.55 per hundredweight;
- additionally, Option 1-B would lower farm revenue in the Northeast by $117 million annually, and create economic hardships for rural counties dependent on a strong dairy industry.

Dairylea Cooperative Inc. is s Syracuse-based, agricultural service organization, cooperatively owned by dairy farmers throughout the Northeast. It markets more than 4.5 billion pounds of milk annually and participates, and is invested, in a milk marketing network stretching from Maine to Maryland to Ohio.

Lancaster Farmland

our Lancaster County farmers have a land ethic and sense of place that will keep them on the land as long as they are able to farm," Stouffer said. "It is this deeply ingrained and long-term commitment to agriculture that is key to the future of Lancaster County. No act that any farmer can take more embodies that commitment than the decision of more and more of those dedicated farmers to preserve their lands forever."

Lancaster Farmland Trust is a private, non-profit organization that works to preserve Lancaster County's productive farmland, thriving agricultural economy, and rich farm-related heritage. The Trust is one of two organizations that preserve farmland in Lancaster County, but it is the only organization that Amish and some other "Plain Sect" farmers will work with. This point is especially important given that Plain Sect farmers now purchase the majority of all farms that are sold — and kept in farming — in Lancaster County. The government-run Lancaster County Agricultural Preserve Board is the other organization that preserves Lancaster County farms.

Weather Data Key To Controlling Pest Insects

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – Most of us rely on weather forecasts to decide wether we need to take an umbrella when we go out. But for some Pennsylvania apple growers, weather forecasts are helping to predict pest infestations and increase the efficiency of insects control.

Continuing a project begun in 1995, the Pennsylvania Apple Orchard Integrated Pest Management (IPM) program this year will provide 30 growers with daily site-specific weather predictions by fax or e-mail from April through August. Participating growers also will receive interpretive summaries including historical and forecasted pest information based on weather, as well as training on how to make best use of the information.

With weather data provided by SkyBit Inc. of Boalsburg, the service alerts users to pest information—such as disease infection, times to scout for various insect pests, and optimum control time—several days before these actual events are likely to occur in their orchards.

These forecasts often enable growers to reduce unnecessary pesticide use by spraying only if and when pest problems are likely to develop, saving time and minimizing potential health and environmental hazards.

"The Apple Orchard IPM project is helping growers determine optimum scouting and trapping periods so that more energy can be spent identifying individual pests that pose a threat to the crop," said Edwin Rajotte, IPM coordinator and associate professor of entomology in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Rajotte said the need for IPM information and methods is becoming increasingly critical. The Food Quality Protection Act calls for chemical tolerance reassessments for many pesticides by 1999, possibly jeopardizing their availability to fruit and vegetable producers.

With ongoing input from participating growers to ensure the project's usefulness, coordinators plant to offer the Apple Orchard IPM service to all fruit growers in Pennsylvania and other Mid-Atlantic states by 1999. "With continued feedback in 1998, this project should result in a profitable new IPM tool for the fruit industry," Rajotte said.

Potato Stocks Down

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Total stocks of potatoes stored in Pennsylvania on April 1, 1998 were 380,000 cwt., 7 percent less than a year ago, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service.

Of this amount, 323,000 cwt. were stored in processor's facilities, 85 percent of the total stocks.

Stocks are defined as the quantity (whether sold or not) remaining in storage for all purposes and uses, including seed potatoes not yet moved and shrinkage, waste and other losses that occur after the date of each report. Stocks may also include potatoes produced in other states.

Sales of fall potatoes for all purposes for the past five years averaged 90.5 percent of the total fall production. Shrinkage, loss and home use account for the remaining 9.5 percent.

Storage of fall potatoes in the 15 major states totaled 129 million cwt., down 13 percent from last year but 11 percent above two years ago. Stocks on April 1 accounted for 32 percent of fall production this year, compared with 33 percent a year ago.

Season-to-date disappearance totaled 278 million cwt., down 6 percent from last year. Shrinkage and loss were estimated at 24.5 million cwt., down 14 percent from last year.

Season to date processing usage totaled 137 million cwt., down 8 percent from the same period last year and 2 percent below two years ago. March processor usage was 19.5 million cwt., up 4 percent from a year ago and 8 percent above two years ago.

Think Before Entering Logging Contract

WARREN (Warren Co.) – It has come to the Warren County Soil Conservation District's (WCSCD) attention that woodland owners are being solicited by logging companies to purchase timber.

Timber harvesting can be quite profitable for the woodland owner and beneficial to the woodlot itself. A woodland owner should determine his/her objectives wisely before entering into a logging contract. The effects on soil and water quality, aesthetics of the property, variety in wildlife habitat, diversity of tree species, and the future health and viability of the woodland are significant considerations when arranging a timber harvest.

"A woodlot owner has to think about the long-term ramifications of what they do, of what is silviculturally correct," said Judson Bennett, the soil conservation district's forester.

To obtain fair market value for standing timber, a woodland owner should hire a consulting forester. Timber may be worth more than some realize. A consulting forester will help the property owner understand all the facts before a timber harvest is arranged. Whereas, if the timber owner goes directly through a logger, many aspects of the harvest may be put aside, such as what is beneficial to the timber stand and the owner my not receive fair market value for his/her trees.

Some loggers have been known to scout municipal tax lists for woodland owners and then make offers to buy and cut timber. Unsuspecting landowners sign contracts without knowing all the facts.

Many loggers who directly contract woodland owners practice what is known as "high grading." High grading is carried out by simply harvesting the most valuable trees with out regard to the woodlot's best interest. This practice leaves only clull trees, a tree of such poor quality that it has no merchantable value, which are inferior species, deformed, crooked, or sick. The cull trees are left to produce future trees of inferior quality. A woodland owner should not base his/her decision only on the information the logger gives. Contacting a certified forester will prove the best decision for all involved.

If necessary, a certified forester can prepare a woodland management plan that will be compatible with the goals of the owner. They will mark and measure the trees to be harvested, compute the value of the timber, and then solicit bids from a list of loggers and mill operators. This process ensures that the landowner will receive fair market price for their timber because the forester is working for them, not the logger.

The benefits, both financial and resource-based, far exceed the cost associated with using a certified consulting forester. For more information and/or a list of certified foresters, contact the Warren County Soil Conservation District at (908) 852-2579.

1.00 lower, which was consistent with fat cattle trends across the country. However, the local steer market found increased demand late in the week on attractive supplies to close steady to mostly 50 lower and slaughter heifers were 50-1.00 lower. The opposite was true for the slaughter cow market, which started the week slightly higher but turned lower late in the week from increased pressure on boneless beef. Slaughter cows closed 50-1.00 lower, while slaughter bulls ended 1.00 higher. Supply included 53 percent slaughter steers, 8 percent slaughter heifers, 31 percent cows, 5 percent bulls, with the balance feeders.

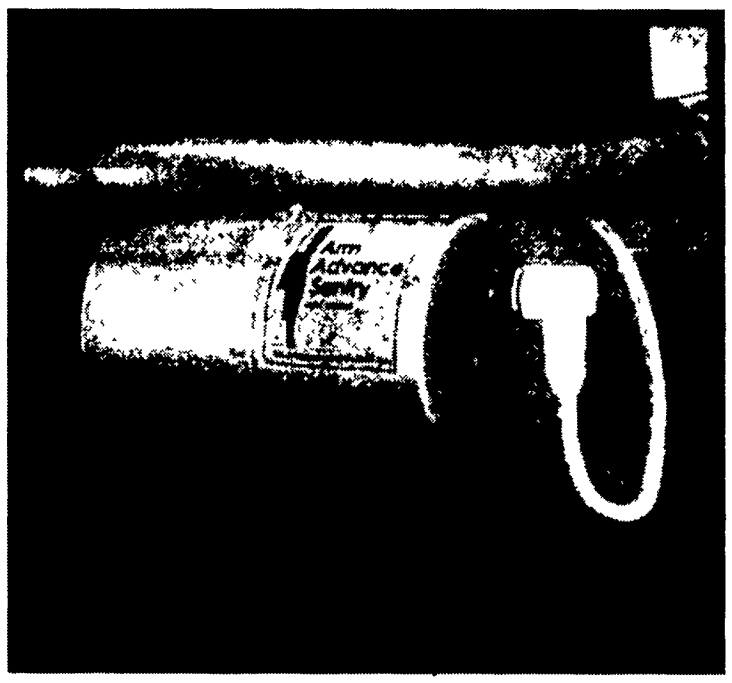
TAKE CONTROL.

Innovative Arm Advance Sentry™ unloader arm control greatly reduces the need for operator adjustments. Using easy-access operator-friendly controls, you can conveniently adjust the cutter arm's advancement.



At the heart of the Arm Advance Sentry arm control is a heavy-duty electro-mechanical acutator. It replaces time-consuming pawl adjustments.

The Arm Advance Sentry arm control automatically monitors the length of time the cutter arm advances into the forage. It also automatically cycles the time of material clean out.

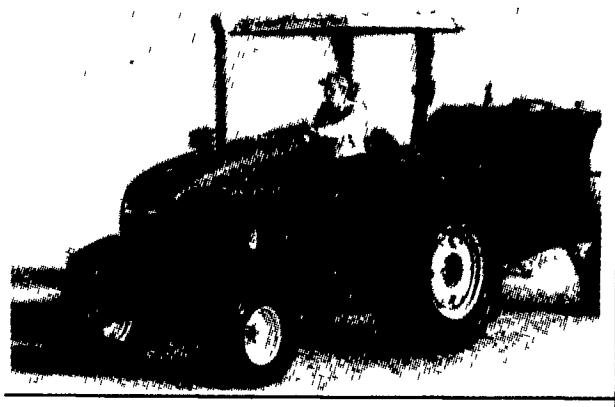
Excellent in the field - and on the farm

New Holland 70- to 90-PTO-hp tractors feature a 16x16 Pulse Command™ transmission with push-button power shifting within each of four speed groups. Speeds are evenly spaced 18% apart, with nine speeds in the usual two- to seven-mph working range. Plenty of gear overlap makes range shifting unnecessary most of the time.

The shuttle lets you pull out from a dead stop or change direction without clutching. An optional, electro-hydraulically engaged creeper is also available.

NEW HOLLAND



Shuttle back and forth with ease

The left-hand, column-mounted shuttle control on New Holland 40 to 62 PTO hp tractors with 8x8 and 16x8 transmissions provides convenient shifting of the best, fully-synchronized shuttle in this horsepower class. Shuttling is controlled with the left hand, leaving your right hand free to operate the loader.

Tulips and daffodils now grow on the ground once owned by George Washington. The daffodil was considered the "Poor Man's Rose" during the Depression.

Becky and Brent Heath check out some of the blooming daffodils in their display garden near Gloucester, Va. The couple has a hybridizing operation where many varieties of daffodils and tulips grow.

HOMESTEAD NOTES

Display Garden Ablaze With Spring Blooms

JINNY WILT
Adams Co. Correspondent

GLOUCESTER, Va. – In the sandy soil of the Tidewater region of Virginia near the tiny village of Gloucester, daffodils crowd onto the banks of a shaded pond and stand proudly in straight field rows.

Surely George Washington, who once came by this land when his brother made a bad bet, would be proud of the way the soil has been used for the past three generations.

Today the owner of 10 acres – the farm has gone up and down in size over the years – are Brent and Becky Heath who hybridize daffodils. Or, as they say, "We breed daffodils."

The couple, standing in front of a large building that houses some of the operations of their business, talk to a group gathered for a tour of the farm.

Brent explains, "I got here because my grandfather, Charles Heath, who was a Yankee, came for a visit (in 1900) and fell in love with the area and bought a place and then became a 'Damn Yankee. He noticed people picking little daffodils that had naturalized. They were picking them and taking them down to the steamboat landing...they were shipping the little daffodils to northern markets.

"A cottage industry had begun. It seemed to be quite a nice little, promising industry. But he had seen bigger and better daffodils in Europe, England and Holland...bigger flowers and longer stems."

Taking this into account, Charles imported bulbs and they grew well so he imported more bulbs and began to sell them to local people.

Brent continues, "By the time the Depression rolled around, Gloucester and Mathews Counties had more daffodils than anywhere else in the country." The daffodil was considered the "Poor Man's Rose" during the Depression.

Brent's parents, Katharine and George Heath, were the next generation to take over, owning and operating the Daffodil Mart in Gloucester County.

Brent said as a child, that teachers would let kids out of school to pick flowers in the spring at two cents a bunch. If you'd hustle, you could make a bunch of money in a day's time.

He remembers four to five tractor-trailers loaded with the spring flower leaving the farm in peak season.

In 1972, after working for four years as director of a nature camp, Brent began to buy the Daffodil Mart from his mother. In 1978 when he and Becky married, he said, "I had a nice business. I loved the daffodils and I collected a lot of different varieties...but I just had a price list of daffodils, I wasn't a great businessman."

Brent describes Becky, a former music teacher in the public school system, as "more orderly" and the one responsible for computerizing the operation.

The business grew "dramatically" with 1.5 million in sales. Three years ago the couple sold it to White Flower Farms, with the understanding they they could continue to do what they do best. This year they were notified that they were no longer

(Turn to Page B3)

In 1900, Heath's grandfather, who was from the north, visited the area and admired the daffodils that had naturalized. A cottage industry was born when he picked and shipped the flowers to northern markets via steamboat. He had daffodil bulbs imported from England and Holland. The flowers grew bigger and with longer stems in the sandy soil.

Three years ago, the Heaths with 1.5 million in sales, sold most of the business to be able to devote more time to lecturing and educating. They kept 10 acres to continue to hybridize flowers. People from all over the world visit to admire the gardens when in bloom.

needed in the operation so they now hybridize on the 10 acres they have left. The name has also changed from the Daffodil Mart to Brent and Becky Heath's Display Garden.

Now they do a lot of educational things such as Brent's travels to 40 different cities last year speaking to groups about the flower and publishing a book, "Daffodils for American Gardens," written by Becky with photographs by Brent. They are currently working on a book about tulips. Their fields also abound in a blade of tulip colors.

"We're trialing bulbs here, new varieties all the time, and we breed new varieties," Brent said.

They provide the following tips on planting daffodil bulbs:

•The best time to plant is in the fall when the ground temperature is at or below 60 degrees F, usually around the date of the first frost or when trees begin to lose their leaves.

•To measure the soil temperature, dig a hole 8 inches deep in your garden area, insert a soil thermometer or a standard room thermometer upright in the earth and wait five minutes.

•Plant the bulbs at a depth of 6 to 8 inches.

•If it's February or March and you still haven't planted your bulbs, plant them as soon as possible provided that the bulbs are still firm. Flowers from late-planted bulbs, if they don't abort, will bloom later than normal and will have shorter stems, although the bulb will catch up in a year or two.

•Don't expect to store your old bulbs to keep until the following fall. No bulb is engineered to stay out of the ground that long. They will dry out.

Where to plant:

•In the wild, many species Narcissus prefer the sloping habitats of hillsides or mountains, where natural drainage is excellent, because daffodil hybrids include an inheritance of characteristics from species Narcissus, bulbs perform better when planted in elevated areas. If you don't have an elevated area, create berms or raised beds.

•When choosing your garden site, keep in mind that most daffodils prefer full sun, but most will tolerate half shade, whether as filtered light all day long or as hours of shade before or after hours of sunshine. If your garden will be near a shade tree, notice how much sunlight filters through the leaves. There should be at least half a day of sunshine available for your flowers.

•If you have limited time or funds, you can begin a bulb garden as just a small border or edge planting. Expand your border a little more every year.

•The moisture needs of daffodil bulbs are heavy and critical during the spring growing season, virtually nonexistent during summer dormancy, light and steady during fall root initiation, and light throughout the winter.

•The simplest and best bulb fertilizer is good soil rich in humus and other organic matter. Supplemental minerals and nutritional elements, applied periodically, can help keep clumps of bulbs blooming indefinitely.

This year tours were held at the Heath's farm from March 17 to April 15, but by the first week in April, the daffodils were well over their peak. Brent said El Nino had accounted for the flowers reaching top performance two weeks ahead of schedule.

To check on the 1999 tour schedule or to set up a private tour contact Becky or Brent at 1-804-693-3966.

The Heaths are considered educators in the bulb-growing world. Becky has written "Daffodils for American Gardens," which includes photographs by Brent. Together they are working on a book about tulips and both are in demand as lecturers. In addition to flower photography, Brent has a weekly gardening television program.

Spring is full of surprises.

And each new day seems to pop one into our daily routine.

Not surprising about the seasonal surprises is that many of them have to do with babies.

The first turned up sooner than expected. Kittens. Hidden away in that site of so many interesting farm surprises, the old bank barn. More specifically, in the straw mow of the old bank barn. Four, in a variety of colors – black, gray, yellow, calico. fat, furry and adorable.

With a nest of kittens there, perhaps 'twas a sensible turn of events when I earlier interrupted one chicken's intentions to raise a family in a nest just a few feet away. At some point, the pecking order would have been resolved. And probably not in the chicken's favor.

Another three very welcome surprises have turned up in the dairy barn. Spring is usually when we have our least number of calves due, so only a relatively few number of cows are calving right now. To get four heifer (girl) babies in a row is a pleasant turn of events. While the bovine gender ratio probably evens out over time, there always seem to be a few more bull calves born than there are heifers, which we raise for herd replacements.

Statistics on humans report that the number of male babies slightly surpasses the number of female babies. So, maybe that's true for cows, too. Heifers seem to thrive and survive, on average, somewhat better than bulls, so perhaps a slightly higher rate of bull calves is Mother Nature's compensation for a natural higher death rate of the bovine "weaker" gender.

A quick walk around the meadow ponds a few evenings ago turned up the beginnings of another annual and welcome surprise in process. The dark mound of feathers snuggled down into the pile of dry grasses on the mid-pond nesting platform, shiny black neck tucked around toward her wing, confirmed that the goose hatching season is again in full swing. If all goes well, there should be fluffy goslings just in time, appropriately, for Mother's Day.

Why, we continue to wonder, when some ponds and wetlands areas have geese peacefully nesting in sight of one another, are ours so highly territorial that only one pair ever hatches a family here? We've been curious about that for a long time. On the other hand, since more than a few geese in a given area tend to get "messy," one family is probably just the right number.

Also on the feathered-friend-front of surprises, a loud, raucous, repetitive squawking erupted one morning last week from high up in the maples around the house. Though I sneaked outside several times to try to locate the source of the racket, which kept moving around, the bird continued to elude me. It sounded like some sort of woodpecker. Finally, quietly easing out the front door onto the porch, in yet another attempt to put a face to the squawk, I spied a flicker flitting from one tree to the next.

Flickers – those beige-brown-colored, ladderback-marked woodpeckers with the bright flash of red at the base of their neck, are common around the neighborhood. But they don't usually hang out in the back yard. A couple of days later, the squawking began to immediately be followed by a drumming sound, as the surprise visitor took to hammering on a piece of dead limb high up in one of the old trees. Selecting from a buffet of bugs inhabiting the dead wood, no doubt.

The racket gets amusing, even louder and more frequent, anytime a cat stalks out across the back yard. "Noisy and conspicuous," grumbles the flicker description in one Eastern birds reference book. Wonder if the author of that note had a cat companion along during observation jaunts?

"Look at this," beckoned The Farmer one day last week from the back porch. He pointed out a robin that was settled on a cozy nest, eye-level with the back porch, in a small niche in still another of the maples.

"Looks like we can watch another family of babies being raised."

Not only is the nest handy for observation, it's also right, smack, above my washline.

Should I be surprised?

Learn Art Of Dining

PHILADELPHIA (Philadelphia Co.) – Does your dining table need a little dressing up? Are your linens limp and lifeless? Are you looking for more creative ways to show off your unique tableware? Reading Terminal Market's Art of Dining investigates the aesthetics of dining.

On Friday and Saturday, April 24 and 25, Reading Terminal Market sponsors the Art of Dining. From 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on April 24 and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. April 25, the market focuses on arts that enhance the experience of dining: table settings, flower arranging, and garnishing. An array of table arrangements ranging from country to urban will be on display both days. Demonstrations on Friday include preparing afternoon tea. Demonstrations on Saturday include creating your own decorative vegetable garnishes, displaying and properly caring for antique linens, and creating unusual floral arrangements.

The Art of Dining takes place at Philadelphia's Kitchen in Reading Terminal Market and is hosted by Foster's Gourmet Cookware, Amy's Place, and the Pennsylvania General Store with special guest, the Sweet Liberty Candle Company.

For more information on the Art of Dining or other events at Philadelphia's Kitchen in Reading Terminal Market, call (215) 922-2317.

Spring Homemaker Day

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — The Rutgers Cooperative Extension Family and Consumer Sciences Advisory Council will sponsor its 55th annual Spring Homemaker's Day on Wednesday, April 29 from 9:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. at Echo Hill Lodge in Clinton Township. A buffet luncheon will be served.

The program includes the following: "Perennials For Your Flower Garden," "Protecting Yourself From Scams," and "The Colors of Spring" fashion show, sponsored by Walmart.

All proceeds from Spring Homemakers Day will go toward the scholarship fund for a Hunterdon County student to study in the area of family and consumer sciences.

The fee is $15. Checks payable to Home Ec Advisory Council should be sent to Rutgers Cooperative Extension, 4 Gaunt Place, Flemington, NJ 08822. For further information, call (908) 788-1342.

This past week I came across a scary, challenging quote about children. "What is done to children, they will do to society."

Karl Menninger's thought startled me, and yet it makes sense. Those children who are loved and cared for, who are given a sense of competence and independence, will pass on those qualities to others in the next generation. Correspondingly, children who are neglected or hurt may pass on that hurt to others.

Parents have the primary role in shaping children – children who will be tomorrow's leaders. They are not the only ones, however, with that awesome responsibility. Child care providers play a crucial part, encouraging and stimulating children as they develop. In Pennsylvania, we have approximately 8,000 registered/licensed child care facilities. There are many others who care for a few neighbors or relatives in their home. These people help shape our future as they care for our children.

Unfortunately, sometimes we take child care providers for granted. Many are paid low wages, only a few cents above minimum wage. Parents rush in and out of the center and may not even acknowledge the importance of the provider. This past week, many educational organizations celebrated The Week of the Young Child with festivals or special programs. the week of May 4th has been designated Teacher Appreciation Week, with Friday, May 8 being Child Care Provider Appreciation Day. Child care providers, like elementary school teachers, high school instructors, and college professors are educators. Let's take time in the next few weeks to say a special thank you to people who work with young children – in day cares, nursery schools, Sunday School classrooms, playground groups.

Show them that we appreciate the energy and care they give to the children in our community. Here are some ideas to inspire you.

Show your child care provider you value them by:

- Volunteering for a day at the center to see how the day is spent.
- Bringing flowers.
- Sending a card of thanks, feedback on a project, positive observation. (This is a great idea for someone who is too pressured at pick-up and drop-off times.)
- Bringing in items that are requested for craft projects.
- Surprising an overworked child care professional with pizza for supper. If you know someone who has a family day care business, this would be a real treat!
- Giving a gift certificate to a favorite beauty salon or coffee shop.
- Celebrating the provider's birthday with something special.
- Purchasing a small toy or program materials.
- Saying, "You're doing a great job" when you pick up a child.
- Telling the child care worker, "It's nice to know that I can leave my child here with you, knowing they are in a safe, happy, learning place. He/she loves to be here."

Surprisingly, when surveyed, the things providers requested most as a sign of value and respect from parents were a simple spoken "thank you" and the courtesy of paying and picking up children on time.

Children are a precious treasure. Take time this week to value them and to value the people who hold their hands and help them grow.

Add Pizzazz With Olives

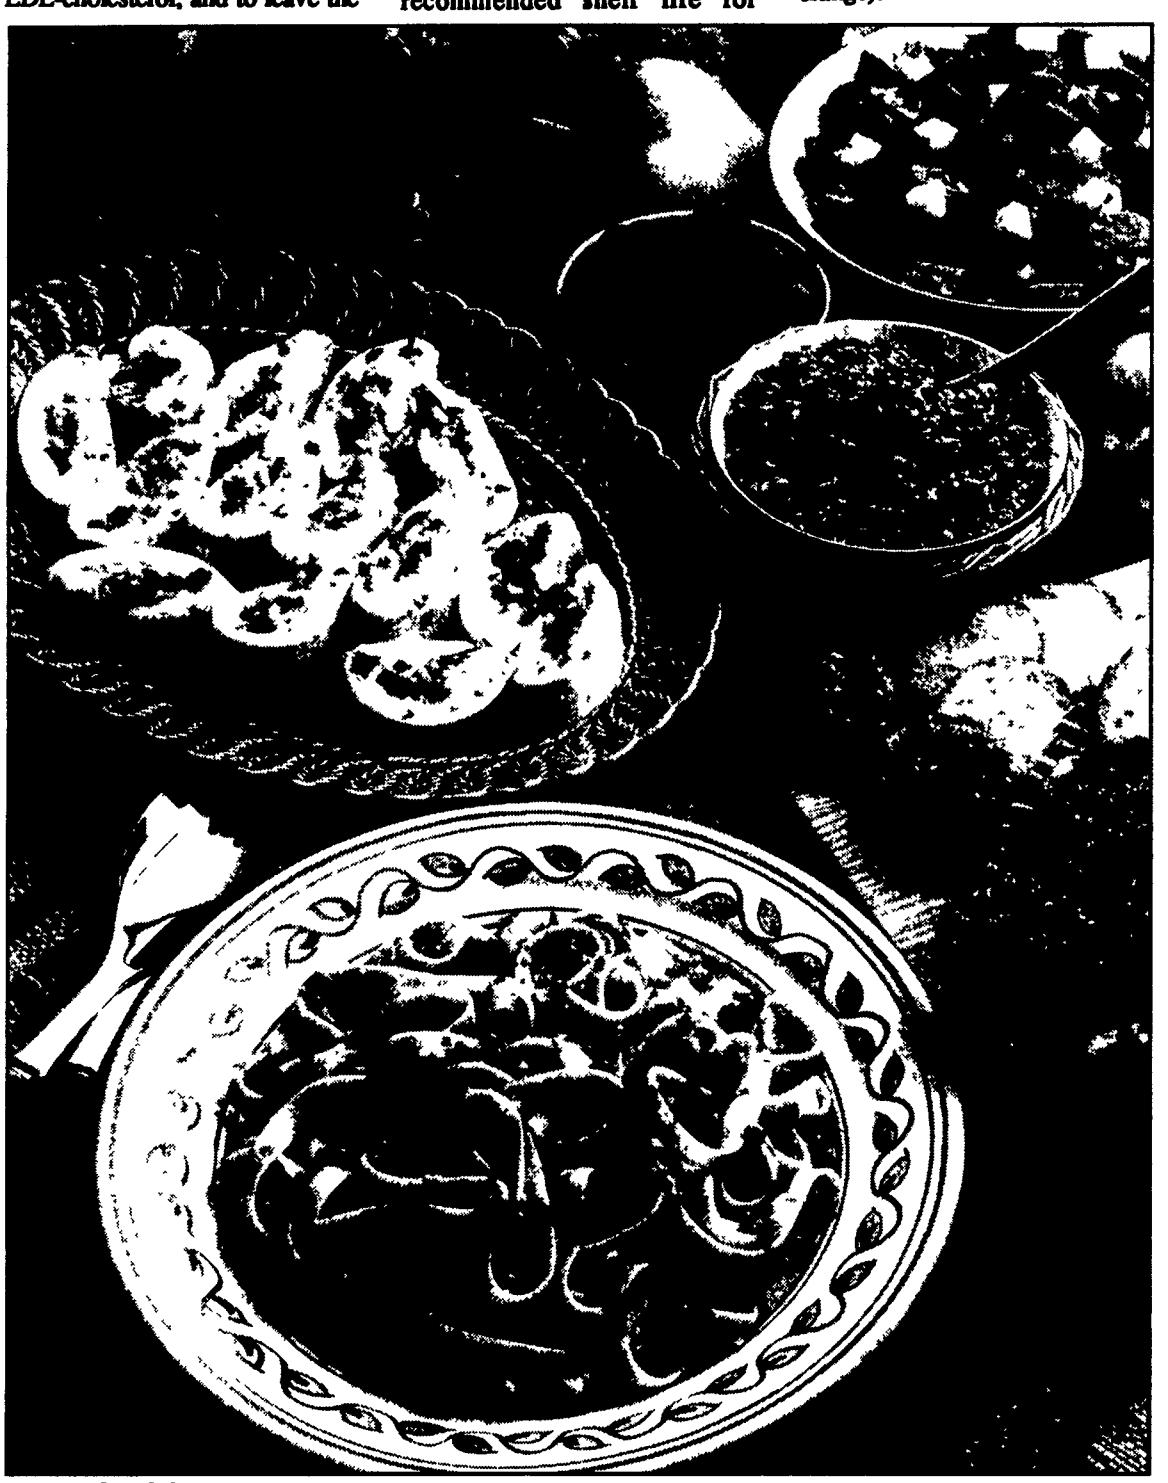
Once considered only company fare, olives are now used to add flavor and interest to every day meals.

Olives are a fruit. They are a cholesterol free food. The oil of the olive is approximately 75 percent monounsaturated, 9 percent polyunsaturated, and 16 percent saturated. Monounsaturated fats such as olive oil have been found not to raise the artery damaging LDL-cholesterol, and to leave the beneficial HDL-cholesterol level unaffected or even at a higher level.

Ripe olives are not as high in calories as generally perceived, a ½ -ounce serving of medium-sized olives has 5 calories and two grams fat.

Ripe olives are packed in light brine solution, not only to bring out the flavor of the fruit, but to protect them in transportation. The recommended shelf life for unopened cans is 36 to 48 months. Partially used cans may be held in the refrigerator for up to 10 days. Store olives in the original brine and cover loosely with plastic wrap.

A quick scan of your grocer's shelves will show that black ripe olives come in a variety of styles and can sizes—whole pitted ripe olives as well as sliced, chopped, and wedges (cut like sections of an orange).



A quick scan of your grocer's shelves will show that black ripe olives come in a variety of styles and can sizes—whole pitted ripe olives as well as sliced, chopped, and wedges (cut like sections of an orange) to meet every culinary need.

Here is a popular recipe from the industry. This versatile olive pesto can be used with any pasta and also as a topping for crackers and toasted French bread.

FETTUCCINE WITH OLIVE PESTO

10 ounces dried fettuccine
1½ cups whole pitted ripe olives
3 tablespoons drained capers
4 teaspoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon olive oil
2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
2 to 3 cloves garlic, peeled
¼ cup finely chopped fresh basil
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Cook fettuccine according to package directions. While pasta cooks, combine olives, capers, lemon juice, oil, mustard, and garlic in a food processor or blender. Whirl until coarsely pureed. Stir in chopped basil and cheese; set aside. Drain pasta well and transfer to a large warm serving bowl. Spoon over pasta and mix gently.

Makes 4 servings.

CURRIED OLIVES

¼ cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon curry powder
½ cup salad oil
1½ cups stuffed olives, drained

Combine onion and lemon juice. Add curry powder. With electric beater, slowly beat in salad oil. Put olives in a jar; pour mixture over them. Cover and refrigerate for three days. Drain before serving.

This is a great party food.

CHEESE-OLIVE BALLS

8-ounces sharp cheddar cheese, grated
1¼ cups flour
½ cup butter, melted
36 small pimiento stuffed olives

Work cheese and flour together until crumbly. Add melted butter and work with hands. Mold 1 teaspoon dough around each olive. Place on an ungreased baking sheet. Cover and chill one hour or longer. Bake at 400 degrees for 15-20 minutes. Serve hot. These may be frozen either before or after they are cooked. Makes 36.

TORTILLA ROLLS

2 8-ounce packages cream cheese
2 green onions, minced
4 12-inch flour tortillas
4-ounce can diced green chilies
1-ounce package Hidden Valley Original Ranch salad dressing mix
4-ounce jar pimentos
2.25-ounces sliced black olives

Mix cream cheese, salad dressing mix and green onions together. Divide equally on the tortillas and spread evenly.

Drain pimentos, chilies, and olives on paper towel. Blot to remove excess liquid. Equally spread each over cream cheese mixtrure. Roll tortillas tightly and wrap with plastic wrap. Chill at least 2 hours. Slice into 1-inch pieces, discarding ends. Place on platter and serve. Makes about 3 dozen.

Dover, NJ

OLIVE CREAM CHEESE SPREAD

8-ounces cream cheese, softened
¼ cup parmesan cheese
1 tablespoon chopped stuffed green olives
1 tablespoon chopped ripe olives
2 teaspoons chopped fresh chives
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup slivered almonds, toasted
1 tablespoon chopped fresh basil leaves
Assorted crackers or breads

Mix together the first six ingredients. Transfer the mixture to a plastic wrap-lined 2 cup container. Cover and refrigerate for two hours for flavors to blend.

Turn out on plate, remove plastic wrap, sprinkle with toasted almond slivers and basil. Serve with crackers and breads.

OLIVE AND SUN-DRIED TOMATO BREAD

2 eggs
⅔ cup milk
2 cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon Kosher salt
3 tablespoons oil drained from sun-dried tomatoes or olive oil
½ cup black olives in oil, drained, pitted, and slivered
½ cup sun-dried tomatoes in oil, drained and sliced
1 tablespoon fresh basil, chopped

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Grease an 8-inch springform pan.

With the electric mixer, beat eggs and milk to combine. Sift flour, baking powder, and beat into egg mixture for 2 minutes. Add Kosher salt and beat for one minute more. Stir in the olives, sun-dried tomatoes, and basil with a spoon.

Pour the batter into the prepared pan and bake for 30 minutes or until tester comes out clean.

Cool slightly on a wire rack. Serve warm. Makes one loaf.

CORN AND OLIVE DIP

2 8-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
1 envelope ranch dressing mix
9-ounces chopped ripe olives, drained
11-ounce can whole kernel corn, drained
4-ounce can chopped green chillies, drained
1 cup red-bell pepper, chopped
Bagel chips or tortilla chips

Beat cream cheese and ranch dressing mix with electric mixer. Stir in the remaining ingredients. Cover and refrigerate one to two hours.

Makes 4 cups. Serve with bagel chips or tortilla chips.

This is excellent for a super bowl party.

CALIFORNIA CASSEROLE

1 pound ground round steak
1 tablespoon peanut oil
1 clove garlic, finely minced
Salt and freshly ground pepper
1 large onion, finely chopped
1 green pepper, cored, seeded, chopped
1 tablespoon chili powder
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
Tabasco sauce to taste
1-pound can Italian plum tomatoes
1-pound can kidney beans
¾ cup rice
¼ cup chopped stuffed green olives
¾ cup shredded cheddar cheese

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cook the meat in oil until it loses its red color. Add the garlic, salt, pepper, onion, green pepper, and chili powder. Cook for 5 minutes or until onion is wilted.

Add Worcestershire, Tabasco, tomatoes, kidney beans, and rice. Turn into a buttered 2-quart casserole. Bake, uncovered, for 45 minutes.

Bureau Reminds New Yorkers That Farmers Produce Affordable Food

GLENMONT, N.Y. – The cost of food is so affordable in the United States that between January 1 and February 9 the average American has earned enough income to pay for their family's food bill for all of 1998. On Monday, February 9, Farm Bureau celebrated Food Check-Out Day by donating food to Albany's Ronald McDonald House.

According to Judi Whittaker, chairman of the New York Farm Bureau state promotion and education committee, the donation will take place at noon at the Ronald McDonald's House's 139 South Lake Avenue, Albany, address. She said that the committee wanted to remind New Yorkers that state farmers continue to produce affordable food.

Whittaker added that the committee also will be making several monetary donations to the Albany Ronald McDonald House from a number of County Farm Bureaus.

"The Mission of Ronald McDon ·ld House Charities is to help seriously ill children and their families," Whittaker said. "It's a home away from home, and we thought that we could assist them by donating the food we collected from across the state, from all of our county Farm Bureaus, while reminding people that the food farmers produce is not just excellent to eat, but it's affordable, too."

QUESTION — Donna Cleveland, Wellsboro, would like good diabetic recipe for peanut butter cookies and other diabetic dessert recipes.

QUESTION — Shirley Jean Ash, Bridgeport, W.V., would like a recipe for Southwestern Vegetable Soup that tastes like that served at Shoney's Restaurant. She writes that it's the best she ever tasted, although she's been back to the restaurant several times and they didn't have it.

QUESTION — E. Beaver, Ringtown, would like recipes to cook red beets and its leaves.

QUESTION — Valerie Miller, Honesdale, is looking for a recipe for pork roll.

QUESTION — Susan Harris, Lexington, VA, would like a recipe for fruit cake in the jar.

QUESTION — A reader tasted a delicious cottage cheese soup at the Red Fox Inn at Snowshoe. Does anyone have a recipe for cottage cheese soup.

ANSWER — Here's another spinach recipe for Bonita Martin, Lebanon. Thanks to L. Martin, Dalmatia, for sending it.

Savory Spinach

2 pounds fresh spinach or 18-ounces frozen
½ cup milk
1 tablespoon flour
5 slices bacon
½ teaspoon rosemary, crumbled
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon salt
1 chicken bouillon cube, well mashed

Cook spinach 5 to 10 minutes until tender. Drain well. Shake together milk and flour in a batter shaker. Stir batter into spinach until thickened. Fry bacon until crisp. Drain, crumble and add. Stir in remaining ingredients until blended.

ANSWER — Stacy Holmes, Peach Bottom, requested a recipe for making homemade cheese out of goat's milk. She also wanted recipes, other than yogurt, for using goat's milk. Thanks to Pam Green, Woodstock, Va., for sending recipes. Pam recommends two recipe books that she often uses: "Goats Produce Too!," which has great recipes for a super easy mozzarella cheese as well as other items made of goat milk, and "Cheesemaking Made Easy," great stirred curd cheddar! Both can be ordered from the Hoegger Supply Co. (1-800-221-4628) in Fayetteville, GA. Cheesemaking supplies can also be ordered through them.

Soft Goat Cheese

5 quarts whole goat milk
½ cup cultured buttermilk
2 tablespoons diluted Rennet (dilution is 3 drops liquid rennet into ¼ cup cool water)

Warm milk to 80 degrees. Stir in buttermilk, mix well, and add 2 tablespoons diluted rennet mixture. Stir well and cover. Let set at room temperature for 8-12 hours. The cheese is ready to drain when it looks like thickened yogurt. It sometimes will have a thin layer of whey floating on the top. Line a large bowl or colander with cheesecloth and scoop cheese into the cloth. Tie cloth and hang the cheese to drain for 6-8 hours. When the bag of curds has stopped dripping, the cheese should be the consistency of cream cheese. Use as desired—great seasoned with herbs or spices. Freezes well plain. Makes 1½ to 2-pounds cheese.

Western Ranch Seasoning Mix

2 tablespoons seasoned salt
2 tablespoons parsley flakes
1 teaspoon garlic powder
1 teaspoon black pepper
½ teaspoon onion powder

Mix seasonings in a jar with a tight fitting lid. Shake well. Use to season soft cheese as desired.

ANSWER — Sharon Salvadore, Ringtown, wanted a recipe for farmer's cheese, which is pure white and usually shaped into a 12-inch cylinder shape. Thanks to a Dallas reader for writing that cheese recipes and procedures have been printed by the Federal's Government Cheese School for tax payers to learn the process right. The reader suggests Sharon go to her local library and request F.D.R.'s Set. Code of Federal Regulations and read the following: Milk Part 131 Subpart A, B, 131-110 through 131-206 Cheese's 131 Subpart A.D. 133-102 through 131-196. 133-155 mozzarella cheese scamorza cheese. 156 low moisture, 157, part skim, 158 low moisture part skim, 181 provolone cheese, etc.

ANSWER — Joanne Blokzeyl, Red Lion, sent this recipe, which had been requested by a reader.

Peanut Butter Chiffon Pie

Crust:
1 box graham cracker crumbs

Prepare crust as directed on graham cracker box, but do not bake. Set in refrigerator to set.

Filling:
8 ounces cream cheese
¾ cup powdered sugar
2 tablespoons milk

Beat together with milk until smooth (may need to add a bit more milk)

Add:
½ cup peanut butter

Beat again until smooth.

Add:

Fold in 16-ounce container of whipped cream topping. Pour into pie crust and refrigerate until set.

ANSWER — Recipes for French toast keep coming. Many are the same or similar to those already printed, but here is one from Leona Hartzler, Burlington, W.V. for A. Keller.

Baked French Toast

⅓ stick butter
⅓ cup brown sugar
Cinnamon
6 pieces bread
6 eggs, beaten
1 cup milk
Dash salt

Melt butter in bottom of 9x13-inch pan. Sprinkle brown sugar and cinnamon on top, lay bread in pan. Pour remaining ingredients on top, refrigerate overnight. Bake at 350 degress for 45 minutes. Serve with syrup.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 14

The Farm Women Society #14 met on Jan. 21 at the home of Ruth Kreider for a time-out on a bleak winter day. Members enjoyed much pleasant chatter while preparing 55 pads for the Office of the Aging.

Lunch break was hosted by Helen Herr and Clara Rohrer.

New officers beginning a term are: president, Polly Stoltzfus; vice president, Gladys Esbenshade; and treasurer, Janet Leaman. Continuing as secretary is Mary Louise Landis. Response to Roll Call "What you do when you are snowed in?" almost made members wish for just such a day. Members became better acquainted with newest member, Jean Groff as she shared her life story.

Lunch of soup, salad, and dessert included a business meeting; and Bingo on Feb. 11 at Mill Stream Mottor Lodge. The Society voted to present a check of $50 to the Farm and Home Center to help with expenses of its renovation project.

Since Society #14 has members residing at Landis Homes, the March 11 meeting was held in the Harvest View Bldg. Alma Barge, Anna Marie Groff, and Arlene Esbenshade were the hostesses who prepared refreshments.

Members were honored to have as guest speaker Catherine Leatherman, a former missionary and now a resident at the home. Her inspiring talk recounted her experiences and praise to the Lord for all He has done for her. One profound statement, "What we have and what we do does not make us superior to others."

Hostesses Caroline Stoltzfus and Mary Louise Landis served at the April 8 meeting in the home o Mildred Herr. Christ Home will be receiving 43 non-perishable food items from the members of Society #14. Featured speaker was Brandy Carson from the staff of Lancaster Unit of the American Cancer Society. Nutrition and staying active have much to do for the prevention of cancer and staying healthy in general. She had numerous informative hand-outs to help guide us to proper food intake. She also stressed the importance of mammograms for early detection of breast cancer. Ms. Carson is available to answer questions or help arrange for mammagrams.

All Societies of Farm Women throughout the state will meet on May 12 for the Spring Rally at the Riveredge Restaurant in Reading, Berks County.

Retirees Collect Antiques To Benefit School

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — Always on the lookout for innovative ways to lure buyers to a benefit sale, of which there are hundreds, the committee at the Kraybill Mennonite School is capitalizing on the talents and interests of supportive patrons.

One of these couples is Wilmer and Ruth Nissley. With three grandchildren attending the school, the Nissleys are ardent supporters of Christian education. A Pioneer seed salesman for 33 years, Nissley and his wife spend much of their retirement spare time garnering public sales in search of select antiques, which they resell at flea markets.

For this reason, the couple was asked to gather a few antiques for the annual benefit sale to be held May 8-9 this year.

Previously the Nissleys had donated a few Winross trucks. But the demand for Winross trucks has dwindled in recent years. On the other hand, interest in antiques seems to be a growing trend.

Last year was the first time that the Nissleys were asked to donate their services in this way. Since they only had been asked in February, they had little time to compile items for the annual sale. But this year the couple has spent the year searching for items to pique the interest of collectors.

On some of the items they purchased, the Nissleys also have refinished them. Refinishing furniture is a hobby that both husband and wife share.

The couple also asked several other local collectors for donations. The Nissleys were pleased to receive items from Paul and Verna Brubaker, Cassel Mummau, and Ben and Bertha Brubaker.

Some of the items up for bids are a staw cutter made by Hench & Dromgold of York, a drop leaf table, blanket chests, dishes, Singer treadle sewing machine, old hand-cranked washing machine, Carnival glass, German china, and more.

"I'd still like to get four chairs to refinish," Nissley said. He and his wife have many that have been lovingly restored, complete with needlepoint padded seats stitched by Ruth's mother.

Ruth's dad (now deceased) was an accomplished refinisher of furniture. An interest in collecting antiques was sparked after they inherited some items from both sides of the family.

"Some items we bid on and others we wish we had," Nissley said. The couple, like many other collectors, often browse sales looking for items that stir memories from their childhoods so that they can replace family heirlooms sold or displaced somewhere along the years.

"It kind of gets in your blood," Nissley said.

Through the years, the Nissleys have zeroed in on their interest on wash stands, blanket chests, clocks, clothes trees, and other items to give to each of their five children for Christmas gifts.

"It's rewarding. We love going to sales and private auctions," Ruth said.

The couple are banking on the hope that many other bidders will show up for the benefit sale because they love auctions, too.

In addition to antiques, other items to be auctioned include fine arts, braided rugs, comforters, quilts, gift certificates, country crafts, handcrafted furniture, wooden bulldozer, plants, bark mulch, and garden tools.

The traditional Friday night southern-style pig roast will be held from 4:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. A country breakfast of omelet and home fries or pancakes and sausage will be held Saturday from 7 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. Plenty of food sold throughout the day include Gene Wenger's famous hamloaf patty sandwich, Baked potato with toppings, salad bar, fresh strawberry pie, homemade ice cream, and more.

The Kraybill Mennonite School 21st annual benefit Auction Days will be held May 8-9 on the school's campus located at Kraybill Church and Gibble Road in Mount Joy.

For more information, call the school at (717) 653-5236.

Chester County Seeks Dairy Royalty

OXFORD (Chester Co.) — The Chester County Dairy Princess Committee is seeking girls between the ages of 13 and 24 to represent the dairy industry.

Applications are being accepted for dairy maids, dairy ambassadors and dairy princess.

The Pa. Dairy Princess Program works with local committees to promote the sale of milk and dairy products throughout the state. Working as a team, the girls involved with the program often make appearances at local schools, shopping malls, and agricultural events, among other responsibilities. In addition, they have the opportunity to attend training seminars that teach self improvement and public relations skills.

If you would like to know more information about the Chester County Dairy Princess Program, contact one of the following people: Charlene Ranck (717) 442-9008; Sharon Nolan (610) 593-7465; and Karen Allen (610) 998-0248.

Completed applications must be received by Satuday, May 9. The coronation ceremonies will be held in early June.

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Michelle Ranck led Mr. Kemper's fourth grade class at Smoketown Elementary in a simple discussion.

She asked, "Has anybody heard of a watershed?"

Some of the fourth graders shook their heads. One correctly pointed to an EnviroScape model that showed an area marked by bodies of water that led, eventually, into the Chesapeake Bay.

Ranck asked the class, "What are water bodies?"

Many raised their hands. "Bays," some said. "Oceans." "Lakes." "Ponds."

"And what are some kinds of pollution that can end up in the waterways?" Ranck asked.

"Trash," some said. "Oil." "Chemicals." One even said, "CFCs."

About 75 students began to realize what those concerned about the environment already know: there are connections between what the farmer grows and what everybody eats. And the message they learned: we are all responsible for protecting the health of the environment.

The students making up Leola and Smoketown elementary schools traveled to the John and Bonnie Rohrer Farm Tuesday morning to see a part of the "cycle" of farm products, from producer to consumer, and the importance of learning to recycle.

They learned how to be "caretakers" of the water, plants, resources, animals, soils, and community.

Rohrer, who "recycles" newspapers in the form of stall bedding, also spoke to the class about how milk is produced. He explained what it is like to take care of his 150 tillable acre dairy farm. Rohrer said he milks about 60 cows and cares for another 60 replacement calves.

Rohrer allowed some students to feed milk replacer to calves from a bottle.

One fourth grade student in Mr. Smecker's fourth grade class in Smoketown considers herself a veteran of calf feeding.

"This is pretty good," said Samantha Wickenheiser after holding the bottle to a Holstein calf. "These cows are pretty clean." Samantha, 9, is the daughter of Greg and Susan Wickenheiser, Lancaster.

Samantha was petting a calf when a friend said, "Don't, he'll bite."

"No it won't," she replied.

Samantha said that she was "familiar with this," since she sometimes works on a farm near York, operated by a friend of her dad. She said she has fed calves, done some milking, and other chores.

Sue Martin, who helped at the Rohrer farm site, said, "For some children, this is the only experience they will have with farm life and agriculture as a business."

The Ag In the Classroom field day allowed students to see firsthand how what they learn about the processes of life, including the study of soil science and animal nutrition, are applied in the real world.

Martin explained that students can understand the role of the farmer with animals.

"A farmer provides everything a cow needs to make milk," said Dr. Peter Harris, a veterinarian from Lebanon. He told the fourth graders, "We sell milk the cheapest of any country in the world, and the cleanest of any country."

Harris, at the "Caretakers of Animals" site, said that he listens to the heartbeat of cows with a stethoscope, just like a human doctor. He also listens to the stomachs of animals. And, like humans, cows can get sick — and are given "cow aspirin" in the form of a huge capsule when they need it.

Mrs. Movak's class observes a "cow aspirin" at the Rohrer farm.

Cows even can receive a laxative and antacid, like humans, in the form of the cow capsule.

Rohrer spoke about how the cows are milked using the "claw." He told them how the milk is stored in an 890-gallon tank before it is shipped to the Land O' Lakes Cooperative of which he is a member.

Alice Pennell, master gardener, brought all sorts of soil life to show the students. She showed them the "inner world" of soil compost: how it is made of worms and other bugs. The compost is made of leaves, grass clippings, and coffee grinds. She spoke about the importance of caring for the plants by supplying them with good food.

Paulette Bledsoe from Upper Leacock Township spoke about how important it was to properly identify and reuse and recycle newspapers, cans, bottles, and batteries. Leon Ressler, Lancaster environmental agent, spoke about how farms are "inter-related" to the community and how decisions by both farmers and students affect the environment.

Charles Ackley of the Pequea Mill Creek Project spoke about how important soil is for the farmer's livelihood and how the farmer works to prevent soil erosion.

John Rohrer farms with wife Bonnie, who spoke about the goodness of milk, and sons Ryan and Jason and daughters Monica and Jessica.

A similar Ag In the Classroom field day was held Tuesday at the Oregon Dairy Farm for 75 fourth grade students in the Fritz and Brownstown Elementary Schools. All are part of the Conestoga Valley School District.

Ida's Notebook

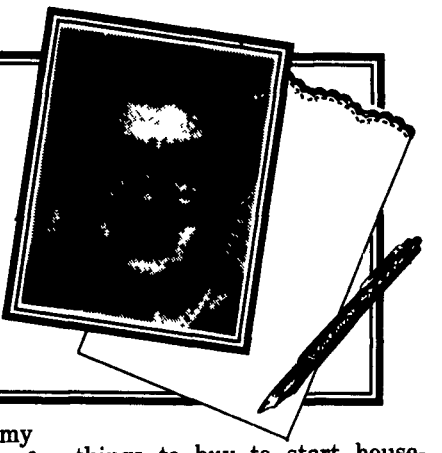
Ida Risser



Today I decided to reread my 1948 diary for the month of April. We had just moved to the farm where we spent 43 very busy years. Electricity had just been put in the house but there was no running water. One day I carried 17 buckets of water up a hill to do the washing. We took our Saturday night baths with a basin of water in the warm kitchen.

There were so many little things to buy to start housekeeping. I put up window shades, scrubbed floors, and painted a mailbox. We got up early and went to bed late as I was also working full time at Farm Bureau in Lancaster. Allen was preparing his big sprayer to spray farmer's tomatoes and potatoes. He also helped his father, his brother, and my father to get started with spring work on their farms. My father used horses, but my husband drove his tractor to plow the land. One day he found a pheasant nest with 24 eggs in it. Now we seldom even see a pheasant on our farm.

My mother sent us pig feet, scrapple, and a can of lard. Today I seldom even use lard except for pie crusts. We fished and caught 11 catfish and also dressed pigeons to eat. However, I did spend two dollars a week for groceries. Now it is 10 times that much. Allen had a cow from his home and so we had lots of milk. I made ice cream and we ate some every night before bedtime. We do not do that anymore.

Then, even as now, we tended a garden. Forty asparagus roots were planted and some strawberries too. Peas, radishes, onions, and lettuce were planted in the rich soil that was a garden for 200 years. To this day, you must hunt to find a small stone as they have been picked up over all those years.

Some things change a lot in 50 years while others seem to remain the same.

Farm Bureau Holds Women's Luncheon

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

NEW MIDWAY, Md. — The fellowship was fun, the food delicious, and the entertainment delightful at the Frederick County Farm Bureau women's committee spring luncheon. About 160 Farm Bureau women and friends gathered here at the fire hall for the afternoon program that included speakers from both the American Farm Bureau and Maryland Farm Bureau. Following a lunch of roast turkey catered by the fire hall, the women were treated to musical selections performed by the Catoctin Canaries, a local group of seniors.

Steve Weber, Maryland Farm Bureau president, talked about some of the challenges MFB has faced during the past year. The organization has made an effort to re-focus on its membership, and tried to increase member numbers. The members are "really the foundation of Farm Bureau," he said.

Weber related some of the experiences MFB has had in Annapolis this year in working to get legislation passed that will favor Maryland farmers. "I'm proud to say we're very pleased with all the support we've received," he told the women, many of whom had written letters and made phone calls to their legislators, "You should be proud of the support the ag community has given."

Leona Dell of Carroll County represents the women of the northeast in the American Farm Bureau as the northeast women's committee chair. She shared some information on what farm women have been doing at the national level.

She said in February more than 20 states participated in observing Food Checkout Day. The day was designed to bring attention to the affordability of food in America. Dell herself went to Chicago for a celebration of the day that included closing off a main street and bringing in a big Case tractor to deliver food to the needy. She and several other women were each given $100 to shop for food they then delivered to a Ronald McDonald house, where sick children and their families stay when getting treatment at a hospital. The women stocked the shelves of the Ronald McDonald House. "Ronald McDonald was present. CBS, ABC, and NBC were there for publicity of the American farmer-produced food," Dell said.

Dell also attended the Ag Women's Leadership Network conference in Washington, D.C. The network is comprised of 11 organizations of farm women. She said, "I represented American Farm Bureau women on that group. It provided in-roads into places American Farm Bureau women don't always get into." In June she will attend the second International Conference on Women in Agriculture in Washington, D.C.. The first conference was held last year in Australia.

Louise Ediger, of the Frederick County Farm Bureau women, explained a mobile Ag In The Classroom unit project that will be launched this spring in Frederick City schools. The women are helping suport the unit financially and with volunteer time. "The women's committee has always been for ag education," said Mrs. Ediger, "You must understand that however hard we work, it is the principal of the school that has the final say" about whether the unit will visit the school. So far three schools have signed up for the program.

The Catoctin Canaries, 16-member musical group, covered all the bases and pulled out all the stops in their musical review. Their presentation ran from charming to hysterically funny as they performed old classics and dressed up in costumes for skits and charades. The seniors formed an Easter bonnet parade that wove through the audience, and finished with impersonations of popular characters that had the crowd in stitches.

Ryan Eaves, Frederick County young farmer, the son of Richard and Tammy Eaves of New Midway, and Kathleen Doody, Frederick County young farmerette, the daughter of Dave and Carole Doody of Union Bridge, also entertained the group with rhymes and songs.

For the fourth year in a row the Frederick County women have been honored as the outstanding women's committee at the state convention.

Women's committee officers are: Louise Stup, chairperson; Evelyn Wilcom, vice chairperson; Terrie Stup, recording secretary; Rosa Rippeon, corresponding secretary; and Louise Ediger, treasurer. The spring luncheon committee consisted of Terrie Stup, Alice Wilcom, Frances Black, Peggy Garst, Evelyn Gaver, Jenny Rhoderick, and Rena Shry.

Ryan Eaves, shown with his mother, performs rhymes and songs for Frederick County Farm Bureau Women. He is the son on Frederick farmers Richard and Tammy Eaves.

York Speech Contest

Trisha Krick of Muddy Creek Forks received first place in the York County FFA public speaking contest and fourth place in the area competition for her speech about "State Game Lands—Let's Enjoy Them Together." She is the daughter of Steve and Dolores Krick of Muddy Creek Forks and a freshman at Kennard-Dale High School.

Food Trends Change Marketing, Processing

Opportunities and challenges in marketing, processing, and product development in response to changing consumer trends and attitudes were the focus at the Food Industry Workshop. Speakers, from left, include Hassan Gourama, Deputy Secretary Russell Redding, Steve McGregor and Doug Peck. Back, from left, are Milton Hallberg, Dennis Zak, Arun Kilara, Dave Geise, Don Thompson, John Lord, Vic Knauf, Peter Bordi, Robert Bechman, and Steve Knabel.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Fifty-one percent of consumers neither cook at home nor eat in restaurants.

Instead, they want fast, tasty, and safe food to grab and go.

Opportunities and challenges facing the food industry because of changing meal habits were examined during the two-day conference, "Pennsylvania's Food Industry Opportunities For the New Millennium," which was held at Eden Resort Inn and Conference Center last week.

Today's typical family has lots of activities to attend. Instead of three meals a day, people are grazing more, and a sit-down meal with the family is a rarity.

"Today's society is cuisine literate but cooking illiterate," John B. Lord, professor at Saint Joseph's University, summed up consumers' attitudes toward food choices.

"We have access to taste many different types of food, but no one is teaching the children how to cook because the mothers are working away and don't have time," Lord said.

In 1996, he said, Americans carried out more meals than they ate in restaurants. This is influenced by the fact that 60 percent of women are in the workforce.

Another force altering the food service market is the changing ethnic structure. By the year 2050, the hispanic population is predicted to make up 47 percent of the U.S. population.

Ethnic groups have different eating habits.

"But it's a fallacy to make generalizations about ethnic groups. The Hispanic population in Chicago has quite different eating habits than the Hispanic population in Philadelphia," Lord said.

The over-50 age group is also growing in numbers and making a mark on the food industry. Older consumers hold 70 percent of the U.S. assets and have more health awareness than other age groups.

"Dietary schizophrenic is predominate among consumers," Lord said. "Consumers say they want nutritious food, but at the same time, only 28 percent believe that healthy food tastes good."

Consumers want taste. It's health versus indulgence.

"Concern for fat has peaked," Lord said that statistics reveal. "Consumers want more nutrients and fortified food rather than the removal of fat, sugar, and salt. They want more flavor enhancement."

In a survey, 52 percent of the shoppers stated that they believe the right foods can be used to reduce amount of drugs used. Ginseng and garlic are some of the foods that are considered medicinal.

Despite statistics that show that 50 percent of fruit and vegetable processors have gone out of business in the past 30 years and that only seven percent of family businesses survive the transition to the fourth generation, Furman Foods is the exception.

Dave Geise, president of Furman Foods, Inc., told how his Pennsylvania company strives to remain a processing competitor among giants. His grandfather, a truck patch farmer, moved to the Eastern Shore then lost his farm in a land scam. He moved back to central Pennsylvania, where a bumper crop of tomatoes that he couldn't get rid forced him to start a business by default. Some grocery owners flooded with tomatoes had said that if he would bring tomatoes in the winter, they could sell them. Geise's grandparents canned the tomatoes and sold them to the stores in winter, launching the Furman canning company.

Geise told how the company has had to change to meet changing consumer demands over the years. Packaging has gone from jars to small cans to large cans and now the flexible plastic container. He sees the plastic container as the demand of the future because it is lighter, less costly, and creates less waste.

"Most producers find it difficult to eliminate products that have been successful in the past," Geise said. He believes a company needs to be ruthless when accessing the market.

One of Furman's primary concerns is that research funding has been cut for the universities. Unlike large firms, Furman's cannot afford its own research department and has in the past depended upon land grant universities. The research done by private companies is not shared and this obstacle threatens the future of Furman's.

"The challenge is to become a low-cost producer, to find a small window of opportunity, and to see it through," Geise said.

In another session, Bernie McGorry, business marketing manager for Hershey Foods Corporation, elaborated on the trends, needs, and opportunities of the food industry.

Since 52 percent of consumer food dollars are spent on food away from home, it is predicted that in the next seven years, 100 percent growth will be seen in food services and deli areas.

"Contrary to popular opinion, red meat consumption isn't declining," McGorry said. "The restaurant demand for steak has grown by more than 27 percent in the last five years."

McGorry said that it is important to watch food service trends where new foods are often introduced about a year before being available in supermarkets.

In addition to steak, growing demands are for tropical desserts, grilled sandwiches, soft pretzel breads, and fruit beverages. These trends are set in California and are moving eastward.

"Convenience is what drives the industry," said Dr. John Lord. "Give things that save time, because people don't have time to plan and shop."

Ethnic soups, oven-roasted French fries, egg plant, tortillas, crabcakes, and duck are other "rising star" menu trends according to research.

The glowing future of the food industry is marred by the difficulty in maintaining employees.

"Labor is a big issue," McGorry said. "Employment turnover is 100 percent in food services, which employs more people than any other industry."

To counteract negative food labor experiences, McGorry suggests training, simple preparation steps, and motivation to keep people.

Dr. John Connor, professor of ag economics at Purdue University, spoke on food processing as being a powerhouse in transition. He compared Pennsylvania's food industry with those in other states. Pennsylvania is number four in outputting processed foods and beverages and has maintained that position for years despite neighboring states falling in value and numbers.

In recent years, safety and environmental concerns have changed the face of packaging foods. Ramaswam Anatheswaran, associate professor of food science, explained the advances made with flexible packaging. Semi-rigid packaging was addressed by Douglas Peck, director of packaging for International Home Food Products, Inc.

McGorry said that convenient packaging that is portable and safe for the environment is a demand. The concensus is that the metal can will soon become obsolete. McGorry showed a semi-rigid plastic container that is easy to grasp, safe, and convenient.

The older population has declining grip strength, which is a consideration that food producers must also take into consideration when packaging foods.

Other speakers during the event included Dr. Milton Halberg, professor of ag economics at Penn State. He said that Pennsylvania is a good site for supply-oriented industry, but that declining transportation costs, which are only half of what it cost in the 1950s, is making it easier for shipping raw materials elsewhere.

Vic Knauf, vice president of research, talked about how biotechnology can affect the food of the future by providing better tastes, smells, and shelf life. He doesn't think genetically engineered foods is a negative issue in the U.S. Knauf shared some of the research done on oils to enhance the good properties and delete the negative ones.

"Will biotechnology be slowed because one percent of the population might have some negative reaction to it?" Knauf asked.

Robert Beelman, professor of food science, spoke on the challenges of minimally processed foods. These included such items as salad kits, lunch and cured meats, produce, fresh pasta, and sauces.

Beelman spoke of the hurdles in guaranteeing food safety. Some of this is being achieved through antioxidants and cholorinated water dips, vacuum packaging, and clear labeling of how products need to be handled.

Heat treatment provides more stringent measures from pasteurization, microwave heating, and ohmic heating, which uses alternating currents to pass through food.

Non-thermal physical treatments with high-intensity pulsed electrical fields, oscillating magnetic fields, and high hydrostatic pressure, sounds great, but his experience is that it is only good for jams and purees. Ultra-violet lights and ultra sound has limits and often causes textural changes.

"Irradiation seems to be most accepting by consumers and appears to be effective and safe," Beelman said. He explained different methods being tested and said that with food safety issues becoming a primary concern, consumers may demand the irradiation process.

The question is often asked: What are consumers looking for? The concensus of the conference, sponsored by Penn State's Department of Food Science, was that consumers want meal solutions that are prepared, convenient, accessible, tasty, and nutritious. They also want information on how to prepare it and what to serve with it.

Marketing strategies and processing technologies to meet consumers' demands will determine what companies survive into the millennium.

CELEBRATE ARBOR DAY

Celebrate arbor day by planting a tree. Start by saving time, money, and frustration by making sure your new tree is top quality.

First, inspect the tree's general appearance. The trunk should be reasonably straight and the crown of the tree should be symmetrical. Closely examine the crown. No branches should extend from the trunk at angles less than 45 degrees. Narrow branch angles cause structural problems in wind storms as the tree ages.

Closely observe the tree's trunk. Problem areas are easily recognizable. Check for signs of cuts, scrapes or recent pruning. A wound that is more than a quarter of the trunk's circumference is too large and can affect the tree's future health.

Look for other flaws. Check for areas that are discolored, sunken or swollen. This indicates problems beneath the bark. For borer damage, check for small circular holes in the bark. Severe frost cracks that cause permanent damage can result from shallow cracks in a young tree's bark.

The general size of the tree can be an accurate indication of quality. Measure the trunk diameter at six inches above ground level. Then measure the size of the root ball. This helps determine an estimate on how tall the tree should be in the nursery.

The size of the root ball should be roughly proportional to the crown, or the area of branches spread on the tree. If the root ball is too small, it may not have enough roots to successfully reestablish the tree at your home.

A trunk diameter of 1 1/2 inches translate to a tree between 9- and 13- feet tall. The root ball should be at least 20 inches in diameter. For a trunk diameter of two inches, a tree should be between 13- and 15- feet tall. The root ball should be at least 24 inches in diameter. Lastly, a 3-inch trunk diameter should be found on a tree between 14- and 16- feet tall. The root ball should be at least 32 inches in diameter.

Lastly, feel the surface of the root ball on trees that have been balled and burlapped. The root ball should be firm and solid. Check for pruned roots and girdling roots. These are roots that wrap around the lower trunk. Girdling roots are often found about half an inch below the soil line.

Once you buy and plant your tree, keep the root system moist all spring and summer.

For more information on tree planting, ask for special circular 266 "Planting Ornamentals" from your Extension Office.

Leave Grass Clippings On Lawn

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – Leaving grass clippings on the lawn will not harm your turf – in fact, it may be beneficial, says a turfgrass expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"It's estimated that 20 percent of what goes into landfills is yard debris such as leaves, hedge prunings, and grass clippings," says Peter Landschoot, associate professor of turfgrass science. "Recycling grass clippings not only is civic-minded, but it also can be beneficial to the lawn and save the work involved in bagging.

"If you leave the clippings on the lawn, you can reduce fertilizer needs by as much as one-third. When turf is mowed on a regular basis, clippings break down easily, returning nitrogen and other nutrients to the soil

"Some people are concerned that returning clippings to the lawn may result in thatch accumulation," says Landschoot "But because the clippings decompose rapidly, they do not contribute to thatch."

For clippings to break down rapidly, the lawn must be mowed frequently enough so that large amounts of leaf residue don't remain on the surface of the turf. "Weekly mowing often isn't frequent enough, especially during the peak period of leaf growth in spring," he says. Excessive accumulations of clippings remain on the surface for long periods and can smother the grass.

"When you're mowing, you shouldn't take off more than one-third of the leaf blade at one time. Otherwise, you may scalp the grass and make it more vulnerable to stress."

If no herbicides have been applied to the grass, homeowners can rake the dried clippings and use them as mulch around trees, shrubs or flowers, says Landschoot.

Mulching mowers that keep the clippings circulating under the mower deck, chopping the grass blades into finer pieces, are becoming popular with homeowners. "Mulching mowers hasten the decomposition of the clippings and reduce the amount of residue left on the lawn," says Landschoot.

"However, you don't have to buy a mulching mower to recycle clippings," he points out. "Ordinary lawn mowers also will provide good results."

Grass clippings also can be composted. "If you combine clippings with tree leaves, the two sources of yard waste will complement one another in the composting process," Landschoot says.

Kutztown Young Farmers Hold Banquet

Receiving the 1998 Outstanding Young Farmer over 30 (years) Award were Robert and Melinda Tercha.

Ken and Denise Sanner were the recipients of the 1998 Community Service Award.

A short slide presentation during the meeting showed the farming practices and involvements achieved by the Terchas and the Sanners.

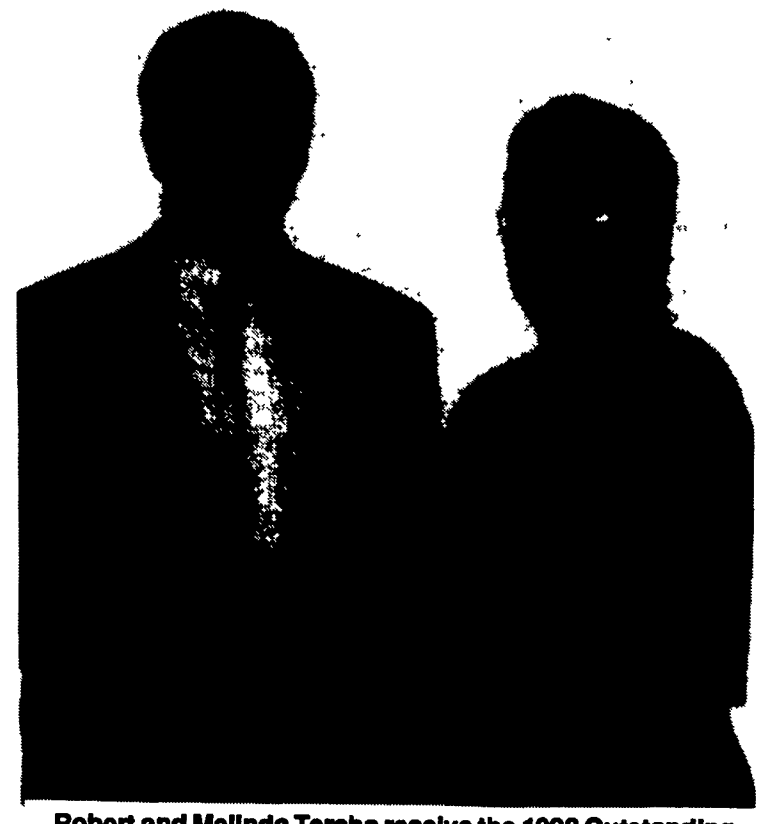
Ken and Denise Sanner receive the 1998 Community Service Award from the Kutztown Young Farmer Chapter.



Robert and Melinda Tercha receive the 1998 Outstanding Young Farmer Over 30 (years) Award, presented by Kutztown Young Farmer Chapter.

QUESTION — Ruth LaFollette is willing to pay a reasonable price for the children's book "The Story of 14 Bears," by Scott Parson. It is a big Golden Book printed by Golden Press. Contact her at 167 New Schaefferstown Rd., Bernville, PA 19506.

QUESTION — Virginia Duff, Mt. Airy, Md., would like to know where to find a record of the "Prisoner Sang." She is willing to pay a fair price and wants the words to the whole song.

QUESTION — Maralee Chaffee, LaRayesville, is desperate to rid their house and lawn of crickets in the fall. They usually last two months, at least, until the first killing frost in Oct. In the fall, the Chaffees have millions of crickets in the yard, which becomes literally black with big black, juicy crickets. Hundreds are killed with each step to the clothesline. The crickets come into the house each night and the family kills hundreds each morning when they wake up. The family is planning a fall outdoor wedding for one of their children. Do they spray now to kill the eggs in the ground before they hatch or must they wait until fall to spray malathion and hope the crickets eat it and die? (The spray has a noxious odor—not nice for an outdoor wedding, but then it might be better than crickets crawling on guests). The lawn covers two to three acres.

QUESTION — S. Church, P.O. Box 141, Bloomingburg, N.Y., has a problem with packs of wild dogs and an ocassional coyote or wolf eating his chickens. He wants to know where can to buy poison to kill these large animals?

QUESTION — Pam Eyer, Carlisle, wants to know where to find plans to make a wooden playhouse like those sold at places that sell wooden storage sheds. She prefers to make one herself instead of purchasing a pre-built one.

QUESTION — Marlene Hurst, Ephrata, needs that address for Aurora Products, a toy manufacturing company from West Hempstead, N.Y. Mail is returned undeliverable forwarding order expired.

QUESTION — Margaret Diamond, Kunkletown, wants instructions to make lamps or other items from popsickle sticks.

Maryland Sheep And Wool Festival To Celebrate Silver Anniversary

QUESTION — JoAnn Robbins would like to purchase "Nancy Drew" books circa 1930s, 1940s, and 1950s. Contact her at 1705 York Rd. Hartsville, PA 18974.

QUESTION — Mrs. Amos Hoover, Denver, wants to know who to contact about recycling plastic milk jugs into a picnic table.

ANSWER — Rose Diehl, Bloomsburg, wanted to know where to buy Cornish game hen chicks to raise. Thanks to Frances Shaffer, Herndon, for writing that the chicks are available for less than $1 each from Murray McMurray Hatchery Inc., Box 458, 191 Closz Dr., Webster City, Iowa 50595-0458.

ANSWER — Betty Lou Kauffman, Columbia, wrote that she has a large collection of pig items that she would like to scale down. Thanks to Robert Rauhauser, Thomasville, for writing that she should contact The Happy Pig Collectors Club, c/o Gene Holt, P.O. Box 17, Oneida, IL 61467.

ANSWER — In answer to the ground hog problem, a reader, Robert Rauhauser from Thomasville, has published a delightful book, "Good-Bye Mr. Louse." The book is an illustrated guide to hog oilers and is filled with the original patent drawings and numbers for more than 150 different devices that were meant to apply oil, grease, or insecticides to hogs and other animals. The book is intended for collectors, dealers, historians, and anyone interested in these ingenious and colorful gadgets.

Rauhauser, a patent researcher and collector of old-time farm related artifacts, has also included dozens of period advertisements featuring all kinds of hog raising equipment, which he found by researching patents from 1903 through 1966.

The 47-page book can be mail-ordered from Rauhauser at Box 766, R.2, Thomasville PA 17364-9622. Cost is $14.95 post paid. He has published a supplement to the original book that contains more patents and ads. The supplement is $4.95 post paid.

ANSWER — Perry A. Hilbert, Cleona, wrote that he is almost 70 years old and remembers seeing adults rub their cheeks against a baby or very young person and saying, "Aye, Aye," as a form of affection. He wanted to know the origin or history of this practice? Thanks to Pastor Philip Smith of Christ Evangelical Luteran Church, Stouchsburg, for writing that this appears as a maternal image in the Bible (Hosea 11:4), comparing God's love and care for Israel to a parent's love and care for a child. The passage from the New Revised Standard Version reads: "I led them with cords of human kindness, with bands of love. I was to them like those who lift infants to their cheeks. I bent down to them and fed them."

ANSWER — Anne Buppert, 6914 Ridge Rd., Manlottsville, MD 21104, answers the Honesdale reader's request for Denim Days Kids figurines. She has some to sell that are in excellent condition.

GLENWOOD, Md. – What started in 1974 as a one-day gathering of 1,500 for a sheep and wool crafts festival sponsored by the Maryland Sheep Breeders Association has grown into a weekend festival that last year drew more than 50,000 visitors. Always held the first full weekend in May, the Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival is gearing up this year to celebrate 25 years of success in promoting sheep and wool.

Since it started, the festival has provided a forum for demonstrations and educational exhibits about lamb and wool, and a market for sheep related crafts. The Maryland Lamb and Wool Queen contest is also held in conjunction with the festival. This year special seminars and new events are being featured to highlight the silver anniversary celebration.

The festival, held at the Howard County fairgrounds in Glenwood, appeals to both the general public and to sheep breeders. There are workshops geared toward fiber artists, children's activities, and also a sheep to shawl contest, and the Maryland Grand Lamb Cook-Off. Breeders from the U.S. and Canada are expected to show more than 1,000 animals in the sheep shows this year. About 275 vendors will offer sheep related crafts and products.

"There is so much variety in the offerings," said David Greene, extension agent in agricultural science from Carroll County and past president of Maryland Sheep Breeders Association. Greene, a past Shepherd of the Year award winner, has been involved with the festival since it began, and authored a history of the event published in the silver anniversary program book. "The festival carries with it a wide array of topics that appeal to new people considering getting into the sheep industry or maybe those that have been in the industry."

The fleece show is one of the largest east of the Mississippi River, and draws entries from all over the country, according to Mr. Greene. "There are very few opportunities to show wool sheep in competition in this area," he explained, because most of the farms raise meat sheep. "At this time of year, the sheep haven't been shorn. You need at least three-quarters of an inch of wool, and most judges would prefer 2-4 inches," he said. The shearing contest is also a big draw, with participants coming from across the U.S., Canada and England.

Cary Wolinsky, a National Geographic photojournalist, will speak on his three-year project Wool: Fabric of History. Wolinsky traveled to nine countries to trace the use of wool from prehistoric times to the present for the 40-page feature article. His project took him to every continent and yielded photographs that have remarkable stories behind them. "It's really the story of nomadic people and the symbiotic relationship between groups of people and groups of animals," Wolinsky said from his studio in Massachusetts. "It's about nomadism and the wealth that animals create." Wolinsky will share his photographs and experiences in his presentation.

This Chayas Indian brother and sister from Macusani, Peru were featured in Wolinsky's 40-page feature article. Julian and Juliana Gayoso carried their alpaca for three days on a llama train to an annual mountain festival that occurs during shearing season that is actually a market, said Wolinsky. Each llama carried 25 pounds of alpaca. "We went into this little town, and the road ends. It actually goes down into the jungle and into the Amazon," explained Wolinsky. He captured the photo after the alpaca had been sold. The garments the couple wore were hand-woven.

Maryland Sheep And Wool

Dr. Ron Pope from Texas, who holds the last Ph.D. in wool science granted in this country, will speak on fleece judging and grading. During his presentation participants will evaluate fleeces for grade, yield, and soundness. Pope will then judge the fleece and provide individual fleece evaluations in a separate workshop.

A breeds display will present an opportunity to see more than 30 different breeds of sheep in one place. Display presentations will explain each breed's characteristics, advantages, and disadvantages. A parade of breeds will include rare and exotic as well as more popular breeds of sheep.

New to the festival this year is a club lamb jackpot. Wether and ewe lambs will be shown in four classes divided by weight. The jackpot is geared toward youth showing market lambs at county fairs, according to Robert Dinsmore, president of the Maryland Sheep Breeders Association, and will have an educational focus. "The primary goal is to kind of let the kids know where they are. To give them some pointers on feeding; and let them know how the lambs are coming along. We're excited about that."

A carcass contest and feeder lamb sale are also scheduled for those interested in the meat breeds. Carcass data from the contest will be available for display in the food building. The contest gives people a better understanding of what to look for in a meat-type animal, according to Mr. Dinsmore.

There is no admission charge for the festival, and parking is free.

Wolinsky photographed this half-shorn Marino ewe in New Zealand. "First I tried in Australia," he explained. "We were driving along the road and we saw a pen of sheep a woman was keeping. She hadn't sheared them in 18 months. The shearer I brought with me was game, so we tried shearing one. He had to stop and think how to shear just half a sheep. The sheep was so woolly and dirty when he finished it fell over on it's side and it lay there, pedaling at the air. It couldn't get up. We tried a couple more times, then I realized we needed a much better organized effort. I went to New Zealand, where a rancher set aside 100 ewes. The crew got an enormous piece of canvas and painted it with waterproof house paint, so it could be sponged off between sheep. This is the 30th sheep."

4-H'ers Stitch Cozy Coats For Needy

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Sewing machines hummed and attracted spectators at the Lebanon Plaza Mall as 4-H'ers and volunteers assembled 108 warm fleece pullovers for the needy.

The Cozy Coat Workshop, headed by Sharon Coyle, was a lesson in cooperation as the fashionable pullovers were sewn in assembly-line fashion during the fun and educational workshop.

Participants had a chance to used the latest state-of-the-art sewing equipment supplied by the Husqvarna Viking Sewing Machine Company in cooperation with Fred Strobel's Sewing Center of Myerstown and Penn State Cooperative Extension. Guilford Mills of North Caroline and Pine Grove donated the fleece. Richland Cutting cut the pullovers in advance using patterns designed by PDU of Reinholds.

The coats will be distributed through Lebanon County Christian Ministries, which works with other local agencies to provide for the needs of victims of domestic violence, fire, and economical hardship.

Auctioneers Note: The Zook family has had this Registered Ayrshire herd for over 60 years. This dairy has tremendous breeding behind it, cattle have not and are not being pushed and are making 50 lbs.!! The Heifers are Outstanding and very well conditioned. These cows will go on to do a great job for their new owners either grazing or conventional. Many cows over 100,000 lifetime are still in the herd. There are quite a few records over 17,000 lbs. A lot of good solid breeding in this dairy. The only reason for this dispersal is Alvin has decided to retire So come on out and support the Zook Family, help your self to some great Ayrshire Genetics and see one of the Best Ayrshire herds in Pa. Dispersed.

Terms: Cash or Good Check Day of Sale.

Everyone's Responsible For Clean, Abundant Drinking Water

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The quality of water in lakes, streams and ponds affects the quality of the water you drink, said Eric Norland, Ohio State University Extension water quality coordinator.

"Many people don't understand that the quality of surface water can impact the quality of their drinking water," Norland said. "They think ground water is their only source of drinking water."

There are more than 60,000 ponds smaller than one acre in Ohio, and many of them are used for private drinking water supplies, he said. About 60 percent of the state's public water supply systems also draw water from surface water sources.

Drinking Water Week is May 3-9, and educational events in libraries, schools, drinking water treatment plants, shopping malls, city halls and other places will be held to show the importance of drinking water and how individuals can guafd the nation's drinking water supply.

"The week hopes to raise public understanding of our drinking water supplies and show people what happens to water prior to it coming out of the tap," Norland said. "Each and every one of us is responsible for protecting our drinking water supplies, whether from private ponds or public rivers, lakes and streams, and our daily decisions can either improve or degrade our water's quality."

There are many things people can do to protect or improve the quality of surface waters, he said. Land developers can prevent sediments from escaping construction sites, agricultural producers can control erosion and properly handle pesticides and livestock manure, and anyone can schedule river cleanups or hazardous waste collections.

Things people can do to improve drinking water quality every day include: choose organic paints and natural finishes; use phosphate-free detergents; choose natural cleansers such as vinegar, ammonia and baking soda; support the preservation of wetlands that help clean water; urge local officials to start a wellhead protection program; replace underground storage tanks with aboveground storage; have abandoned wells sealed by a licensed contractor; and appeal to political figures to enforce regulations regarding the dumping of hazardous wastes.

"And, preventing water pollution from occurring is usually cheaper than paying to clean it up," Norland said.

Norland is one of many people helping create a Source Water Assessment Program, or SWAP, in Ohio. The Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996 require that all states establish SWAPs. Ohio's SWAP plans, which must be submitted to the Environmental Protection Agency by Feb. 6, 1999, will describe water source areas in the state that need protection, list significant contaminants in these areas and determine how susceptible the state's public water supplies are to contamination.

"These assessments look at where water comes from and what the potential comtamination sources are," Norland said. "They should help states and localities develop plans to avoid costly contamination events."

Conservation of drinking water also is important, especially in areas where water yields are low. The more water people use, the more water needs to be treated before it can be returned to streams and other water sources, Norland said. Water treatment is expensive and consumes energy.

Excess water used outside that is not treated before returning to water sources has the potential to carry pollutants through surface runoff.

"It also makes good economic sense to conserve water if you're on a public water supply, because the less you use, the less you pay for," Norland said.

To conserve water, people can:

- Fill a pitcher with tap water and put it in a refrigerator for a cold drink, rather than running the tap until it is cold every time.
- Defrost frozen food in the refrigerator or in the microwave instead of running water over it.
- Check faucets, toilets and pipes for leaks.
- When washing dishes by hand, use one basin for washing and another for rinsing, instead of letting the water run.
- Insulate a water heater and all hot water pipes, so less water will be wasted before hot water flows.
- Use a broom instead of a hose to clean sidewalks and driveways.
- Use a moisture indicator to tell when a lawn needs watering and when it doesn't.

People who are interested in more information about drinking water, Drinking Water Week, or educational water-related activities for youth can contact the 4-H agent at their county office of Ohio State University Extension.

NYS IPM Berry Marketing Program Deadline May 1

OWEGO, N.Y. — The 1998 New York State integrated pest management (IPM) Berry Marketing Program is open to all strawberry, raspberry, and blueberry growers in New York.

To sign on, contact the New York State Berry Growers Association (NYSBGA), 3965 Waverly Road, Owego, NY 13827, (607) 687-2874, fax (607) 687-9172. Sign up deadline is May 1.

The program, established in 1997, incorporates grower certification with aggressive marketing strategies to meet the expanding consumer demand for fresh, locally-grown fruit that tastes good and is good for the environment.

While most growers in the state already produce berries using IPM practices, membership in the association and certification as an IPM grower are necessary to make full use of the program and its benefits.

For additional information about the NYS IPM Berry Marketing Program, about IPM practices, and about other topics related to marketing, contact the NYSBGA.

Thanks and Congratulations to Less Corn, More Beans In Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Ohio farmers said in a government survey they'd plant more soybeans and less corn this year, but what they will really do depends upon a great unknown — this spring's weather, said 'Luther Tweeten, an agricultural economist at Ohio State University.

A U.S. Department of Agriculture report released at the end of March said Ohio farmers will plant 2 percent more soybeans, or 100,000 more acres than last year. Farmers intend to plant 6 percent less corn, or 200,000 fewer acres. Winter wheat acreage is expected to remain the same.

Tweeten said farmers may change their minds, though. If spring is warm and dry, they may plant more corn, which has a slightly longer growing season than soybeans. If the weather turns cold and wet, farmers will have to plant later and switch more acreage into soybeans, he said.

"It's a weather phenomenon at this stage," Tweeten said.

The report left farmers' intentions for 100,000 acres undetermined, which could reflect their indecision at the time of the survey said agricultural statistician Charles Mayzlik, Ohio Agricultural Statistics Service. Small amounts of that acreage may go into hay or be lost to non-farm development, he said.

Tweenten said farmers have more flexibility to change their intentions because the government ended production controls under the Freedom-to-Farm legislation passed two years ago. Prior farm programs required farmers to plant a certain amount of corn or wheat in order to receive crop support benefits. Now farmers can base planting intentions on perceived marketing opportunities or weather problems.

"Farmers like that flexibility," Tweetnen said. "It's nice for them to switch from corn to soybeans or from soybeans to corn depending on the weather conditions."

Another Ohio State agricultural economist, Carl Zulauf, agreed that farm policy gives producers more flexibility. He thinks another factor affecting planting intentions is that farmers have less cash costs with soybeans, which don't use as much fertilizers as corn, he said.

However, Zulauf is concerned about a long-term corn trend indicating that Ohio farmers are losing a yield advantage compared to other corn-producing states. Ohio's corn yields were 34 percent higher than the national average from 1948 through 1952, and only 1 percent higher during 1993-97, he said.

Ohio soybean yields, however, were 7 percent above the national average for 1993-97 compared to only 1 percent higher in 1948-52, he said.

The contrasting changes in yield ratios between Ohio and the United States may be one reason why Ohio plants more soybeans than corn, and the reverse is true for the United States, Zulauf said.

Zulauf hasn't figured out the reason for the comparative decline in corn yields. In general, regions can lose competitiveness because of technological lags, differential changes in localized hybrids, geoclimatic changes, managerial capabilities, or off-farm jobs competing for time.

Tweeten said farmers are also losing a competitive edge in winter wheat production because profitability per acre is less than for soybeans and corn.

"The U.S. seems to be losing a comparative advantage in wheat not just in Ohio, but across the board in the Great Plains," Tweeten said. "We have not improved wheat yields at the pace of corn yields."

In all, Ohio farmers said they would plant 3.4 million acres of corn, compared to 3.6 million acres last year. The national corn acreage is expected to be 80.8 million acres — the highest in 13 years — or 1 percent above last year's.

The USDA reports that Ohio farmers intend to plant 4.6 million soybean acres, compared to 4.5 million last year. Nationally, farmers said they will plant the highest acreage ever — 72 million acres of soybeans — or 2 percent more than last year.

Ohio's winter wheat plantings are expected to stay firm at 1.2 million acres. Nationally, winter wheat acreage is expected to be 46.6 million acres, or a decline of 4 percent from last year.

The potential for a big U.S. soybean crop plus an outstanding South American crop currently being harvested have sobered recent prices, Zulauf said. Add to that the lackluster export demand because of the Asian economic crisis and a slackening of domestic demand.

"There's a lot of soybeans out there," Zulauf said.

The supply-demand situation is tighter for corn, even though growth in domestic feed usage is slowing, Zulauf said. Furthermore, intended plantings for sorghum, a competing feedgrain, are lower.

"The bottom line is we have a long way to go with this crop," Zulauf said. "If you want me to tell you the price of corn for this fall, we'll have to wait to see the production this summer.

If crop weather is excellent and demand growth remains slow, farmers can use the government's marketing loan program to limit the damage of plunging markets, provided farmers are enrolled in production flexibility contracts, Zulauf said.

Marketing loans are available for corn, soybeans and wheat, Zulauf said. Marketing loans cannot be forfeited to the government, as they could in traditional programs. If the market place falls below the loan rate, the farmer can pay off the loan at the lower market price. This assures farmers of the loan rate as a minimum price, even though market prices might be lower.

The government will announce loan rates for 1998-planted crops in the coming months. Rates vary by county, but the national 1997-planted crop loan rates, per bushel, were $1.89 for corn; $5.26 for soybeans, and $2.58 for wheat.

Cochran Fund Accepts Proposals Forestry Projects

YOUNGSVILLE (Warren Co.) — The Sandy Cochran Memorail Fund is seeking applications through June 1, 1998 for the funding of educational projects that will support good forest management and the forest industry in northwestern Pennsylvania and southwestern New York.

The Cochran Fund was established in the memory of Roe "Sandy" Cochran, a former Penn State forestry extension agent.

According to Ken Kane, past committee chair and a consulting forester from Kane, "Cochran was widely known and respected. He stressed the importance of continuing education and research-based knowledge. Cochran worked with everyone in the forest industry, from independent loggers and mill operators to those involved in forestry education at the local, state, and national levels."

Susan Stout, project forester with the U.S. Forest Service and Cochran Fund Committee member, said "Cochran's vision for the forestry community included safe work procedures, the application of best management practices in the forests, the cultivation of promising markets for local forest products, the application of new technologies, and the creation of a policy environment created by informed political leaders. The Cochran Memorial Fund is intended to support projects that further these ends."

High priority will be given by the fund to projects directly affecting a 17-county area in the Northern Allegheny Region. A variety of projects have been funded in the past including support for the Allegheny National Forest "Forum," materials support to the 1995 Warren County Youth Conservation Camp, and funding for the development of several forestry photo displays. Requests for academic scholarship will also be entertained by the fund.

Applications for funding and further information can be obtained from The Sandy Cochran Memorial Fund in care of The Forest Sciences Laboratory, P.O. Box 267, Irvine, PA 16329-0267. Deadline for submission of all project applications and supporting information is June 1, 1998.

Conference Shows Producers How To Benefit From Technologies

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The team of more than 100 Pioneer Hi-Bred agronomists from across the country converged in Indianapolis recently to learn more about today's latest crop production and precision farming technologies from leading university and company experts.

The educational conference featured presentations on topics such as new herbicide systems, insect and disease management strategies for corn and soybeans, 1997 Pioneer agronomy research findings, performance and management of ECB-resistant corn hybrids, and new products under development for special end-use markets.

"Pioneer has a long standing tradition of providing agronomic knowledge and in-field assistance to our customers to help them improve profitability. Our Agronomy Conference is an integral part of that effort and sets the stage for our efforts during the coming crop season," said Paul Carter, agronomy sciences manager at Pioneer in Des Moines, Iowa.

With an estimated 80 percent of Pioneer® brand hybrids being consumed by livestock, a focal point of the conference was an update on the Pioneer-Optimum joint venture and new products under development for end-use markets. Agronomists learned more about the pending launch and agronomic management of highly available phosphorus corn hybrids. These hybrids allow livestock to absorb more of the phosphorus, leaving less to be excreted in manure.

Other products in development include corn hybrids high in available lysine and hybrids that combine the benefits of high oil, high lysine and highly available phosphorus. Soybean varieties will soon feature value-added traits such as high oleic, low linolenic, low saturates, high protein and high sucrose for use in the food, feed and industrial markets.

"Pioneer agronomists not only hear from leading university and industry experts plus the Pioneer team of nearly one dozen agronomy research managers and precision farming experts, they have a unique opportunity to learn from each other during our Hall of Ideas exhibition," Carter said.

An agronomic trade show of sorts, the Hall of Ideas featured more than 50 exhibits from Pioneer agronomists, researchers, product managers and technical experts from across the country. Presentations on insect and weed management systems for soybeans and corn were popular among the agronomists attending.

"Today, seed is often the delivery mechanism for weed and insect management choices. Pioneere agronomy research has been evaluating these different systems, many since before their introduction to producers," said Dennis Wickham, agronomist from Hilliard, Ohio. "I can take this information back to the customers in my area to help them evaluate these systems and determine which systems best fit their production challenges and profitability goals."

In addition to information from Pioneer, the agronomists also heard from Tom Bauman, Purdue University and Bob Hayes from the University of Tennessee on the efficacy and crop responses from new herbicide systems.

Precision farming presentations on yield map interpretation and split planter comparisons also were popular among the agronomists attending.

"Proper use of yield monitors and mapping systems and the interpretation of the data from these systems to help develop site-specific management plans are the focus of our precision farming efforts," said Phil Bax, agronomist from Spencer, Iowa. "In my area, I've also worked with producers to conduct split planter comparisons. This technique lets a producer compare two products or management practices in parallel strips across a field to help choose the method that offers the greatest production benefit. It's just one more way we can help producers maximize the return they get from Pioneer products."

Comparisons can include established versus newew hybrids or varieties, two fertilizer treatments such as starter and no starter, two seeding rates or seed treatments or products from different seed companies.

The Pioneer Agronomy Conference is a week-long event held each year in February. This year's event was attended by guests from Europe, Africa and Asia.

United Ag Services Posts Reports

HORSEHEADS, N.Y. – United Ag Services recently held its annual meeting at the Holiday Inn.

In his opening remarks, President J. W. Welch stated how pleased he was with the continued sustained growth of United Ag Services and its member cooperatives.

Membership grew by 31 percent this past year. He believes United's basic structure of providing member services and quality markets while not being required to invest in bricks and mortar appeals to dairy farmers. A strong commitment to sustaining the family farm without regard to size is the basic concept of United and its members cooperatives.

James Patsos, United CEO, presented the financial report. United continues to maintain a strong equity position. Earnings are kept at a minimum in order to maximize the return to the dairy farmer members. Many cooperatives brag about the thousands or millions of dollars returned to their producers without revealing the true measure – the amount per hundred weight returned. United's philosophy is to improve the monthly milk checks of its members.

Efficiencies in operations have allowed United to have no increase in dues since its inception more than 10 years ago. United has also been able to enhance its income by providing accounting, employee payroll, and other services to individual dairy farmers and other agricultural businesses.

In his management report, Patsos remarked about how challenging a time we have in the dairy business today - possibly one of the most exciting items in history. Plant sales, co-op mergers, Federal Order reforms, and the Northeast Dairy Compact expansion into New York and Pennsylvania all demand our attention and involvement.

Currently milk prices have shown some improvement; however; we can expect normal seasonal adjustments this year. Moreover, we should not see the dramatic changes in prices which took place over the past several months.

The current strong national economy will help buoy the demand for diary products, thereby helping to uphold better milk prices this year.

Patsos also spoke about the cooperative's efforts to work with dairy farmers in western New York to develop a market for organic milk.

Peter Fredricks of the market Administrator's office discussed the Federal Order Reform process and the timetable of voting and implementation. He encouraged the dairy farmers to attend the hearing in Syracuse and submit written comments regarding the proposed order.

Edward Gallagher, director of planning and regulatory reform for Dairylea, spent considerable time discussing the proposed order reform and how it would impact the dairy farmers. He urged all members to write to USDA Secretary Glickman, requesting the use of Option la for pricing class I milk. Option 1b would reduce class I prices by $1.07 per hundredweight when fully implemented. He also discussed the effect of the change from farm point pricing to plant point pricing.

Following the discussion period, Robert Nichols, Addison, N.Y. Don Hamilton, Millerton, Pa.; and Laverne McCarty, Forksville, Pa.; were re-elected to the board of directors Eldon Towner, Bath, N.Y. and Douglass Steward, Rome Pa. were newly elected directors.

Because United Co-op has a one-member, one-vote policy, the increase in membership required the addition of two directors to the board.

Outgoing President J.W. Welch was presented a plaque in recognition of his many years of dedicated service to dairy farmers. Douglas Stewart also made a presentation to Welch since he has resigned as president of Progressive Dairymen's Cooperative.

Agricultural Cooperatives Leaders Complete Directors Institute

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – A seminar on the role and responsibilities of the director in leading an agricultural cooperative was held at the 14th Annual Cooperative Director Institute here at the Penn Stater Conference Center Hotel.

More than 40 participants from 13 states and several international representatives attended the institute, which offers issue-driven educational programs to develop the business and leadership skills of cooperative members.

Sponsored jointly by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and Penn State's Cooperative Business Education and Research program (CBERP), the institute identifies and develops emerging leaders within the cooperative community.

The institute trains directors of the region's member-owned cooperative organizations to build the knowledge and skills needed to succeed in the rapidly changing business environment. To be successful, cooperatives must maintain and increase their value by helping members improve profits, gain access to markets and services, and limit risk.

Other topics addressed at the institute included director liability, communications, strategic issues in cooperative mergers and joint venturing, board management relations, leadership, strategic planning, understanding cooperative finances, and the changing legal and regulatory environment.

Keynote speakers included Bruce Anderson, professor of agricultural economics at Cornell University; Gordon Milbrandt, cooperative leadership consultant from Spokane, Wash.; Don Schriver, executive vice-president of newly formed Dairy Farmers of America (DFA) Cooperative Inc.; Dennis Mullen, president and chief executive of Agri-Link Foods Inc.; Donald Dufek, retired senior vice-president of Kroger Foods Inc.; Poerter Little, vice president of CoBank; Chris Fox of Agway Cooperative Inc.; and William Frantz, manager of environmental affairs for Ocean Spray Cranberries Inc.

Dr. Robert D. Steele, dean of Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, and Samuel E. Hayes, Jr., Pennsylvania's secretary of agriculture, addressed the conference at separate luncheons. A panel of industry experts led discussion of key issues driving strategic moves by their organizations.

Following presentations by Mullen, Schriver and Dufek on behalf of AgrilLink Foods (Pro-Fac), DFA Cooperative Inc. and Kroger Foods, respectively, the panelists answered questions about their recent experiences.

An advanced director institute, coordinated by Cornell Cooperative Extension and Northeast Cooperative Inc., and Kroger Foods, respectively, the panelists answered questions about their recent experiences.

An advanced director institute, coordinated by Cornell Cooperative Extension and the Northeast Cooperative Counsel (with support from CoBank), is scheduled for November 1998 in Albany, N Y. Penn State CBERP, with the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives, also offers ongoing training in cooperative principles; general business concepts and practices; and leadership for cooperative employees, young cooperative leaders, and older teens. For more information, call Penn State CBERP at (814) 863-0644 or send electronic mail to cberp@psu.edu.

Dairy Profit Seminars Aug. 11-13 At Empire Farm Day

STANLEY, N.Y. – Keep the dates of Aug. 11-13 open for the fourth annual Dairy Profit Seminars to be held at Empire Farm Days in Seneca Falls, N.Y. at the Rodman Lott Farm.

Management seminars held daily offer new ideas and information for Northeast dairy producers. Complimentary lunch is served to all dairy producers who attend.

Tuesday, Aug. 11 features alternative management styles and employee relations. Wednesday, Aug. 12 overviews cow comfort and using sand bedding for the ultimate in cow comfort. Thursday, Aug. 14 highlights nutrition and will especially emphasize on-farm shrink – how to avoid feed loss after your commodities are on the farm.

Melanie Wickham, Empire Farm Days Show manager, said "The Dairy Profit Seminars are a tremendous way for dairy producers to keep up the the latest information while seeing and hearing what others in the industry are doing. The panel discussions featuring your peers allows everyone to learn something new. Be sure to join us."

Seminar sponsor Agway Agricultural Products offers the daily sessions as a way for Northeast diary producers to continually gain useful management information. Mark Giles, director of strategic development, said "We feel very strongly that the Dairy Profit Seminars are invaluable for all our customers. The seminars address topics that are timely and useful in today's dairy industry."

With hundreds of exhibits and displays, Empire Farm Days offer many opportunities for farmers to see the latest agricultural technology and products. Plan now to attend. The Dairy Profit Seminars are sponsored by Agway Ag Products, Syracuse, N.Y. and coordinated by HFW Communications, Sandy Creek, N.Y.

Program Helps Keep Ohio's Dairies Competitive

COLUMBUS, Ohio — To stay competitive, many Ohio dairy farms wil have to make some pretty dramatic changes in the next five years, said Dianne Shoemaker, agriculture and natural resources agent at the Columbian and Mahoning County Offices of Ohio State University Extension.

The Profitability and Expansion Initiative, created in 1996 by members of Extension's Northeast District Dairy Excel Team, is designed to help. Ohio's milk production has dropped from seventh to 10th nationally and is predicted to fall to 11th withing a year.

"The initiative will help a person who is committed to improving their management and looking at continuing to have a profitable operation for the next 10 to 20 years," Shoemaker said.

The three-phase program assesses the current competitiveness of a dairy farm and its ability to undergo major changes or expansion, helps the farm develop change or expansion plans, and assists with completion of those plans.

In phase one, Excel Team members visit an operation and assess its management, financial status, and facilities and resources. They then offer suggestions of how the operation could become more profitable.

Cost control suggestions, farm strengths and weaknesses, estate planning needs and ideas for facility, nutrition and management changes are some of the assessments made during phase one, Shoemaker said.

Three or four team members usually take part in phase one, but other Extension faculty and specialists help if needed.

Eight dairy operations, including four pilot test farms, completed a phase one assessment in 1997, Shoemaker said. Another has been done in 1998, and two more are scheduled. A phase one farm assessment costs $500, which covers the travel, telephone and support expenses of team members.

This year, Dairy Excel Team members are developing phase two of the initiative. The second phase looks at long-range budgeting, helps create plans to improve the profitability of an operation without expansion, and helps develop expansion plans for farmers who want to expand. Environmental issues, operational goals and objectives, cash flow projections, building plans, site plans, work force changes and product marketing will all be part of phase two, Shoemaker said.

"During phase three, team members will help implement plans created during phase two and offer follow-up support if plans change once producers start building and pouring cement, which often can happen," she said.

Separate fees will be charged for phases two and three, but the amounts have not yeat been set.

The Northeast District Dairy Excel Team decided to start the Profitability and Expansion Initiative because no other service like it exists in the state, Shoemaker said. Plus, the Dairy Industry Task Force identified the program as a need, and many graduates of Extension's Dairy Excel program were asking for help with expansion planning.

The Extension Dairy Excel Team members involved in the program have been Shoemaker, Lanny Anderson in Ashtabula County, Northeast District dairy industry specialist Bruce Brockett, Tom Noyes in Wayne County, Ernie Oelker in Trumbull County and Northeast District farm management specialist Jim Polson. Anderson recently retired, but Jim Skeeles in Lorain County and Terry Beck in Wayne County soon will join the team, Shoemaker said.

Dairy producers do not have to be Extension Dairy Excel graduates to take part in the program. To get started, interested producers should either contact their county extension offices and ask about the program or contact one of the team's members directly.

"Most of the operations we have assessed so far have been in northeast Ohio, and we'll probably stay close to this area," Shoemaker said. "But we haven't said 'no' to anyone yet."

Phase one usually takes five weeks to six weeks to complete from start to finish, and there is a two-month waiting list. But once the other two team members begin helping, the wait time should get shorter, she said.

So far, surveys of dairy operators who have completed phase one of the initiative have been positive.

"They said they liked the team approach, open-minded evaluations and unbiased analysis," Shoemaker said. "This new opportunity helps position Ohio's dairy operations for a profitable future."

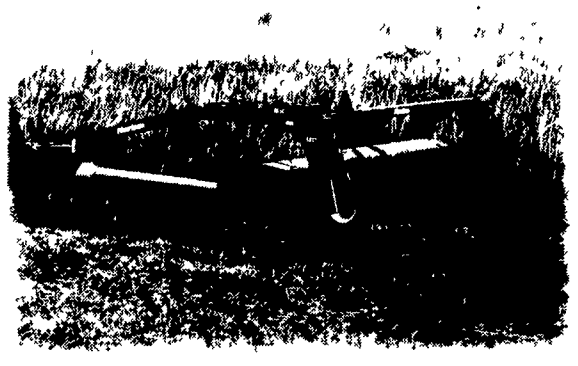
Maximize Your Yield Potential For A Price That's Minimal



When it comes to maximizing hay's Relative Feed Value and Crude Protein, no other disc mower conditioner outperforms the New Idea® 5200 Series. And no other gives you as much value. It's high-speed cutterbars glide through fields quickly and easily, while the Tri-Cor® Conditioning Rolls gently condition the stems, speeding drydown without damaging the leaves.

A reliable design keeps you mowing and conditioning year after year. With the segmented cutterbar driveshaft, a New Idea innovation, the cutterbar is truly modular, which makes for easy maintenance.

Visit your AGCO® New Idea dealer today for a look at the disc mower conditioner that'll exceed your expectations – not your budget.

Rake a Clean and Fast Swath of 11'2" With a New Rake from Binkley & Hurst

Thorough Construction

With large treads and wheels with balloon tires placed closely to the rake tines, a good adaption to the ground and an efficient clean raking can be obtained. The swaths are placed in airy, quick-drying swaths easy to pick up The articulating head-stock is something between a normal three-point suspension and a draw-bar The rakes follow the tractor freely as with towing, but automatically swivel behind the tractor and locked in transport position when raised The rakes follow the tractor far into the corners and can rake the swaths waway from the fence. Many rake arms with 4 double rake tines give the machine a high capacity. Easy fold up for road travle and storage - 5'3" width.

The Most Powerful Blower Made In Stock At Binkley & Hurst Bros., Inc. - 1000 RPM Model 1580 Gehl - Get One Today!

Choose The Gehl Blower That's Right For You

With three models it's easy to match a high-capacity Gehl blower to your operation In side by side tests at a 100' silo, Gehl blowers out-performed the best the competition had to offer, with the Model 1580 cleaning out an 18' self-unloading box full of haylage 18% faster than the closest competitive blower and 25% faster than one of the so called "leaders "

Gehl's secret is the twin spinner delivery system and the twin-sided fan Two 24-inch spinners rifle your crop into the blower fan at nearly 35 mph There, the twin-sided fan, with paddles on each side, blows the material up the pipe with ease it's almost like getting the performance of two blowers in one

Gehl blowers are also loaded with on convenience features you're sure to appreciate

The three main factors that contribute to a forage blower's capacity are tip speed, hopper capabilities and available horsepower Generally speaking, for optimum capacity, the blower requires at least one horsepower for each foot the material must be blown

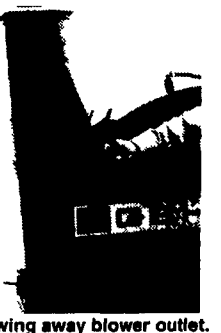
For instance, a blower on a 20-foot-diameter by 60-foot-center silo would require 70-plus horsepower On a 25-foot-diameter by 90-foot center fill silo you should have 100-plus horsepower

As a guideline, we recommend the following

Silo size	HP required	Gehl Model
20'Wx60'-70' high	70 hp	FB1540
20'Wx80' high	90 hp	FB1580 (540 rpm) in stock
25'Wx90' and higher	100+ hp	FB1580 (1000 rpm) in stock

Horsepower requirements can be reduced with smoother unloading forage boxes and a wider gooseneck at the top of the silo

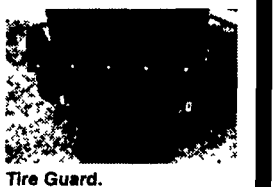
Adjustable left tire. Setting up at the silo is faster and easier The adjustable left axle lets you line up the blower without loosening and adjusting the rim sheet Simply adjust the tire up or down until you get the matching angle to your pipe



Swing away blower outlet. They're more than tremendous blowing capacity designed into these blowers Gehl swing away outlet makes it easier than ever to check fan paddle and rim sheet clearances and for rim sheet liner replacement (Note this outlet should never be opened until the pto is disconnected from the tractor and the blower disc has stopped turning

Greater rim sheet life. These blowers feature split rim sheets with a special inner replaceable liner This extra hard liner is twice the thickness of ordinary rim sheet steel In addition, when it finally does wear out, you only replace the liner that fits in the extreme wear area of the blower, right below the outlet You don't have to replace the entire rim sheet! The result reduced costs over the life of your Gehl blower

Easier, faster fit to silo pipe. Once you have the fit angle between your blower outlet and your pipe, it's easy to slide the telescope pipe into position This new lip assures proper alignment and fit



Tire Guard. This tire guard protects the right blower tire when you're cleaning up around the blower with a silage fork It is standard equipment on the 1580 and 1560, optional on the 1540

3 Pt. Finsh Mower

The Rhino® SE8 and SE10 are economical rotary mowers designed to help maintain larger acreages of grass, weeds, stalks, or material up to 1" in diameter.

The streamlined close coupled design allows economical operation on tractors as small as 30 horsepower on the SE8 and 45 horsepower on the SE10 The 85 HP center gearbox and 60 HP outboard gearboxes are protected from sudden shockloads by a slip clutch on the main driveline and torque dampeners on the side driveshafts Pan blade carriers help the unit glide over field obstacles and updraft blades with a 4 blade overlap provide a clean cut The SE8 is available as a 540 RPM unit with either a CAT II lift or clevis pull type hitch to fit a range of tractors The SE10 is available with either a heavy-duty CAT II III Q H or pull type hitch for 540 or 1000 RPM tractors The 10 gauge deck is reinforced front to-rear and side to side for optimum strength The Cat 4 main driveline and all gearboxes are fully-shielded for greater operator safety Front and rear safety deflectors are standard equipment to help reduce the risk of damage or injury due to thrown objects Front and rear chain guards are optional equipment Compare and you will see why the Rhino SE8 and SE10 are excellent choices for economical wide cut mowers

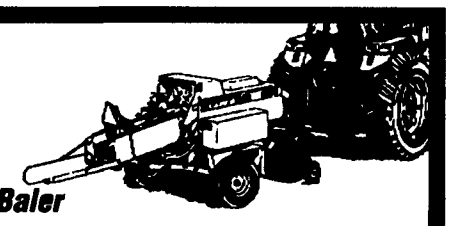
Quality Bales Right From The Start



Case IH 8545 Center-Line Rectangular Baler

A heavy-duty baler with a big appetite.
- Pre-packer provides uniform density and consistency throughout bale
- Low-profile pick-up reduces leaf loss.
- Hay moves in a straight line from pick-up to discharge for gentler handling
- Consistent bale size and weight for easy transporting.

Made right for the way you make hay.
- Mechanical or hydraulic density control available
- Sturdy knotter provides reliable tie, bale after bale
- Choice of conventional twine- or wire-tie models
- Along with twine-tie, add a hydraulic bale thrower with electric controls

High-quality balers and a whole lot more! We offer genuine, value-priced Case IH parts, reliable service support, and flexible financing to meet your business needs.

Stop in and find out more about the 8545 rectangular baler!

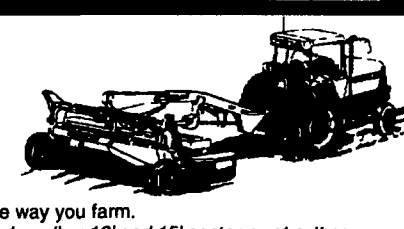
CASE IH

Make Short Work of Big Hay Jobs



Case IH Disc Mower Conditioner

Non-stop cutting for higher productivity
- Clean cut at higher ground speeds
- Faster cutting in dense or tangled crops and over obstacles
- Overhead frame design allows unrestricted crop flow
- Automatic roll separating system eliminates plugging

Fits the way you farm.
- 9' side-pull or 12' and 15' center-pivot cutting widths available
- Choice of intermeshing conditioner rolls to match your needs.
- Quick-convert from field to transport mode

Designed, tested and manufactured by Case IH at its Hesston, Kansas facility.

Along with dependable mower conditioners, you can count on us for genuine Case IH parts, professional and reliable service support and flexible financing.

On The Mark, Get Set, Grow!

The 6100 Series Rigid And Vertical Fold Planters.

Precision farming starts with precision seed placement. And that's exactly what you'll get with the White 6100 Series planters. Our pull-type planters feature an exclusive air-metering system that's designed to singulate every seed. Its low air pressure, edge-drop seed discs and short, 18" seed drop ensure precise seed placement for maximum germination.

Adaptable To Any Tillage Situation.

Our 4, 6, 8 and 12 row planters have the flexibility to meet most tillage practices both now and in the future. They're built rugged with a massive 7" x 7" frame and strong, welded-tongue design to handle the demands of heavy residue Add a 6900 splitter attachment for interplant capability.

This season get the planter that places each seed where it'll grow the best — and perform the best. Stop by your AGCO® White Planter dealer today.

Herbert Hoover Farney says, "I didn't think they could mix it."

Steve, Dale, and Herbert Hoover Farney
Silvery Falls Farms - Lowville, NY

Mr. Farney is talking about mixing 11.5% long stem dry hay by ration weight in the Knight Reel Auggie 3450, which he and his sons decided to purchase in September of 1994.

Herbert was born the day Herbert Hoover was elected president

The Farneys previously owned a three-auger Oswalt stationary unit They state that the "old mixer tended to ball material up, especially in wetter forages, while the Reel Auggie 3450 'fluffs' the ration "

The Farney's herd average is up about 1,000 lbs., and they have a higher protein test as well. They milk 160 Holsteins, and feed a total of 260 head. They like the low power requirement — the 390 cubic foot machine is powered by a John Deere 2030 tractor.

3000 Reel Auggie TMR Mixers
Now available in seven sizes with capacities from 147 to 600 cubic feet

Performance that's cut and dried.

Rugged. Reliable. Fast and versatile. The 9-foot, 3-inch Hesston® Model 1120 Mower Conditioner delivers high performance without a high price.

You'll slice through thick hay at 1,700 strokes per minute thanks to Hesston's unique half-swaybar sickle drive.

Nobody knows hay like HESSTON

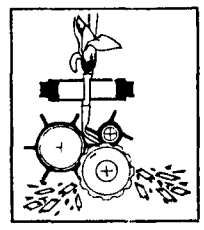
PICK CORN AND CHOP STALKS
At the Same Time with the Geringhoff Rota Disc Head

The revolutionary head saves you time and money by eliminating your stalk chopper.

Here's how it works...

The Rota Disc technique allows the corn head to draw the corn plant in quickly through the stripping system not only stripping the plant but cutting the stalk into small pieces and delivering it to the bottom of the row.



Visit our web site at http://www.geringhoff-us.com

Fits all brand combines up to 12 row sizes!

IPM Berry Marketing Program Taps Demand

OWEGO, N.Y. — For the second straight year, strawberry, raspberry, and blueberry growers in New York State (NYS) are set to draw in consumers who rate environmental stewardship as a major factor in their fruit and vegetable purchasing decisions.

Recently conducted surveys show consumers are "going for the green." Unlike trends for many specialty items, the demand for produce raised with environmentally directed practices is mainstream, not a niche market.

State berry growers are tapping in to the rapidly expanding consumer demand by using integrated pest management (IPM) practices and by receiving NYS IPM berry grower certification made possible through a progressive program created by the New York State Berry Growers Association (NYSBGA) and Cornell University's College of Agriculture and Life Sciences.

The program, established in 1997, keys roadside stand, pick-your-own, and supermarket customers to berries raised with the environment in mind. Along with the established locally grown and fresh identity, berries produced by certified growers carry the unique NYS IPM logo, spelling out that consumers can be sure the fruit they buy comes from farms using prescribed methods to enhance the environment.

In addition to grower certification, the program makes major efforts to deliver the IPM story to consumers. The NYSBGA has produced brochures and posters that explain how growers have taken the initiative to cut agricultural chemical use, incorporate environmentally-beneficial cultural practices, and plant new, disease-resistant varieties. The association is also working closely with retailers to ensure supermarket customers know berry growers in the state produce high quality fruit that not only tastes good but meets the demands for environmental responsibility.

According to Emil Ronchi, NYSBGA chairperson, New York growers are among the first in the nation to have such a program in place.

"New York berry growers are heeding the consumer's desire for tasteful, locally grown berries that are raised with environmentally friendly farming methods," Ronchi said. "We're encouraging people to look for our label. Buying New York's IPM berries supports the local economy, and it supports environmentally friendly farming."

More than 50 association members joined forces to market berries under the IPM label last year. NYSBGA represents more than 200 growers in the state, and the berry industry in the state accounts for more than $35 million annually.

Frank Wiles, an Owego grower and NYSBGA executive secretary, said the program is open this year to all strawberry, blueberry, and raspberry growers in the state. Targeted sign up deadline is May 1, although that date may be extended, he said.

IPM practices aim at reducing the amounts of agricultural chemicals applied to crops. To reduce chemical use, IPM relies on scouting fields, spraying only when economic thresholds are met, and incorporating the latest research in varieties, diseases, and pests. Cultural practices include mulching with straw to reduce weeds, rotating crops to reduce soil pests, covering crops to reduce weeds, preserving bees and other beneficial insects, and determining fertilizer requirements by testing plant leaves.

Wiles said most berry growers in the state are already using IPM practices. To gain certification as an IPM grower, farmers need to be a member of NYSBGA, sign onto the program, document their spray records, and receive verification of practices by an independent third party, he said.

The NYSBGA has hired Don Prostak of American IPM, a New Jersey-based consulting firm, to serve as independent certifier in 1998. Prostak and other American IPM employees will visit growers prior to harvest to help growers with their records, review practices, and verify their IPM status.

New York growers can learn more about the 1998 IPM Berry Marketing Program by contacting the NYSBGA, 3965 Waverly Road, Owego, NY 13827, (607) 687-2874, fax (607) 687-9172.

Leading Farmers Want More Biotechnology

PHILADELPHIA — There is no doubt about it — leading U.S. cotton, rice and soybean growers see new biotechnology developments as crucial for the continuance of profitably raising crops.

Past participants in the Producer Information Exchange (PIE) program were recently surveyed for their opinions about various aspects of farming leading into the spring planting season.

PIE participants are elite farmers chosen to tour other farming areas so that they can enhance their own farming techniques and gain an understanding of problems faced by their peers. Participants are chosen in cooperation with The Cotton Foundation, American Soybean Association, California Rice Growers, and Delta Council. Participants in PIE are often times officers in the commodity associations.

Nearly nine of every 10 past PIE participants responding to the survey rated future biotechnology developments as "very important" for the future of crop production.

It was also quite clear that higher yielding crop varieties are seen as the exact crop improvement that they see as most important. Nearly half of the responders referred to higher yielding varieties as the major need. Other crop improvements such as varieties with specific end-user requested traits were much farther down the list in priority.

The survey was conducted by FMC Corporation who sponsors the PIE programs with grants to the various commodity groups.

"It was obvious from the responses that the growers completing the survey are leaders and regularly let their opinions be known," said Ed Cherry, FMC director of government regulations and agricultural business affairs, who oversees the PIE programs for FMC. "Nearly three-fourths of those responding to the survey had been in contact with their U.S. Congress representative or senator within the last 12 months.

"The survey gave us a good feel for what some of the best producers are thinking prior to this spring planting season," Cherry said. He notes that the 16 percent response to the 567 surveys mailed was quite good, but the numbers are not statistically valid.

"It was kind of discouraging to read all the resentment of government oversight being blamed for limiting companies from developing new technology products," Cherry said. "Nearly half the respondents suggested the government approval process for new products is a problem."

BELARUS VALUE. IN MORE WAYS THAN ONE.

The 8000 Series from Belarus is a new generation of tractors for a new generation of farmers. But like always, Belarus tractors are strong on dependability and easy on your pocketbook.

The 8000 Series has four versatile models to suit your individual needs. Choose from the two wheel drive 8011 and 8311, or the tough four wheel drive of our 8045 and 8345. Each comes equipped with a rugged 81 hp, four cylinder, fuel efficient engine, and is available with cab or ROPS frame.

Our 8000 Series also offers new features like a synchromesh transmission with 14 forward and 4 reverse speeds. An improved turning radius provides even greater maneuverability, making the 8000 Series a welcome addition to any farm.

Our new generation of tractors shows how easy improving on affordability can be. When you're the company that sets the affordability standard, that is. With our new features and design, plus our ease of maintenance, you've got the tractors that see you through a full day's work.

Martin Completes Program

READING (Berks Co.) — Reading Area Community College has announced that Michael J. Martin, New Holland, has successfully completed the auctioneering certification program.

The Certiciate Program was designed to provide students with in-depth knowledge of the techniques, procedures, and principles of communication, appraisal, management, marketing and law.

Successful completion of the program enables the student to sit for the Pennsylvania Auctioneer Licensing Exam. The exam was held in Harrisburg on March 18.

Auctioneers Attend Estate Specialist Seminar

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. — Sanford L. Alderfer and Vernon L. Martin attended the Estate Specialist Seminar offered by the Auction Marketing Institute headquartered here.

Twenty-eight auctioneers throughout the United States and Canada attended the seminar, designed to help auctioneers network with other professionals in the financial, business, and legal community.

The Auction Marketing Institute programs are designed to educate and train auctioneers in ways to enhance their services to clients and customers.

The Auction Marketing Institute awards the Certified Auctioneers Institute (CAI), the Accredited Auctioneer (AARE), and the Graduate Personal Property Appraisal (GPPA) designation to auctioneers who meet educational and experiential requirements.

Sandy and Vernon are the owners of the Sanford Alderfer Auction Company in Hatfield, Pa.

DuPont, Griffin Announce Joint Venture

VALDOSTA, Ga. — DuPont and Griffin Corporation announced they have completed negotiations and formally launched their new joint venture, Griffin L.L.C., in April.

Griffin L.L.C. is based in Valdosta, Ga. and led by R.A. (Rusty) Griffin, who serves as CEO of the company. The Griffin L.L.C. work force grew to about 1,100 employees worldwide when about 500 DuPont employees transferred to the joint venture.

As part of the equal partnership agreement, DuPont is contributing four post-patent crop protection products along with manufacturing facilities in Barranquilla, Columbia, and Goiabal, Brazil. The products are Karmex® (diuron herbicide), Lorox® (linuron herbicide), Manzate® (mancozeb fungicide) and Vendex® (fenbutatinoxide miticide). Griffin is contributing more than 30 crop protection products as well as its manufacturing facilities in Valdosta, Houston and Camacari, Brazil. Griffin is also contributing its aquatic treatment, nursery supply and ornamental products.

"The joint venture broadened Griffin's global market access and strengthened its position as a leader in supplying post-patent crop protection products. Griffin is already the world's leading supplier of copper-based fungicides, and the new products give Griffin a broader product portfolio to meet the needs of its customers in more than 80 countries," said Rusty Griffin.

Griffin's management team retained responsibility for managing the company on a global basis, and strategic decisions will be made by the Members Committee (directors) of Griffin L.L.C.

Winterhardy Perennial Ryegrass Thrives In Northeast

LOGDENSBURG, N.J. — European winter perennial ryegrass varieties seeded in 1995 continue to perform well in New York on the farm as well as in the research plots.

A study conducted at the USDA/NRCS Big Flats Plant Materials Center has shown that Barenbrug's BG-34 Perennial Ryegrass stand is in excellent shape following three New York winters. Adjoining plots of a Winterhardy Orchardgrass have sustained damage and lost stand density. The work is being carried out by Darrell Emmick, grasslands specialist for NRCS (National Resources Conservation Service).

Why the emphasis on perennial ryegrass? It is the highest energy and protein cool season grass available. Its high palatability also results in very high intake by livestock.

Research on BG-34 Perennial Ryegrass at Utah State University has resulted in mid-lactation dairy cattle producing 55 pounds of milk per cow with no grain supplements. The above are some of the temperate climate areas in the world use perennial ryegrass.

Barenbrug, the world's largest grass seed company, markets the BG-34 Perennial Ryegrass blend for use in pastures. Many Northeast grazers are using the ryegrass blend to thicken up existing pasture stands. Perennial ryegrass is relatively easy to establish into existing forage through no-till seeding or broadcasting it a chain harrow or other drag is used. On moist soils, perennial ryegrass can be broadcasted immediately before the season's first grazing with livestock. Livestock punch the seed into the ground where it then may grow. A normal grazing pattern may be followed. Full stands of ryegrass can be established conventionally.

BG-34 contains a blend of three very late maturing (late heading date) varieties. These varieties are hardly determined to go into seedhead (because of shorter daylight than Europe) which is a major advantage because it increases palatability of the grass stand even more.

New World Tractor From Massey Ferguson

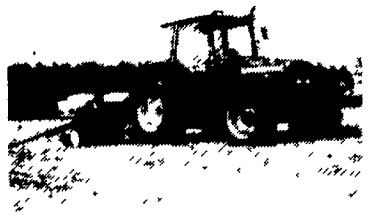
ATLANTA, Ga. — Massey Ferguson is introducing its next generation of world tractors with increased performance to meet the needs of today's progressive farmer.

The new MF 4200 mid-range tractor series, with eight models from 55 to 99 PTO horsepower, cover the power categories most in demand by farmers in North America and throughout the world.

Massey Ferguson dealers from across the U.S. and Canada enthusiastically reviewed and operated the new 4200 Series cab tractors at the Massey Ferguson North American Dealer Conference in Kansas City.

Massey Ferguson has been the world's best-selling tractor brand for the last 34 consecutive years, and the company is confident the new 4200 Series tractors wil be a major factor in maintaining this leadership position well into the 21st century.

Massey Ferguson's 300 Series tractors gained recognition among world farmers for high levels of productivity and reliability. The new MF 4200 Series tractors build on the proven quality and durability of the MF 300 Series with the added benefit of more than 70 percent of its features and designs being new or re-engineered for increased productivity and reliability.



Massey Ferguson's new MF 4200 Series tractors, eight cab models 55 to 99 PTO hp, 2- and 4-wheel drive, feature flat floor cabs, roof to floor tinted glass for exceptionally visibility, and three exterior designs — standard, low profile, and high visibility.

"In developing the new 4200 Series, priority has been given to providing a wide choice of equipment and options for customers," said John Sargeant, Massey Ferguson marketing product manager. "We feel the more closely users can tailor a tractor to their specification and performance requirements, the more value and productivity they will receive from their choice."

The new MF 4200 Series models are available with 2- or 4-wheel drive and are available in three exterior cab and sheet metal designs — Standard, low profile, and high visibility.

Standard models have a gently sloping hood and a new flat-floor cab. Low profile models feature a reduced height cab and slanted hood profile for the lower overall height and compactness needed to operate in restricted space areas, including buildings.

High visibility models feature the new flat-floor cab in combination with the slanted hood profile for excellent forward visibility while operating loaders and other equipment that require the highest degree of visibility possible.

The MF 4243, 4253, and 4263 are "value priced" models with a standard 12F/4R transmission and value-packages options for the customer who wants a quality cab tractor with standard features, high productivity, and reliability.

New Holland Adds Discbine With Flail Conditioner

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The new Model 1412 New Holland Discbine® features a flail-type conditioner for more vigorous conditioning and faster curing in grass hay crops. But, the two-speed flail conditioner can be slowed to minimize leaf loss in alfalfa and other legume crops.

Unlike leafy alfalfa and clover, grasses can absorb vigorous flail-action conditioning with minimum leaf loss, said New Holland hay tools product manager Joe Griffiths. The reduced rotor speed adapts the "1412" for legumes. A hand crank adjusts the gap between the flails and the conditioning hood to control the amount of conditioning. This new machine is especially well adapted for heavily fertilized, high yield crops, he said.

The company indicated that the new Model 1412 Discbine® slices right through dense crops that stay wet or even are turning brown and gummy in the stubble area — conditions that plug a sickle bar. The eight-disc, 10-foot 4-inch modular cutter bar slices through fire ant and gopher mounds without slowing. The 120-inch flail conditioner picks up the crop as it passes the cutter bar and conditions it to remove the waxy outer crop surface for rapid dry down.

Windrow shields allow crop discharge from three feet to a full-width seven-foot swath. A "bent tongue" design with on-the-go hydraulic swing provides excellent maneuverability in narrow lanes, gates, and on field margins.

Safety: Apply It First Program Boosts Awareness

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — More than 8,000 growers, dealers, and other chemical applicators have requested free "Safety: Apply It First" materials, depleting the safety kit supply only five months into the year-long initiative.

Eight agricultural chemical manufacturers joined forces to start the "Safety: Apply It First" program so they could reach chemical applicators with important safety reminders during applications of the carbamate and organophosphate pesticides. The program launched in November 1997.

"If our safety kit fulfillment is any indicator, this program has done exactly what we wanted it to — raise safety awareness," said James Kunstman, registration manager at Bayer Corporation and member of the "Safety: Apply It First" committee. "The response to this program has been tremendous. We never imagined that we would be in an oversell situation so soon."

Most kits have been ordered via calls to the toll-free number, while the rest can be attributed to communicaiton pieces and sales representative presentations at dealer and grower meetings.

The "Safety: Apply It First" consortium is in the process of manufacturing additional safety kits and orders are still being taken. There may be a slight delay before kits are received because they are on back order.

The success of this program can be attributed to the efforts of the joint sales forces and various communications pieces that have raised program awareness.

"Obviously, chemical handlers are concerned about safety," Kunstman said. "This program is a success because it helps them further the safety initiatives in their businesses. Growers also want to keep carbamates and organophosphates available because they are important to their crops. Raising the safety standard during carbamate and organophosphate applications benefits the entire industry."

Dealers, applicators, growers and other chemical handlers can receive more information about the "Safety: Apply It First" program by contacting a sales representative from one of the sponsoring companies, or by calling (800) 233-1909. The toll-free number can be used to obtain more information about the program, tips about the safety issues surrounding organophosphate and carbamate pesticides and to order free kits.

The kits include informative brochures and tools such as pesticide hopper box stickers, sealable clothing bags in which to temporarily hold contaminated clothes, cab window stickers, and spray boom signs that serve as constant safety reminders during applications. Instructions on all materials appear in English, Spanish, and easy-to-understand symbols to keep safe handling top of mind.

Growers and dealers from nearly every state in the country have ordered safety kits, with the highest percentage of orders coming from Texas, Nebraska, California, Kansas, and Indiana.

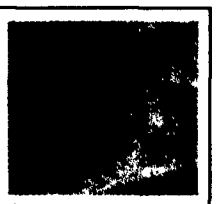
WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS

WARNING! DETERIORATING CONCRETE FROM CORN JUICE!

Check your silo now for rotten staves. If you have been using your silo for 10 to 15 years for either corn silage or haylage, it is time to SHOTCRETE

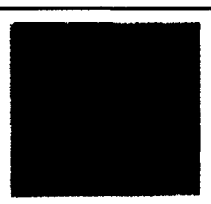
RESURFACES INTERIORS:
- Coats the silo's interior
- Protects feed in storage
- Durable, tough, acid-resistant
- Increase useful life
- Economical

Before The silo's interior with plaster damaged and stave exposed

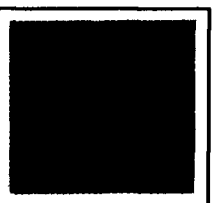


After . The surface is reconditioned, and a new, thick tough surface will protect stored feed.

REPAIRS HOLES:
- Repairs even large holes
- Up to twice the strength of the original stave
- Rapid application
- Durable surface



Before A hole is worn completely through the silo wall



After . . With the hole repaired by ShotCrete and a new surface applied, the silo is ready for years of use

EXTENDS USEFUL LIFE:
- Support for old foundations
- Special repairs can be made quickly and economically
- Little or no forming needed
- Stronger than the original

Before The bottom part of the stave's are completely worn away

NOTHING WORKS LIKE A SILO

Sollenberger Silos Corp.

THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

"HOW WILL YOU BE STORING YOUR VALUABLE FORAGES AND GRAINS IN THE 21ST CENTURY?

It's not too early to begin planning your storage and feeding systems for the year 2000 and beyond.

As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency; this can have as great an influence on PROFIT as milk price changes.

Protect your valuable feeds from the elements... increase the efficiency of your feeds, your animals, and your labor.

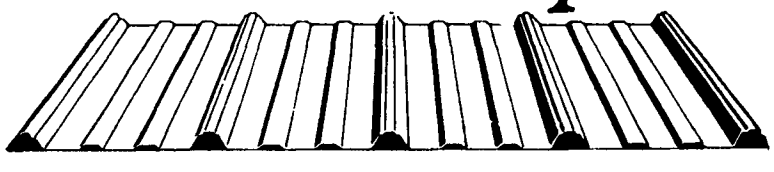
Rural Economy



Cost-efficient Centurydrain® roofing and siding is on some of the best looking buildings in the country.

Build with Centurydrain roofing and siding and you've built a money-wise structure. Full-hard, high tensile galvanized steel, and an exclusive drain channel for a dry interior give you a building that'll handle years of hard duty and hard weather. Good looking, too. Crisp lines and plenty of bright, long-lasting colors make Wheeling Centurydrain as handsome as it is economical.

Cut stall clean-out time by 50% with a Millcreek Compact Spreader.

EARL SINKS - Brock, Texas

Say "Good-Bye" to back-breaking manure handling and cut stall clean-out time in half. Hook an affordable Millcreek Compact Spreader to your 10 hp garden tractor, take it right to the stall for easy loading. No more wheelbarrow.

Millcreek Spreaders last and last

Since spreaders are our specialty, we put more into each one. For example our 20-year guaranteed floor will never rust or rot. Positive chain drive provides excellent spreading action. And tough steel construction holds up to rugged farm use Seven sizes, for 1-horse barns to 50-horse stables. PTO and ground drive models available

the profitable liquid feed for your cattle
PRO-LIX LIQUID FEED
They'll give it right back to you, with interest, in:
- Healthier Calves
- More Economical Production
- Better Reproduction Performance

PRO-LIX delivers the protein, vitamins and minerals your cattle need-when they need it and in the amounts they need. It increases cattle weight, fosters healthier calves and often helps to produce more calves. PRO-LIX is an extremely smart investment in the beef or milk that produces your profits-all year long.
